NORRIS OFFERS RESOLUTION

Seeks Investigation of "Electric Power Trust."

MUSCLE SHOALS PROBLEM UP

Repeal of Publicity Clause of Income Tax Act Not Likely at Short Session—Leaders Opposed to Giving the Subject a Place on the Legislative Program—House Votes Millions For Prohibition Enforcement.

Washington, Dec. 30.—Senator Norris (Rep., Neb.) introduced a resolution directing the federal trade commission to undertake an investigation of the electric power "trust."

Senator Edge (Rep., N. J.) blocked immediate consideration of the resolution.

The senate still faces the Muscle Shoals problem, which holds right of way there, with the house resuming work on appropriation bills. Three of the dozen supply measures already have been counted off and sent to the senate to leave the treasury next in line for house action. In the offing of the senate program is the calling up of the president's veto of the postal salary increase bill by unanimous consent for a vote on Jan. 6. Meanwhile hearings on the administration postal rate increase bill, which leaders hope to have ready for the senate by that date, will continue before the joint committee.

Income taxpayers will be subjected to the same rule of publicity next year that provoked so much criticism this year. Even if congress were disposed to take up the matter for consideration, it is doubtful whether repealing legislation could be passed at the short session of congress, which will end on March 4.

With the leaders opposed to giving this subject a place on the legislative program, repealing legislation does not have a chance. It is feared by the managers of both houses that to undertake to repeal the publicity clause would open up the whole problem of tax legislation, cause interminable delay and probably force an extra session of congress, which it is their purpose to avoid at all hazards.

With the marked increase in inquiries that are being made among investment bankers relative to tax-free security issues, much speculation is arising as to whether this indicates a renewed interest in tax-free issues, due to income tax publicity. The opinion was expressed by one man connected with the financial operations of the government that many business houses, resenting the publicity given corporation income tax returns, would begin placing funds in tax-free investments, which would offer a certain amount of secrecy, even though the investments in such securities provide a relatively small return. If this opinion proves to be well founded, there undoubtedly will be a boom in municipal, county and public works projects.

Millions For Dry Enforcement.
The house approved a provision in the treasury-postoffice appropriation bill for expenditure of $11,000,000 for prohibition enforcement during the coming fiscal year. No effort was made to alter the amount, which is $341,770 less than the amount available this year, but $783,120 more than budget estimates.

The house also approved without amendment an allotment of $20,597,835 for coast guard activities, part of which would be available for curbing rum running. This amount is $11,753,706 more than the total appropriated for this year.

Representatives Hill of Maryland and Laguardia of New York assailed prohibition enforcement. The latter, advocating vigorous enforcement of the Volstead law so long as it is on the statute books, contended, there was imperative need for a radical shakeup in the prohibition enforcement force and a change in policy.

HERE AND THERE

Fire believed to have been set by bandits destroyed nine buildings at Pottsville, Tex. Overturned safes in some of the structures led police to believe bandits robbed them, then robbed the town.

Joseph Well, charged with swindling H. W. Cutter of Hamilton, O., out of $37,000 through a confidence game, was released from jail at Chicago under a $20,000 bond. Police are waiting for Cutter to appear and press the charges.

Flames wiped out three three-story bathhouses and damaged the boardwalk at Coney Island, N. Y.

RAJAH HURI SINGH

Paid Nearly a Million Dollars to Blackmailers.

Rajah Huri Singh, heir of the maharajah of Jammu-Kashmir. Sir Pertab Singh, was the victim of blackmailers in England. The story came out during a lawsuit in London.

FOUR MEMBERS OF FAMILY SLAIN

Woman, a Relative, Is Placed Under Arrest.

Logansport, Ind., Dec. 30.—Four members of the family of Henry Bassler, 69, farmer, were slain with a shotgun. Their bodies were found on the farm, eight miles north of here. The dead: Henry Bassler 69; Katherine Bassler, 60, his wife; Viola Hobough, 3, his granddaughter; and Henry Bassler, Jr., 22, his son.

The tops of the heads of three of the victims were shot away. The bodies of Bassler and the little girl were found in the house. Those of his son and wife were found in the yard near the house.

Mrs. Mary Hobough, daughter of Bassler and mother of the murdered girl, was placed under arrest. She was found by Sheriff Walter Boywer at the home of Thomas Sheets, about four miles from the Bassler home. Sheets said when Mrs. Hobough arrived at his home she said she had had some trouble with her brother, but, according to Sheets' story to the sheriff, she gave no indication of the tragedy that had been enacted. Since the death of her husband, Mrs. Hobough had made her home with her parents and brother, near the village of Metea, eight and a half miles from here. She visited the home of Lyman Yantis and called on the telephone Rev. Henry Mullins, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist church of this city. Yantis asserted Mrs. Hobough told the minister her brother had knocked her down, and that if she had a shotgun she would kill the brother. Yantis said he paid little heed to the woman's threats, as the family quarreled frequently.

DARROW'S WORDS

Pardon For Loeb and Leopold May Be Justified in a Few Years.

Denver, Dec. 30.—A pardon for Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold might be justified in a few years, Clarence Darrow, defense attorney for the confessed killers of Bobby Franks, said here. "If our diagnosis of their mental disorders should be wrong, and if, through some readjustment, they should be restored to normality, it is possible that after a period of years a pardon might be justified," he declared. "Loeb and Leopold are insane. They should be confined in an asylum," he continued.

Darrow said he would make public the amount of money he received for defending the youths when he returns to Chicago. "Statements that I received $1,000,000 are false," he said.

Protests Against Ban.

Washington, Dec. 30.—A note of protest is being prepared by the state department against the British embargo on American potatoes. This government's stand is based on technical information, showing that an embargo is not justified by the presence of Colorado beetles, or common potato bugs, in shipments to England.

Fatal Fall.

Springfield, O., Dec. 30.—William McFarland, 20, of North Hampton, sustained possibly fatal injuries when he fell 25 feet from the second floor of the new Masonic temple, where he had been employed in construction work.

LEGISLATION TO BE SOUGHT

Officials Would Halt Pollution of Ohio Streams.

CAN NOT BE LEFT TO FUTURE

State Health Director Says Low Death Rate From Typhoid Can Not Be Maintained If Stream Pollution Is Continued—Co-operation Necessary Between Republican Legislature and Democratic Governor.

Columbus, Dec. 30.—The special committee on conservation of water supplies, appointed by Dr. John E. Monger, state health director, has approved legislation to stop the pollution of Ohio streams and to apply remedial measures for pollution now existing.

Dr. Monger said no single problem is so fraught with grave consequence to future generations as that of stream pollution. In many communities, he says, it is not a problem that can be left to the future, but is one that must be solved now. He quoted a federal engineer as saying "the pollution of the Ohio river by sewage and wastes has increased to such an extent that we have reached the last line of defense in our efforts to combat the germs and purify the water at modern water plants along the river."

The same conditions exist in other waterways, Dr. Monger asserts, especially in Cuyahoga, Maumee and Mahoning rivers.

Reduction in the death rate from typhoid fever has come through health measures taken in the last few years, but if the rate of increase in pollution is maintained, the low death rate can not be kept, he declares.

"While approximately 50 per cent of our population is drinking water from surface sources, a much greater per cent will be using surface water 25 years from today," he explains. "The question staring us in the face is whether we will be able to control water-borne diseases then, and the frank, truthful answer is, we will not."

Co-operation Necessary.
Some measures of co-operation between a Republican legislature and a Democratic governor will be necessary to solve many matters which will confront the Eighty-sixth general assembly when it convenes, Jan. 5.

Problems of vital importance to the people of the state which will surely come before the assembly include plans for furnishing financial relief for cities, villages and school districts, a gasoline tax, the federal child-labor amendment, pre-primary political conventions, road legislation and a minimum wage law.

Two years ago there was a Republican legislature and a Democratic governor, who were unable to agree on several important questions. As a result, the governor used his veto power freely, but the Republican majority made it possible to override this veto in several instances. Almost the same situation faces the coming session.

There is certain to be some measure for the financial relief of cities introduced. Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, who is chairman of the house taxation committee and majority floor leader, was author of the Taft bill, which was passed over the governor's veto, but lost at a referendum. Governor Donahay opposed the measure on the grounds that there was not sufficient provision for home rule in taxation. He had indicated that this is still his stand.

Success of the proposed gasoline tax idea now rests on the ability of the legislature to propose a measure which will satisfy certain automobile clubs in regard to reducing the license tax and property tax. As the license tax generally will have been paid before a gasoline tax could be passed and made operative, provision probably would have to be made to make the gas tax operative a year hence, in order to avoid a double taxation on automobiles.

Sentenced to Prison.

Akron, O., Dec. 30.—William Schuck, 48, found guilty of manslaughter by a jury last week in connection with the shooting to death of Alex Harkins, Greensburg farmer, June 20, was sentenced to from 10 to 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary by Judge E. H. Boylan.

Real Estate Dealer Dies.

Mt. Vernon, O., Dec. 30.—William Herzog, 45, Cleveland real estate man, sustained a stroke of apoplexy as he alighted from his auto in front of a hotel here and died shortly after at a hospital.

JESSE H. METCALF

New Senator From Rhode Island Succeeds the Late Senator Colt.

OHIO HAPPENINGS

Couple Escapes Flames.

Newark, O., Dec. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Keck made a thrilling escape when their home near this city caught fire. When they were awakened by fire and smoke in the house, Keck called to his wife to follow him. He opened the window and hung suspended from the porch eaves while his wife slid down his body to the snow and ice-covered ground below. Keck then dropped to safety. Both were clad only in their night clothes. The home was destroyed.

Girl Asphyxiated in Closed Car.
Norwalk, O., Dec. 30.—Miss Lucy Landoll, 17-year-old daughter of Peter Landoll, was found dead in a closed automobile in the yard of her home, three miles east of Norwalk. Joseph Gaag, 20, was found in a serious condition by her side. He may die. Corner C. L. Bell reported after an investigation that death was due to carbon monoxide gas brought into the car by the heater.

Couple Shot by Woman.
Cleveland, Dec. 30.—Cora Morris, 26, and her sweetheart, Olin Hightower, 26, were shot by a former sweetheart of the woman, who escaped after the shooting, according to police. A bullet entered Hightower's right cheek and another shot entered Cora's neck. Both were taken to a hospital. They are expected to recover.

Turned Over to Federal Court.
Marion, O., Dec. 30.—Ralph Gilson, Howard Holloway and Arthur Wells, all of this city, were turned over to federal authorities for alleged complicity in a postoffice robbery at Carrollton, Dec. 19. John Fosnaugh and Alvin Ayres, former Marion residents, are under arrest at Canton for the Carrollton job, local police say.

Electrocuted at Home.
Gallion, O., Dec. 30.—Leonard P. Long, 30, was accidentally electrocuted at his home here. The insulation on an electric wire near the furnace had been worn off and was resting against the chain on the furnace. When Long took hold of the chain he received a shock which killed him.

Nurses' Home Burned.
Columbus, Dec. 30.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the frame office building and nurses' home of the sanitarium of Dr. George Harding at Worthington, a suburb. Five nurses were forced to flee hurriedly from their beds. Property loss $10,000.

Perished in Fire.
Chillicothe, O., Dec. 30.—Clifford Kerns, 23, traveling salesman, of this city, was burned to death in a rooming house fire at Dallas, Tex. Eight others were injured, none seriously. Apparently the fire started in Kerns' room.

Frozen Body Found.
Canton, O., Dec. 30.—The frozen body of Ulysses Violet, 72, was found in a chicken coop on his farm near Justus, Stark county, by neighbors.

Fire Attacks Plant.
Tiffin, O., Dec. 30.—The Hopple woodworking plant here was damaged by fire to the extent of $200,000.

Senate Democrats Organize.
Millersburg, O., Dec. 30.—The Democratic minority in the Ohio state senate perfected an organization at a caucus here attended by Judge R. L. Adair of Wayne county and William Garver of Holmes county. They are the only Democrats elected to the new senate. Garver was selected as minority leader. Judge Adair was made a party whip. Then the caucus adjourned. Garver has been named on 20 senate committees and Judge Adair on 18.

KID M'COY WILL FILE APPEAL

Former Pugilist Convicted of Manslaughter.

CALLS IT UNFAIR VERDICT

Twenty-four Ballots Taken by the Jury Before the Fate of the Former Boxer Was Announced in Court. Placed on Trial in Connection With the Shooting of Mrs. Theresa Mors. Review of the Case.

Los Angeles, Dec. 30.—After many hours' deliberation, the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter against Kid McCoy, former pugilist.

The verdict was returned in connection with the shooting here Aug. 2 last of Mrs. Theresa Mors.

Twenty-four ballots were taken before the fate of the former prize fighter was read in open court. The jury was comprised of nine women and three men. Foreman F. W. Coulter of the jury, said that the verdict was a compromise one. Superior Judge C. S. Crall had no comment to make other than: "I guess it was the best that they could do."

When the verdict was read, McCoy's eyes became tear-dimmed as he sat at the end of the counsel table. "I don't believe it was a just verdict," he said. "If I am not guilty as charged, I am not guilty at all. It was not a just verdict."

Sentence will be passed Friday. Defense attorneys announced that notice of appeal would be filed at that time. The penalty is from one to 10 years.

Mrs. Mors, divorced wife of Albert A. Mors, and joint owner with him of the Mors antique shop in a fashionable shopping district here, was found dead of a bullet wound in an apartment leased to "Mr. and Mrs. N. Shields." Her body was discovered about 9 a. m. Aug. 13. At about the same hour McCoy is alleged to have entered the antique shop and held up several employees of the place while he waited for the appearance of Mors, whom he announced he was going to "get."

The men, after handing over their money and valuables, were forced to remove shoes and trousers to prevent their escape; the women were allowed to wait unmolested. As customers entered the place, they were similarly disposed of until one of them, William G. Ross, made a break for liberty. He was shot in the thigh, and then, it was testified, McCoy went next door to the shop of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Schapp and wounded them.

About this time police investigating the death of "Mrs. Shields" learned the dead woman was Mrs. Mors and that "Mr. Shields" was Kid McCoy.

SOLONS ROUSED

French Official Says France Is Not Expecting to Pay Debt.

Washington, Dec. 30.—Among administration officials who are directly concerned with debt funding operations the admission made by the French minister of finance in his report to parliament that France regards her $4,000,000,000 indebtedness to the United States as "a political debt," was received with a sort of pained surprise; and in congressional circles it aroused a storm of indignation and will have a full airing on the senate floor. Franco-American relations, apparently are due for a series of jars, for on all sides the opinion was expressed that the American government can not allow to go unchallenged this virtual repudiation of France's war debt.

M. Clementel's statement that France does not expect to pay strips the mask from the negotiations that have been in progress here between Ambassador Jusserand and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. Behind the curtain of "informal conversations" these negotiations have been in progress for some weeks, but in view of the French government's position it is now considered doubtful whether M. Jusserand will continue talk of "payment in full."

Falls From Scaffold.
Portsmouth, O., Dec. 30.—John Lilly, 27, steel plant employee, died in a hospital three hours after sustaining a fractured skull in a 30-foot fall from a scaffold. A wife and three weeks-old daughter survive.

Girl Killed Coasting.

AUTO TAGS GOING OUT

Secretary Brown Orders Resumption of Distribution.

Columbus, Dec. 30.—Secretary of State Thad Brown announced that the distribution of 1925 auto tags will be resumed at once. Distribution was stopped several days ago, pending investigation of alleged faulty paint on the new license numbers.

Resumption of distribution was ordered upon the advice of Professor James R. Withrow, head of the department of chemical engineering, Ohio State university, who is conducting an investigation of the tag situation. Professor Withrow said he was satisfied that paint on the new tags would not come off through ordinary washing, and intimated that most of the tags reported "defective" were defaced deliberately.

The great danger now, Professor Withrow explained, is not that the tags may be defective, but that purchasers throughout the state will deliberately deface them intentionally, or in a too earnest attempt to see whether they are defective.

Because of the delay through halting of the distribution, Secretary Brown said he would ask police chiefs to extend until Jan. 20 the time when all motorists must have the new tags. Until then, 1924 tags may be used.

SOLDIERS EXECUTED

Eight Hundred Shot For Looting Chinese Town.

London, Dec. 30.—According to a dispatch from Tientsin, China, 800 soldiers, who had taken part in the wholesale looting in Kalgan as reprisal for nonreceipt of many months' overdue pay, were lined up along the railroad track and shot in cold blood. The soldiers had been told that if they returned peacefully to their barracks they would be paid. The 800 trustfully returned and were immediately marched into a waiting train, the doors of which were locked. Whereupon the train steamed out into the country. The men were ordered to deploy along the track and were quickly and mercilessly executed in batches.

Former Cop Shot.

Youngstown, O., Dec. 30.—Raymond Rogers, former city policeman, was shot above the heart by his brother-in-law, Joseph Margo, who says Rogers attacked him after being refused a loan, so that he could go to see Mrs. Rogers in California.

Pleads Guilty; Sentenced.

New Lexington, O., Dec. 30.—John Marshall of Santoy, colored, pleaded guilty to manslaughter just as his trial started here. He was sentenced to from five to 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary by Judge T. D. Price. Marshall was being tried for the killing of Henry Coleman, with whom he fought a battle in the streets here three months ago.

Driver Found Dead.

Dayton, O., Dec. 30.—William Knauer, truck driver, was found dead several miles north of Dayton. He is believed to have suffered a heart attack while making a delivery.

DOZEN DATES

Scheduled For Ohio State's Track Team Soon After Reopening of School Jan. 5th.

Columbus, O., Dec. 29.—(United Press.)—A dozen dates are scheduled for Ohio State's track team during the annual campaign to get under way soon after re-opening of school on Jan. 5. Only five dual meets appear on the card. The rest of the list consists of the Illinois, Ohio and Penn relays, the indoor and outdoor Big Ten championships, the National Collegiate meet at Chicago in June and the usual quadrangular competition with Chicago, Wisconsin and Northwestern.

Reforestation Goes On

A traveler through New England, if observant, may have noted in recent years the springing up of little patches of new forest here and there. He may notice also that old forests, perfectly ready to cut under temptation, are left standing. He may notice also that the ground under the trees is in many cases cleaned up so that inflammable material for quick fires has been removed. Small as these evidences are in the country as a whole, they are numerous enough in some places to show that the forestry propaganda is beginning to accomplish results. It is sure to grow in strength and the work of protection and reforestation is sure to progress faster as it acquires momentum, says the Waterbury (Conn.) American.

The dedication of a people's forest on the banks of the Farmington river, where several hundred acres of forest land were placed in the hands of the state as a memorial and an addition to the system of parks which the state has provided, is one small but significant item in such work.

As the habit grows much Connecticut land now running to waste, but suitable for forest growth, will be covered with trees, and the next generation will see quite a different face on the state of Connecticut.

WEATHER FORECASTING IS AIDED BY TREES

Notable Discovery Made by Arizona
Astronomer After Twenty Years of Study.

Tucson, Ariz.—The tree as an accurate and reliable assistant in the task of long-range weather forecasting may be the outcome of more than twenty years of study by Dr. A. E. Douglass, director of Steward Observatory and professor of astronomy at the University of Arizona here.

A definite connection between the annual rings on trees and rainfall has been established, Doctor Douglass said. The first inkling of such a possibility occurred to the scientist 20 years ago while he was working near Prescott, Ariz. He discovered that the annual rings on pine trees there corresponded, by showing rapid or slow seasonal growth, to the average rainfall over the last forty years.

From the tree rings Doctor Douglass worked out the probable variations of the sun during the last four or five centuries. He received striking corroboration of his theories and work more than two years ago in a letter from Dr. E. W. Maunder, an English astronomer, who has been studying the sun's spots historically and found a dearth of them from 1650 to 1715.

Doctor Douglass' further studies have indicated that such a condition can be traced through the annual rings of the pine trees.

Doctor Douglass' pamphlet on the subject, "Some Aspects of the Use of the Annual Rings of Trees in Climate Study," recently was selected by the Smithsonian Institution as one of the scientific classics of the year. The Arizona scientist has been invited to speak on the subject before the Carnegie Institute at Washington.

He hopes to aid materially in increasing the accuracy of long-range weather forecasting through his discoveries. At present he is investigating the giant Sequoias, some of which have been pronounced the oldest living things. He hopes to obtain data for a period extending probably 3,000 years back.

$60,000 to Legless Boy
Is Only 'Coupla Dollars'

New York.—"What do I care for a couple dollars? They won't give me back my legs."

This was the reply of Benjamin Warshofsky, twenty years old, when asked what he would do with $60,000 the American Railway Express company was ordered by Justice Faber in Queens Supreme court to give him in compensation for injuries received in a collision between a trolley car and one of its trucks. Warshofsky, a delivery boy, lost his left leg as a result of the accident, and had the other so badly smashed it is useless.

"I ain't worrying about what I'm going to do," he said, "or about the money. The only thing I'm worrying about is getting well."

He said he passed seven weeks in Flushing hospital after being hurt nine more weeks at home. Every day he sits at the window and stares through the ugly lattice of the fire escape—at the folk who can walk.

"Work at anything with my hands?" He laughed bitterly. "Do you suppose I'd have been out there delivering packages if I'd ever learned any sort of trade? The only thing my hands are good for are to drag me from one chair to another."

"What good is money if I've got to sit in one place all the rest of my life?"

Chinese Mule Is Rival of Missouri Breed in Army

Washington.—Is the Missouri mule of the United States army variety slipping? This question is to be determined, so far as the American expeditionary force in China is concerned.

The quartermaster of the American force at Tientsin recently purchased a dozen Chinese mules to conduct experiments to determine their comparative value as against the American animal imported for transport.

It seems the Chinese mule, which hails from Manchuria and Mongolia, and stands on an average between 13 and 14 hands, has excellent points. He is exceptionally sturdy and hardy. A not unusual load for one of them on a fairly smooth road is a ton or more, and an average day's march of twenty-five miles under a 350-pound pack is common.

The Chinese mule subsists on a ration costing less than 25 cents a day, upon which an American animal would starve.

German Children Hold
Unique Garden Festival

Berlin.—A unique harvest festival recently took place in the industrial suburb of Berlin, Neu-Koelin. A subsidiary of a Dayton manufacturing concern, Dayton, Ohio, has copied the American plan of turning over vacant and to children of employees for gardening purposes. The festival marked the end of this year's experiment.

Thirty-five boys and 20 girls had cultivated strips of land each 50 by 10 feet. The average yield per child was: 100 heads of lettuce, 80 pounds tomatoes, 60 pounds cucumbers, 50 pounds cabbage, 30 pounds red beets, 25 pounds string beans, 25 pounds spinach, 25 pounds celery, 25 pounds carrots, 12 pounds peas, 10 pounds each of onions, radishes and kohlrabi.

1924 CORN KINGS
YET TO BE FOUND

One Hundred Bushel Club Gains No
Members For First Time In Its History.

Not a man in the State of Ohio was able to grow an average of 100 bushels of corn to the acre on a 10-acre plot during the past season, according to the final report by the farm crops department at the Ohio State University.

"While the 10-acre corn contest does not include all the best corn growers of the State, it is reasonable to assume that those entered were of the best, and none was able to reach the goal of 100 bushels an acre," says Wallace E. Hanger, extension specialist who has been in charge of the work for the eight years the contest has been going.

"In spite of the backward season," continued Mr. Hanger, "some excellent results were obtained. William Gilmore, of Licking county, grew an average of 98.24 bushels an acre on a ten acre plot. Jacob Puterbaugh, of Montgomery county, who won the state championship cup for the highest corn yield, had the second highest yield this year, 96.32 bushels. Howard Eby, of Montgomery county, wins third place with a yield of 94.67 bushels an acre.

"Entries in the club this year totaled 34 men, distributed in 15 different counties. Montgomery was the leading county with nine entries of which Mr. Puterbaugh is the leader. Fifteen county championship medals will be awarded at Farmers' Week in February.

"The average yield in the contest this year is 70.82, which is from 10 to 15 bushels lower than usual."

N. B. SPENCER

Died in Cincinnati—Was Originator of Time Lock Idea.

Napoleon B. Spencer died at his home in Hyde Park, Cincinnati, Monday morning.

The deceased was born in Adelphi and was 74 years old. He was the son of Thomas W. and Caroline Karshner Spencer, former residents of this city. His father conducted a photograph studio here for nearly a half century.

He originated the idea of time locks on bank vaults and for years had a working model. The idea was copied and used extensively and has been improved upon and is now used all over the Union.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Susie Spencer and two sons, Burton and Raymond. Of his immediate family one brother, Oscar H. Spencer of East High street, survives.

Mr. Spencer moved from this city to Cincinnati twenty years ago. He was formerly connected with the Scioto Machine works when it was managed by the late J. Q. A. Oliver. Mr. Spencer was a machinist and his special work was on steam and gasoline engines, in which he was considered an expert.

Marriage in France
Regarded as a Duty

A few months ago, girl students at the University of Minnesota replied to a questionnaire asking their notion of an ideal husband. According to the replies, he must be "moderately good-looking, athletically inclined, morally clean, respectful toward religion, healthy, appreciative of the good and beautiful in life, well trained socially, chivalrous, optimistic and good-natured"; but such qualities as patience, courage, industry, sound judgment, love of children and an infinite capacity for self-sacrifice—these they failed to emphasize. In other words, each young woman was seeking an agreeable mate. He must be "charming." Then the young woman in her turn would be "happy." Whereas, no one is ever "happy," and those who marry in order to win "happiness" meet with disillusionment. They ought to.

In France, where marriages are arranged by the old folks, no one thinks of marriage as bringing "happiness." No one thinks of marriage as a personal indulgence. In France, marriage is a duty. Such prerequisites as patience, courage, industry, sound judgment, love of children and an infinite capacity for self-sacrifice are not underrated. Except in rare cases, interesting to the novelist because of their rarity, French marriage succeeds. Very few French couples seek divorce—so few, indeed, that France was shocked when Americans began to seek divorce in Paris, and applauded the ministry of justice for somewhat abating the scandal.

Inasmuch as we are not Latins and have neither the background nor the shrewd, calculating, businesslike and socially dutiful inclinations of the French, who arrange marriages for their children as deliberately as they finance those marriages, we shall never adopt the French system. Instead of arranging marriages for our children, we are much more likely to find our children arranging divorces for us.—Rollin Lynde Hartt in World's Work.

TRAFFIC CASUALTIES
DOUBLE WAR'S TOLL

Combined Deaths and Injuries
700,600 in 1923.

Washington.—"There is almost total lack of systematic effort to secure accurate and complete data regarding traffic accidents, their types and causes, and methods of prevention," declares the Committee on Statistics of the Conference on Street and Highway Safety, in a report to Secretary of Commerce Hoover based on a thorough survey which revealed an annual loss in the United States due to street and highway accidents in 1923 of 22,000 persons killed, 678,000 serious injuries and an economic loss of $800,000,000.

The committee's report shows that there were more than twice as many casualties in street and highway accidents in the United States during 1923 than there were for the United States army at home and abroad in the World War. The highway and street casualties include "killed and seriously injured." This takes no account of minor accidents.

The report also shows that there were only 14,216 more of our men killed in action in the World War than in street and highway accidents in 1923.

In states where centralized agencies have been created to investigate such accidents, it has been possible to attempt a systematic remedy of the conditions. But 34 states have no adequate system for securing such information and in few states is any record kept except where death or serious personal injury result from traffic accidents.

Committee's Recommendations. Such facts, the committee says, "are fundamental to the adoption of adequate methods of traffic control, if the present situation is to be improved." And the committee's recommendations provide that:

"Statistics regarding street and highway accidents are so vital to any comprehensive understanding and treatment of the safety problem that their collection and analysis in every state and community is essential.

"Where such do not exist, statutes should be passed in every state which should make it the specific business of some state agency, preferably that clothed with authority to issue and revoke licenses, to receive traffic accident reports and investigate all such accidents, whether occurring within or without the corporate limits of municipalities.

"It should be made, by law, obligatory for those concerned to report all traffic accidents, and an adequate penalty for failure to report should be provided.

"Reasonable uniformity in reporting and tabulating data is essential, and some competent body should undertake the compilation of standard definitions of terms.

"Sufficiently detailed information should be gathered to indicate clearly whether the accidents occurred because of: Recklessness, carelessness or incapacity of persons; fault of mechanism of vehicle; physical conditions of the locality where the accident occurred.

Urges Spot Maps.

The committee includes 18 items of information which should be obtained to constitute an adequate report.

Spot maps, to detect danger points and to serve as a basis for remedial action, should be maintained.

The experience of the committee led its members to express the hope that its report "will lead to improvement in the field of traffic accident reporting; that it will stimulate the governmental agencies and the various private organizations interested to a more intensive study . . . and greater efforts."

In its study of fatal accidents the committee found from the records of the census bureau that highway fatalities are growing at a more rapid rate than accidental deaths from all causes and that automobile fatalities are growing more rapidly than highway fatalities as a whole. For example, the total number of accidental deaths increased 10.7 per cent between 1922 and 1923, whereas the total number of highway fatalities increased 17.8 per cent, and automobile fatalities increased 20.3 per cent.

Westminster Cathedral to Have Open-Air Altar

London.—An open-air altar and pulpit equipped with loud speakers is being erected just outside Westminster cathedral, so that thousands of persons participating in processions and overflow meetings will be able to hear the preacher's voice.

Cardinal Bourne, making this announcement at the annual meeting of the Catholic Evidence guild, said the cathedral was not sufficient on certain occasions of the year, and that the whole of the land around the cathedral would be leveled and cleared to provide for overflow meetings.

Horse Finds Mate

Atchison, Kans.—There apparently is such a thing as horse sense after all. A horse belonging to James Wagner, Atchison county farmer, became imprisoned in a deserted barn. For three days the horse was missing, until Wagner became attracted by the fact that the horse's mate continued to peer through the cracks in the old barn, and found the horse imprisoned inside.

DIED OF CANCER

Mrs. Jacob Levy Passed Away at Her
Home in Columbus.

Mrs. Sarah Schein Levy, wife of Jacob Levy, died at her home, 741 South Seventeenth street, Columbus, Sunday evening.

The deceased is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Fannie Fish and Mrs. Ethel Wasserstrom and two sons, Myer and Moses Levy. Of her immediate family one brother and one sister survive.

The family formerly lived in this city on Clinton street. Her husband was formerly connected with the Circleville Iron and Metal company. The deceased was sixty years of age and the cause of her death was cancer.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment was made in the Jewish cemetery in Columbus.

Dream Has Physical Basis.

The "falling from a height" dream has a physical basis, for scientists have shown that this form of nightmare invariably occurs during the first few minutes after falling asleep. It is suggested by the general muscular relaxation that takes place when we settle down. A change of position of even a fraction of an inch, or the least little slip of the muscles, is sufficient to convey the idea of a fall to the brain.

STATE BUREAU

Identification of Criminals Accomplished by Most Complete System.

(United Press.)

Columbus, Ohio, December 30.—The Ohio Bureau of identification with offices in the Ohio penitentiary, is a clockwork of index cards black with identification marks and finger prints.

A correspondent dived into the detective system with William N. Smith, superintendent of the bureau, looking over the many different index card systems and finger print files, to learn why would-be law invaders many times aren't really good law dodgers after all.

Smith explained that the bureau was created to bring about a cooperation with the state, of city and town police authorities in apprehending criminals and to make it possible for the prosecuting attorneys and trial judges to look up a charged man's record, so that he can be treated in trial accordingly.

Smith has all convict clerks and stenographers in his office. The system starts with the record building department where all criminal records are assembled and made ready to file and become a part of the three hundred thousand records on file.

Then, there are the Bertillon filing cabinets where thousands of criminal photographs are filed according to the lengths of the bones of the body. This helps defeat the alias invention.

The finger print department is in a fireproof vault where all print cards are filed, nearly two hundred thousand in all. Smith has lots of faith in the finger print system as a defeat for aliases.

The Modus Operandi gallery is where all professional criminals' photographs are filed by a visible system according to the method of working. Smith said some men have had as high as thirty aliases.

Within the last year, the bureau has identified and caused to be apprehended 284 fugitives from justice, identified 3630 as having previous criminal records and answered 16,153 inquiries.

"While the state bureau is helping to decrease the enormous annual crime cost in Ohio now, it will be able to decrease it still further if it is adequately financed by the next Ohio legislature," said Smith.

Smith has been catching culprits for thirteen years and claims he never forgets a face.—Harold E. Righter.

An Indian chief visited Muskogee, Okla., recently and stayed over night at the hotel. Going to his room that night he decided to call his wife, who lived at Dewar, a few miles away. He took down the phone receiver and started in: "This is Big Fire Chief Fire—" but the telephone operator let him get no further. She sounded the general fire alarm, and when the department arrived the Indian was still trying to get in his call and verbally losing his temper through the phone.

GRANGE AND CHILD LABOR

Amendment In Its Present Form Will Be Opposed Very Strongly.

Following the strong declaration of the National Grange, at its Atlantic City session, against the pending child labor amendment, State Granges all over the country are taking up the issue and adding their protest to the proposed constitutional change. Of all the state organizations of the Grange meeting since December 1, not a single one but has endorsed the stand of the National Grange, and has denounced the child labor project in vigorous terms. Furthermore, local Granges in all sections of the country are entering the fight; and with noteworthy unanimity is the Grange organization as a whole massing its energies to defeat the amendment.

Few organizations in America have done more to assist young people, or have proven themselves more staunch defenders of the boys and girls, than has the Grange; but the basis of its present opposition is expressed in the clear-cut language adopted at Atlantic City:

"This amendment as now drawn is so unrestricted and sweeping that its application could become absolutely dangerous to the best interests of the communities of the nation and to the welfare of the children themselves; therefore, on account of its sweeping nature, and its tendency towards centralized, costly, bureaucratic control, we are opposed to the ratification of the amendment as now proposed."

Boys Chief Stutters

For every girl who stutters there are five or six stuttering boys.

Dr. James Sonnett Greene of New York, medical director of the National hospital for speech disorders, explains this curious fact in writing for Hygeia, health magazine, published by the American Medical association.

Girls, as a rule, talk more than boys and, therefore, get more practice in speech production, Doctor Greene states. Although it is generally conceded that girls are more nervous than boys, yet the girl is more capable of maintaining her co-ordination under emotional strain because she is naturally more graceful and her co-ordination more complete.

For that reason it requires an exceptionally severe shock to cause her to lose her standard, hesitate and stutter.

Birds Constantly at

Work for Humanity

In a new country where the natural conditions of plant and animal life are changed, the balance of nature is likely to be upset. The value of bird life is perhaps greater in checking a plague in its incipient stage.

In parts of the Middle West there were serious outbreaks of the Rocky mountain locust or grasshopper many years ago, says Nature Magazine of Washington. D. C. Prof. Aughey of the University of Nebraska carried on a series of observations showing that the birds of these localities were helping a great deal to check the insect numbers.

Thrushes, kinglets, chickadees, nuthatches, warblers, vireos, swallows, crows, bluejays, blackbirds, kingfishers, cuckoos, woodpeckers, hawks, owls, pigeons, grouse, quail, gulls, and even humming birds and water birds had all taken to eating locusts.

Fifty-one locusts were taken from the stomach of a single yellow-headed blackbird. A tiny ruby-throated hummingbird had four small locusts in its stomach. Six robins had eaten 265 locusts. Sixty-seven locusts were found in the stomachs of three bluebirds, and one little ruby-crowned kinglet had eaten 29. Many of these and other birds were feeding their young on locusts.

One barn owl had eaten 39 locusts. Five screechows had eaten 219 locusts. Six of the nine burrowing owls had eaten an average of more than fifty locusts each, the magazine article concludes. Hawks, as a class, were scarcely less active, for of the eleven species listed as having been examined by him, five were found to have eaten locusts.

A grasshopper pest in southern Oregon was something like the plague of grasshoppers that came upon the early Mormon settlers in Utah during the summer of 1848. The crops of the Mormons were partly saved by the great flocks of gulls that came in and settled over the fields, gorging themselves on the insects.

Making "Lead" Pencils

To make the wooden tube in which the lead for a pencil is incased the manufacturer cuts out a board about seven inches long, the width of six pencils and as thick as half a pencil in diameter. With a machine he then shapes it into six semi-rounded or semi-hexagonal sections and grooves one side to hold the lead. When the lead is inserted the halves are glued together. The "lead" in a pencil is composed of graphite.

KEEPING WELL

FRESH AIR WITHOUT DRAFTS

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN

Editor of "HEALTH"

WE'VE had state commissions appointed and surveys made on everything under the sun. Many of them are of small value. Occasionally a state commission shows some intelligence and does something of importance.

Such a state commission is the one appointed in New York on ventilation. An old subject, which man has been struggling with ever since he began to live in caves and tried to keep in the heat from his fire and keep out the cold from outside. How are we going to keep our houses warm and yet have air fit to breathe?

The New York state commission examined and tested all the machines and ventilating systems on the market and practically turned them all down. It decided that the best way to get fresh air into a room was to open a window. But that isn't all. If it was, it would be a simple problem. In most houses, where our windows are built so that we can look out rather than so that fresh air can get in and foul air get out, opening the window alone is not enough.

Deflecting boards should be placed at the bottom of the window, so as to deflect the current of cold air upward. Cold air is heavier than warm air. Every schoolboy knows that. No matter what kind of heating is used, the warm air rises to the ceiling and forces down the cold air to the floor. If we open the windows at the top the warm air rushes out at the window, the cold air comes in under the doors. The room may be well ventilated, but there is a constant current of cold air on the floor and the room is uncomfortable.

A glass deflector one foot high and fixed at an angle is fairly good, but a curved deflector of glass or wood is better. Placed with the convex curve down, this will throw the cold air up to the ceiling, forcing down the warm air and so establishing a current of warm air instead of a cold draft.

Radiators, if possible, should be located under or near the windows. A thermometer should be kept in every room and the temperature maintained at 68 degrees F. This point should be plainly marked so that it can be told at a glance whether the room is too hot or too cold.

Each Thought Other Dead

"Dead" brothers met at Cardiff, Wales, neither having seen the other for twenty years, and each thinking the other dead. One enlisted at the age of nineteen in 1901, and was reported to have been killed during the siege of Kut. The other enlisted in the Cameron Highlanders in 1914, and was so badly wounded in 1916, he lost both arms. They met in the Union Jack club and looked at each other without speaking, and while friends were wondering what was the matter one of the brothers fainted. When he recovered, explanations were made, and the reunion was complete.

Composes in Workhouse

Alfred Phillips, an inmate at the Dulwich (Eng.) workhouse infirmary, has attained some merit as a composer of sacred songs, although he is past eighty-five years of age. He has been at the workhouse infirmary about four years, during which time he has written much sacred music.

Ingenious Dutch

Freight and passengers both are hauled and an abandoned street car line is put to good use in Amsterdam by an ingenious combination "train" composed of a motor truck and a surface car trailer.

Watch the Sun's Halos.

The sun's halos are good weather signs. Many weather proverbs based upon the observation of halos are founded upon sound scientific principles. Studies of the relation of halos to rainfall show that during the summer months 56 to 60 per cent of all halos are followed by rain within 36 hours. During the winter months 73 to 75 per cent are so followed.

The Brainy Bee.

The following incident testifies to the remarkable sagacity and efficiency of bees. A hive was being "spied upon" by a wasp. When wasps ascertain a hive is worth attacking they often succeed in ousting the bees. Every time the wasp approached the small entrance hole a bee came out. An hour later the wasp was dead.

From Rugs to Rags

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

WHEN Juliette heard the clock strike three she fairly trembled with joy and impatience. "Why doesn't he come?" she said. "It is three o'clock."

"One might think you were waiting for a lover instead of a man to mend the rugs," said her mother.

"But I'm crazy to see him. Annette tells me he is the most interesting creature she has ever spoken with. She is only sorry she hasn't more rugs that need sewing."

Juliette's mother smiled tolerantly. She had a faint suspicion that her whimsical but none the less lovely daughter had deliberately egged Sandy, the pup, to tear the big oriental rug.

"Why, mother, Annette says he's the only person who has ever given her a really comprehensive idea of the Einstein theory—think of it, the man who mends your rugs!"

A step on the gravel pathway brought Juliette to her feet. She dashed to the French door that opened to the porch.

A strikingly handsome young man faced her. "You have some rugs to be sewn?" he asked.

Juliette opened the door wide. "Yes; come right in. We were expecting you."

Annette had not said he was remarkably handsome. She had raved on about his mind, but she had not mentioned his face.

"This is the rug. The puppy has demoralized it rather badly and we don't like to send it away," said Juliette's mother. "Could you, perhaps, do it right on the floor?"

The young man said that he could, and immediately opened the small satchel that he carried. In less than five minutes he was at work.

Juliette sat down on the broad hall couch and watched him. Every now and then she offered a word or two in conversation in the effort to draw out what Annette had said was an unusually interesting mind.

A monosyllabic reply was all either she or her mother could get from the man, who worked steadily on the bits of rug. The pup had made veritable rags of the splendid old rug, and the pattern had to be carefully matched.

As time went on Juliette whispered to her secret soul that she wished she had stopped the dog before he had made such a hopeless mess of the rug. But she had anticipated a number of thrilling hours listening to the man as he mended away at the rags. Now, she was disappointed. He would not talk. But—he was very good to look at.

At four o'clock he said that he would have to be leaving, but that they—meaning his firm—would finish the work on the following day when the light would, perhaps, be better.

"Well—did you ever see such a good looking dumbbell?" asked Juliette when he had gone.

"He is not voluble," admitted her mother. "Perhaps he is temperamental, and this was his quiet day."

The next morning she was surprised to find another man at the door. He was decidedly foreign looking, and much more nearly the type Annette had described.

"Are you going to finish the job?" she asked him as he went to work.

"But—yes. The other man? Oh, he is a young friend of mine who writes for magazines and newspapers, and he is doing an article on rugs and their intricacies. I thought you would not care—would not perhaps be about—and I let him come to study that pattern at first hand. I apologize. I thought—"

"Oh, it is quite all right. I was just a bit curious," said Juliette, sitting down to watch the obviously much more clever artist who was now at work on her mother's rug.

The rug mender was all that Annette said he was—a veritable book of knowledge. He related experiences that equalled anything Juliette had ever read, and she enjoyed the two hours she spent in watching him.

But Juliette was young, and the vicissitudes of fortune had rendered her heart whole, but willing to be otherwise. Therefore, it was natural that her thoughts should turn to the handsome young writer of the previous day's meeting. It was all very thrilling to cultivate the mind, but a little romance into the bargain would add to the charm of the situation.

"Your friend writes?" she asked, by way of an opening.

"Oh, yes—cleverly. He found this rug most interesting. Perhaps—would you let him see it when I have mended it?"

Juliette was delighted, but she spoke calmly. "Certainly. He may see it at any time."

It was nearly two weeks before he came to see the rug, and Juliette had a woman's intuition about his coming at all. He had found the same vague, intangible attraction toward her that she had found toward him, and—his story about rugs were merely a means to an end in this case.

Nearly a month after she had met him they were discussing an article he was doing. "You might find someone else you like while you are digging up the story?" Juliette suggested, teasingly.

"Never," he said firmly. "I have found the only girl in the world."

"And all because she let the pup make rags of her mother's best rug," laughed Juliette. For she had confided to him the villainy that had led to their romance.

INGENIOUS TRAILER TO CARRY THE LUGGAGE

From Dinard, France, comes this ingenious trailer for carrying luggage. One requires no strong imagination to visualize the number of uses to which the trailer can be put—we can see it being used extensively by campers, tourists and week-enders, to mention only a few.

ROAD COURTESY IS OFTEN NEGLECTED

Many Little Things Make Motor Traveling Most Difficult on Highways.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

When you are driving along a road and someone approaching from behind sounds his horn to pass, let him do so.

Many times when driving along the highway you may have noticed drivers give the signal to the car ahead and try to pass only to have the car on the right hand side speed up.

Jangle's Driver's Nerves.

It certainly jangles a driver's nerves when he finds the car ahead speeding up when he attempts to go by. There is no excuse for this sort of thing. If you want to pass, why should the man on the right step on the throttle and attempt to block you?

There is plenty of courtesy to be observed on the road besides mere theory. If we were more thoughtful of the other fellow, motoring would be a lot more pleasant.

Not Watching Road.

The other day a motorist reported that he was coming from Gary and was crossing the railroad tracks in South Chicago. There is a right angle turn there, and it is dangerous unless low speed is maintained. Coming around the turn a boy was observed driving a delivery wagon. He was taking about all the room to be had on the highway and when this motorist looked at him he found the chap was busily engaged in reading a letter and was not watching the road at all.

It is just such things as this instance that makes motor traveling hard and troublesome. If motorists would drive sanely there would be fewer disasters on the highways.

Remove Scratches From Car Body With Shellac

A car owner naturally takes pride in the finish of a new car and endeavors to retain its mirror-like luster as long as possible. But when work must be done on the car the finish often suffers. Often a button will scratch its way along a fender or the slipping of a screwdriver will leave an unsightly blemish. A method which has often given satisfaction, says the Automobile Digest, is to apply several coats of thin shellac until the scratch has been completely filled. When the last coat has dried it is rubbed with crocus cloth and a little olive oil, just enough to rub out the ridges where the new and old coats join.

Crocus cloth, used extensively by jewelers, is a polishing cloth of a much finer grade than the finest emery cloth and will rub down a surface without the semblance of a scratch. After no signs remain of where the two coats join, a rub-down with a good body polish will render the touch-up inconspicuous and restore the surface to its original appearance.

Plan to Keep Windshield Clear in Moist Weather

It is always annoying when at the last moment one is in a hurry to take up a meal or coming from out-of-doors into a warmer temperature, to find the lenses of one's glasses suddenly clouded with steam.

Prevent this by washing the glasses perfectly clean. Dry them on a soft cloth, and then rub with a cloth which has been moistened with a very small amount of paraffin oil. All that is needed is the thinnest film to coat the surface, yet not enough to attract dust. This coating prevents the moisture touching the glass. It is convenient to have a cloth ready prepared. The same plan is excellent to keep the windshield of the automobile clear in damp weather.

Carbon and Compression

European automobile race drivers are experimenting with pistons that are raised and rounded at the top. They call this doming the pistons and find that it increases compression and power by forcing the gas vapor to occupy a smaller space when compressed. This is exactly what happens in the average motor (only on a smaller scale) when carbon cakes on the piston tops. But the carbon pre-ignites the gas and thus wastes power. Knocking proves it.

Refilling Pressure Type of Grease Gun Is Easy

Refilling the pressure type of grease gun, such as is used in conjunction with modern lubrication systems on automobiles, is a slow and tedious procedure as well as disagreeable because of the amount of grease that is deposited on the hands during the process.

An improved method of filling, which was devised by a Washington (D. C.) motorist, is illustrated. It is simple enough to warrant adoption by any motorist who objects to having to fill the gun with his fingers or a stick, and is also a quicker method.

The filler is simple, a flat strip of sheet metal, fitted with a wooden handle on the upper end. The blade part passes through a slot in a cap that is of the right size to fit the grease-gun barrel. The handle, blade, and cap may be made of any available materials such as a file handle, a strip of galvanized iron, and a metal cap top.

In operation the filler is inserted in the can of grease and turned continuously while it is being pulled out. The grease in the shape of a cylinder adheres to the sides of the strip. The filler then is placed in the grease gun, the cap is pushed down over the barrel, and the blade is slipped out, thus leaving the contents inside the gun. Popular Science Monthly.

Cheaply Made Filler Saves Time in Charging a Pressure Gun With Grease.

Bad Plugs Cause Missing and Jerking of Motors

There are few things more annoying to the motorist than a missing, skipping motor. Besides the certainty that this condition is imposing a serious strain upon the engine, clutch, transmission and the rest of the propelling system of the car, due to the irregularity of the power impulses, it means increased gasoline and oil consumption and carbonized cylinders. Too frequently motorists are prone to suspect the carburetor and start to tinker with the adjustments, when, as a matter of fact, there is nothing the matter with the mixture. The whole trouble may be due to uneven spark gaps, caused either by bending the electrodes unintentionally in removing or cleaning the plugs, and sometimes in replacing them, or by the points becoming pitted to such an extent that the gap is materially widened. By spacing the gap so that there is a space of one thirty-second of an inch between the actual firing surfaces of the two points this condition may be quickly and easily corrected.

Dangers of Carbon Monoxide

One of the dangers not commonly known to automobile owners is that from carbon monoxide, a deadly gas given off from the exhaust pipe. Because of the fact that many automobile campers build their tent as a part of their automobile, they should know the danger that exists from this odorless, colorless gas. Never run the engine of your automobile without making sure that you are receiving plenty of fresh air. The best rule to follow is never to run the engine in any enclosed place, for any length of time.

An Improved Pipe Vise

A pipe cannot be held securely in the ordinary type of bench vise, as the jaws permit only a single line contact on each side of the pipe. By using a monkey wrench, with the jaws placed along the axis of the pipe, the effect produced is almost the same as that of a pipe vise. The wrench should be set so that it bears on the pipe only on the edges of the jaws.

Make Ring Spreader

An efficient piston ring spreader can be made from one-quarter-inch round stock with one-half of each piece hammered flat and the ends bent, says the Automobile Digest. The two ends are bolted or riveted together and when inserted in the ring slot will permit spreading the ring so that it can be removed over the head of the piston.

To Those Who Fail

"All honor to him who shall win the prize."
The world has cried for a thousand years;
But to him who tries, and who fails and dies,
I give great honor and glory and tears.

Give glory and honor and pitiful tears
To all who fall in their deeds sublime;
Their ghosts are many in the van of years,
They were born with Time in advance of Time.

Oh, great is the hero who wins a name,
But greater many a many a time
Some pale-faced fellow who dies in shame,
And lets God finish the thoughts sublime.

And great is the man with a sword undrawn,
And good is the man who refrains from wine;
But the man who fails and yet still fights on,
Lo, he is the twin-born brother of mine.

—Joaquin Miller.

Canadian Towns Given Mother-Country Names

The giving of the name of "Wembley" to the latest railway station in Canada, 15 miles southwest of Grand Prairie, Alberta, is another illustration of the homely method the Dominion has often adopted of naming new towns after persons and places in this country, says London Tit-Bits. Ontario, for example, has a Windsor a Woodstock, and a Chatham, as well as a London-on-the-Thames in Middlesex county.

Prime ministers are commemorated in the same way: There is an Asquith postoffice in Saskatchewan, a Bonar Law station in Ontario, and a Beaconsfield and a Gladstone in Manitoba. Kitchener, in Waterloo county, Ontario, earlier known as Berlin, was renamed in 1916. Lethbridge, Alberta, bears the name of the first president of the Northwestern Coal company who was once a partner in the firm of W. H. Smith and Son; whilst Revelstoke, British Columbia, commemorates the first Lord Revelstoke, of Baring Brothers, whose taking over of the first bond issue of $15,000,000 of the Canadian Pacific railway was an event of importance in the history of the Dominion.

Canine Good Fireman

Did you ever hear of a dog whose whiskers never had a chance to grow because he had a mania for putting out fires? Brownie, the beautiful three-year-old collie owned by Albert H. Allen of Worcester, is such a dog, says the New York World.

Light a match within his hearing. Zip! Brownie has snapped it from your hand before the flame fairly caught. Light a bonfire in the yard. As soon as he sees the flame Brownie, with a bark and a yelp, is on it pawing like mad, scattering the burning pieces of paper and heedless of sparks in his fur, scraping the dirt until not even a wisp of smoke remains. And he loves a light lunch of live bees.

Outside of that he is the most natural, play-loving dog in the world.

Historical Ring

The ring which Queen Elizabeth gave to the earl of Essex, the one which the countess of Nottingham so cruelly withheld when the earl lay under sentence of death, is said to be the very ring which Elizabeth gave to her cousin, Mary Stuart, when the latter married Darnley. The ring was made for a lady's finger and was afterward enlarged. It was set with a sardonyx engraved with a portrait of the queen. Many people have claimed to possess that fatal ring, but the ring which is exhibited as having belonged to Lady Frances Devereaux, daughter of Essex, is thought to be authentic.

AUCTION SALES

Articles of Good Merchandise Given Away by Aer-O-Plane Merchants.

Why not send the Weekly Union-Herald to that absent friend or relative as a gift?

The Weekly costs only $1.50 for twelve months and would prove a source of great pleasure to the absent one throughout the whole year. Nothing else could be bought for that amount of money which would be appreciated so much as this weekly letter from the old home town and country.

This would also be a good time to renew your own subscription, as for each dollar paid on subscription on either the Daily or Weekly Union-Herald we give sixteen dollars in Aer-O-Plane bonds—16 to 1—William Jennings Bryan's ratio for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. For example; if you pay $1, we give $16 in bonds; for $2, we give $32; for $3 we give $48; for $4 we give $64, and so on. We do not give bonds for any payment less than one dollar.

Nothing brings surer relief to inflamed eyes than a wash with boric acid water. And one thing that its user must remember is to have the preparation free from any foreign particles, however minute, or they will cause irritation. The boric acid should be thoroughly dissolved in water that has been boiled and cooled.

Something Else to Do.

The Change

"Times have changed," said old Festus Pester. "In the good old days of yore, when a wagon broke down in the road we used to gather around it and put in several hours apiece inquiring how the contretemps occurred, sympathizing with the owner of the vehicle and recalling and describing in the most minute detail sundry incidents of similar character which had transpired in the past. But nowadays when a motorcar blows out a tire we go right on. Eh-yah!—times have changed, and for the worse. Most people these days have no more sympathy than so many snapping turtles." —Kansas City Star.

Three armed robbers drove their auto head-on into the paymaster of the American La France company at Bloomfield, N. J., and laid down a smoke screen to cover their escape with $8,600.

Sir Peregrine's Prejudice

Joe Coyne, the American comedian who has been for years a star of the London stage, had an adventure with a new-made knight last summer. This knight—call him Sir Peregrine—refused to rent his cottage at Maldenhead to Mr. Coyne because the latter was an actor. "Sir Peregrine," the house agent explained, "rented to an actor once before, and there was a great deal of unpleasantness." "Well, you tell Sir Peregrine," Mr. Coyne retorted, "that if he believes in condemning a whole class for one individual, he might remember that Sir Roger Casement, knight, was hanged."

Alfred E. Smith, Jr., 22-year-old son of the governor of New York, was married to Miss Bertha Gott of Syracuse, whose father is an engineer on the New York Central railroad. The couple eloped.

Modern Slavery.

There is no legal and formal slavery now in any Christian country. It survives in a mild form in most Mohammedan countries. The peonage system of Latin American countries is not much different from slavery, but rests upon a different theory. The peon is not supposed to be owned as property; he is supposed to be working to pay a debt which he owes the master.

Strategy and Tactics.

Our word strategy is from the Greek strategos, meaning army leadership. It primarily means the disposition and higher direction of land, sea and air power in war. It is often confounded with tactics, but there is a difference. Strategy includes the general direction of a campaign, the higher leadership, while tactics deal with the actual handling of troops and ships and the disposition of forces in the battle area. Strategy is the science of military position and of the combination and employment of means on a broad scale for gaining advantage in warfare. Tactics is the art of maneuvering vessels and troops in the immediate presence of the enemy, practically in the battle area.

ven To Children—Annuities Provided For Relative and Secretary.

lumbus, Dec. 29.—An estate, valued at $75,000, is disposed of by will of the late James E. Campbell, former governor of Ohio, probated Monday morning by Judge Z. Bostwick, of the Franklin county probate court. The Campbell homestead at 78 Hamilton avenue is given to a daughter, Jessie Campbell Coons, with the instruction that she deed it to some philanthropy of her own choosing, according to the terms of the will.

An annuity of $2,800 a year is given by the will to Mrs. Ledora S. Coons, a relative by marriage, with provision that in case her daughter, Mrs. Bessie Owen Wendt, survives her, she shall receive an annuity of $1,500 a year during her

The governor's farm in Delaware county is given to his son, James Edwin Campbell, Jr., and to his children. An annuity of $1,800 is also given Matilda Heinrich, the former governor's secretary.

The remainder of the estate is given in trust to Andrew Owens Campbell, Jessie Campbell Coons, and John Myers Taylor, with full power to invest the estate and distribute the proceeds among Elizabeth Campbell Taylor, Andrew Owens Campbell, Jessie Campbell Coons and James Edwin Campbell, Jr. The will was made May 17, 1922, and provides that if any child shall make an effort to set the will aside that child shall receive nothing from the estate.

ALL-AMERICAN

FOOTBALL TEAM

For 1924 Is Picked By Walter Camp, Former Mentor At Yale University.

(United Press.)

New York, December 30.—Walter Camp's All-American football team for 1924 is published today by Collier's Weekly.

No more than one man from any one eleven was selected for Camp's first team and the "big three," Yale, Harvard and Princeton, are not represented. Luman of Yale and Diehl of Dartmouth are left off all three of Camp's elevens.

The selections of the famous former Yale mentor follow:

First eleven—End, Bjorkman, Dartmouth; tackle, McGinley, Penn.; guard, Slaughter, Michigan; center, Garbisch, Army; guard, Horrell, California; tackle, E. Weir, Nebraska; end, Berry, Lafayette; quarterback, Stuhldreher, Notre Dame; halfback, Grange, Illinois; halfback, Koppisch, Columbia; fullback, Hazel, Rutgers.

Humor In the Classroom.

Ethel, who was ten years old, was studying her reader, and learned that fish are placed in brine before they are dried and prepared for sale. After explaining that brine is very salt water, the teacher asked why the fish were placed in it. Ethel's face was illuminated with sudden understanding, and she promptly replied: "Because they are used to salt water."

Only Popularity Worth While.

I wish popularity; but it is that popularity which follows, not that which is run after—it is that popularity which sooner or later never fails to do justice to the pursuit of noble ends by noble means.—Lord Mansfield.

HEALTH ADVICE

Washington, Dec. 29.—(U. P.)—How to be healthy in the midst of holiday eating, dancing and other merriment is told by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, head of the U. S. Public Health Service, who advises the following precautions:

If you must stay up late, don't do it in overheated and ill ventilated rooms.

A temperature near 68 degrees with sufficient atmospheric moisture is conducive to mental and physical well being.

Don't abandon regular exercise. Walking or riding tends to counteract the over-eating co-incident with the holidays.

Dancing is a beneficial exercise, but don't let it curtail your sleep. The temptation to overeat is great, but let your intelligence overrule your palate.

Don't let the excellent radio programs keep you out of bed.

Oldest United States Post Office.

Erected in 1568, the post office building at St. Augustine, Fla., is believed to be the oldest structure of the kind in the country. According to official records in the "Archives of the Indies," at Seville, Spain, the building was purchased by the king of Spain in 1604 from Gonzalo, Mendez, former governor of Florida, who erected it. The place was purchased from Mendez for $10,000 as a residence for Gov. Pedro de Yderra and his successor. In requesting that the purchase be made, Governor Yderra wrote the king that the house in which he lived was built over the sea, and was so cold and damp that two former governors had died in it.

Effective Treatment.

Mrs. Arris—Yer want ter take care o' that cold, Mrs. Green. Yer ought to git a pennorth of ukerluptus from the chemist, put it in a jug o' boiling water, 'old yer 'ead over it, and ignore it.—Pearson's Weekly.

Took Time to Prepare Work.

The more one reads of the great war the more one must appreciate the fact that Victor Hugo's immortal description of the battle of Waterloo was not written until 1861, or 46 years after it happened, and time had been given for the dust to settle. It was 37 years after Waterloo that Tennyson wrote "Bury the Great Duke With an Empire's Lamentation."

Better be safe than sorry

Buy a Buckeye Incubator, and buy it now. Get started early making profits. If you've been using an inferior incubator, don't throw good money after bad by setting good hatchable eggs in a machine that won't hatch them all. Don't try to save on the price of a cheap machine. Get a Buckeye—the incubator that nearly a million users swear by. It is guaranteed to hatch every hatchable egg—with practically no cripples or weaklings. Just the biggest, finest chicks you ever grew.

Don't gamble—play safe! You can have a Buckeye in any capacity from 65 to 600 eggs. Don't put it off. Come in and decide now.

Effective Trap for Mice

When setting a mouse trap, try tying the bait in a piece of muslin. There is a certain amount of curiosity in a rodent that compels him to gnaw through the muslin to get the bait, and the tug at the muslin is sure to cause the spring to close the trap.

Prehistoric Ugliness

Coal's Uncertain History.

The story of coal is a very uncertain one. No one seems to know when it first began to be used for fuel. All through the centuries it pops in and out of English literature as something taken for granted, and when it was finally found well in the van of the great industrial expansion of a century or more ago it occasioned no special comment.

Grass Growing by Electricity

Electric lights have been used successfully at the Jumping Brook golf club, in New Jersey, to grow grass on the greens at night, and thus shorten the delay in putting the course into service. Grass lighted at night grew four inches in three weeks, while grass on the unlighted portion of the green grew but one inch in the same period. Twenty-four thousand-watt globes with special reflectors were hung four feet from the ground to give a continuous, even spread of light. On the lighted portion the seed came through in five days, while seed sown on the unlighted part of the same green did not germinate until two days later.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Still Worse

"Great guns, Gap!" ejaculated an acquaintance. "What pears to be the matter? Has yore wife had a back-set, or something that a-way?" "Worse than that," sadly replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "The doctor says she mustn't do a lick of work for two months, anyhow. And I don't know who in the nation is going to get the winter's wood in—the children say they won't, and I'm all down in the back till I can't turn a tap. Pears like we've got to freeze and starve whilst we're adoling it."—Kansas City Star.

Insulate Handles of Pliers

In working about electrical connections it is frequently desirable to insulate the handle of the pliers to prevent the possibility of receiving a shock. This may be readily accomplished by placing a piece of heavy wall rubber tubing over each handle.—Automobile Digest.

The Reopening of Congress Finds It On Hand For the Farmers.

With the re-assembling of Congress the Grange organization of the country has very promptly put its fighting clothes on to strenuously oppose several legislative projects that are likely to force early attention at Washington. Five specific measures which the Grange will fight to the limit, and which it will probably have a chance to fight at the coming congressional session, are free seeds, a sales tax, ship subsidy, extravagant Federal appropriations and irrigation and reclamation projects in the Far West. On all these issues the attitude of the Grange is clearly defined and the membership are a unit in their opposition. It is expected that of the above-named measures the sharpest fight will come over an attempt to enact a sales tax, though it is expected that the free seeds policy wiped out last year will be again strenuously fought for by those who have defended it in the past.

The National Grange will continue its legislative offices at Washington and will organize its energies thoroughly throughout the country in opposition to these and other phases of pending legislation, as well as in advocacy of a constructive legislative program for the benefit of the farmers.

A Condition Which is a Menace.

The New York police department reports that 65,000 girls disappear in the United States each year and that there many more which are not reported to the authorities. Every community throught the country, it is said has its stories of girls gone wrong and of heartbroken fathers and mothers. Very few of these cases get into court because the victims shrink from exposing their shame to the public gaze. The literature shows that well dressed but agreeable men are ever on the alert for their victims and in a church in Buffalo, New York a well dressed woman operated and in one case almost succeeded in decoying a beautiful girl who was in that city seeking employment.

HARTMAN THEATER

The only inimitable De Wolf Hopper will open a three day engagement at the Hartman theater, Columbus, starting next Monday night, January 5, with a matinee on Wednesday presenting the ever popular Gilbert and Sullivan operas, "The Mikado" and "H. H. S. Pinafore." Mr. Hopper comes to Columbus surrounded by a company which, with a few unimportant exceptions, remains the same as when it was formed over three years ago, since which time it has been playing almost continuously. Although almost forty years have passed since the Gilbert and Sullivan operas were first given to the public, their reception wherever Mr. Hopper has presented them has proved beyond a doubt that their immense popularity has not been diminished by their passing into middle age.

The two operas chosen for presentation in Columbus were selected only after the desire of many local music lovers had been consulted. In these days of too much jazz, it should prove a welcome relief to again hear "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring," "A Wandering Minstrel," "Taken from the County Jail," "Three Little Maids From School," "Titwillow" and others in "The Mikado" and a dozen or more excellent numbers in "Pinafore."

A feature is a singing chorus of thirty selected voices. In "The Mikado" which will be presented on Monday and Tuesday nights Mr. Hopper will be seen as "Koko" and in "H. H. S. Pinafore" which will be given on Wednesday matinee and night, he will be seen as "Dick Deadeye." Between acts of "Pinafore," Mr. Hopper will recite "Casey at the Bat." Complete productions of both operas are carried. Mail orders are being received now.

Dense Philippine Forests.

You may cut an entrance into a Philippine lowland forest and so dense and high is the overgrowth that you feel as though you might be in a vast cathedral with only subdued rays of light entering here and there through window panes of heavily stained glass. The sun is completely obscured and it is impossible to tell the points of the compass. A twilight gloom pervades everything and it is useless to even guess the time of day.

CLEVELAND STRUCK WITH CRIME WAVE

One Person Was Slain, Three Are Wounded and Three Safes Looted of $7,000.

(United Press.)

Cleveland was swept by a wave of crime over the weekend.

One person was slain, three were wounded and three safes were looted of $7,000 in one of the most serious crime outbreaks here in many months.

Adam Rapenchuk, 38, grocer, was killed early by gangsters who used an icepick and revolvers.

Mrs. Carmelia Muni seriously wounded Mrs. Constance Sorcha when she found the latter riding in an auto with her husband, George Muni.

Miss Sara Brannon was wounded in a shooting affray at an east side home and police are hunting Henry Fierhoff, as her assailant.

Carl Bercher, 22, was stabbed during a midnight dual with a young man who escaped. The fight followed a dance.

Yeggs looted safes in the Sank Baking Co., and in two Piggy-Wiggly stores. They escaped.

NEW FACTS ABOUT ANCIENT AMERICA

Pre-Columbian Apartment House Yields Store.

Washington, D. C.—Neil M. Judd, leader of the National Geographic society's expedition to Pueblo Bonito, the pre-Columbian "apartment house" of Chaco canyon, New Mexico, has brought back to Washington an amazing array of exquisite art objects and domestic utensils which shed new light on an early metropolis of Indian America.

Perhaps the most beautiful piece in the collection is a turquoise necklace of 2,500 pieces and four pendants—the only complete specimen of such a necklace known. The method by which the Indians ground down the tiny pieces, and bored them out to be strung on sinews, has won the admiration of modern jewelers who have seen it. The four pendants are remarkable specimens of turquoise, deep blue, and with them, Mr. Judd said, he could have purchased every Indian horse in San Juan county.

Jewels Mounted With Pine Gum. Other unique objects of art are jet rings, perfectly rounded, on which are mounted tiny carved turquoise birds. The mounting was done with pine gum, which lasted through the ages the rings lay buried in the pueblo ruins.

To get these, and other tiny pieces, the geographic explorers have sifted tons of debris, after building a miniature railroad, and set mule-drawn steel dump cars to work hauling out the rubbish.

Recovered by this tedious process are some of the closest woven and finest specimens of Indian basketry yet discovered. To preserve these required the utmost dexterity, for often upon exposure a zephyrlike breeze would dissipate the specimens. The hope of preserving them lay in waxing them immediately upon their exposure.

Historically one of the important finds is a double basket, the like of which has hitherto been unknown in ruins other than cliff dwellings, and the use of which has not yet been determined. It may furnish another clue to piece out further the habits, customs and religious beliefs of these aborigines. Although they left no written words, nor even any pictograph records that can be deciphered, they attained a civilization as interesting as the early cultures along the Nile and in Mesopotamia, yet distinctive from all Old World peoples. Already the daily life of the Bonito dwellers has been pieced out patiently in great detail.

Rouge Still Intact.

"That object looks like a 'vanity box,'" remarked one geographer who viewed the collections.

"Not only that, but here is a bit of the rouge the Bonitos used," replied Mr. Judd, and he displayed a lump of reddish clay, which still will color the flesh. These "makeup" devices were used by the Bonitan men, however, rather than their women, and they served principally for the beautification of participants in their dramatic religious ceremonies.

Pipes also are in the collection. Some of these were "pleasure pipes" resembling very much the short, large-bowl English models. Others resemble cigar holders, with flaring bowls, and these were used to "make clouds" in the Bonitan's kivas or worship chambers.

Objects which shed light on the economic habits of the Bonitan men are the flint knives, which are chipped down with infinite skill and patience; and bone needles, used in sewing skins.

The broad area of communication of these ancient peoples is disclosed by objects found in their "apartments" which were brought from points as distant as the Pacific coast and the valley of Mexico.

Woman 100 Years Old Does Own Housework

Grand Ledge, Mich.—"I came to have glasses fitted, not my age," Mrs. Adella D. Pickens, one hundred years old, told an optometrist recently when she came here from her home near Vermontville to get new glasses.

"I'm too busy to think about my age," she said, "but I want the glasses to read with in my spare moments when I'm not busy with housework."

Mrs. Pickens lives with her only remaining child, a bachelor son, and she does all her own housework. She has had five children. Recently she decided it was cheaper to buy bread than bake it, but feared her friends would think she was getting lazy if she didn't bake, so she continued to make her own, and it's mighty good bread, too, her neighbors say. Her active life has kept wrinkles away and she does not appear more than sixty years old.

She has been a widow since 1861, when her husband went to Kentucky to get a sick brother and himself fell sick and died.

"Barracks-Room Language" Plea Aids British Soldier

London.—British military law recognizes the fact that soldiers are able to outbursts of profanity, an when a private of the First royal dragoons was charged at an Alderhot court-martial recently with using subordinate language toward a sergeant, he was acquitted on the ground that the expression he used was common barrack-room language.

Aunt Callie left her twins with Sonny's mother while she went to shop. Sonny was having great fun running his auto back and forth over the kitchen floor, when mother told him he must put the car away and play with something else, as he was making too much noise, and would waken the babies. Sonny, obeyed, pouting, and mother went on with her work.

Aunt Callie finally returned and saw Sonny lying on the floor with his head on his arm.

"What's the matter, Sonny?" she asked, as she noticed great tears rolling down his cheeks.

Health for Busy Men

I am going to buy a car and drive it to business so I will get some exercise. I figure the bracing three-mile walk from a parking place to the office is just what my system needs. It is evident that I am overeating. Starting tomorrow, I am going to lunch in the most expensive places. That is really the most convenient and cheapest way to take off weight. The doctor says I need more sleep, but I am afraid that will have to wait. Supple Pelts for Paris' Fur Wraps

Caracul, Astrakhan, Mink and Barunduki in Lead; Brown Is Popular.

No dissertation on furs is ever complete unless it contains some reference to the fact that the fur coat is something more than an ornamental luxury—that it is a decidedly utilitarian article and over a period of years may even develop into an economical acquisition. Constant repetition of this thesis, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Herald, has borne fruit in recent years, and the fur wrap, which once graced only the shoulders of the affluent few, is today a conventional part of the moderately income wardrobe. Even the prevalence of fur trimmings on cloth coats and dresses has not sated the steadily increasing feminine appetite for the all-fur cloak.

The popularizing of this essential item of the winter outfit has subjected it to the whims of the mode. It was not always so. In the not so distant past, the fur coat was distinguished per se—the mere fact that a coat was fashioned from some fine pelt overshadowed all other considerations. It mattered not whether the wrap was long or short and there was no set dicta concerning the kind of fur or its color. Only its silhouette conformed—and that somewhat vaguely—to the mandate of the mode.

The present situation is entirely different. Coats of mink, seal, ermine, chinchilla and even sable are no longer epochal acquisitions, and the chic of the fur cloak is quite as dependent upon style as it is upon fabric—a natural consequence of the widening vogue for this type of dress. Choose Flaring Model.

The most difficult problem—if you are contemplating the acquisition of a new fur wrap this winter—is to decide upon the silhouette. Paris has enthusiastically risen to accept the flared outline in every type of costume this winter, but there is admittedly a wide divergence of opinion concerning the lines of the fur coat.

The potency of the widened knee and hemline as a factor for this winter and next spring is unquestioned, but the hesitancy of the fourrere in adapting this innovation is due to the fact that the average woman expects her fur coat to conform to the fashions of more than a single year. As a consequence, the models offered are mixed—some are straight, some are moderately flaring and some show a strikingly distended effect beginning at either the knee or the hem.

Black Cloth Ensemble, Separate Tunic of Ermine, Matches Collar, Cuffs.

line. All of these are en vogue this season and the responsibility for selecting the silhouette which shall be equally modish next season rests entirely with madame. Nor is her dilemma solved by settling upon the most attractive type, although that is obviously an important consideration.

The first outline to be eliminated in the quest for the new fur coat is the strictly straightline model, which is clearly nearing the end of its cycle. Little exposition is needed on this point. Straight simplicity has served its purpose and seen its day, and while the effect of the new silhouette may not be radically different, it will nevertheless vary enough in concept to force the old outline out of the picture.

The extremely flared treatment should also be avoided. While such a silhouette will very probably be adopted during 1925 for dresses, an exaggerated wide hemline is always awkward in coats and particularly inelegant in fur coats.

Distended Effects Differ.

This leaves only the moderately distended silhouette, which is patently the most practical outline to select for this season's fur coat. It is distinct from the models of recent winters and although the flare is very evident, it does not interfere with the necessarily graceful lines of coat or wrap. It conforms to the present trend of the mode and it will conform as well to the dictates of fashion during the winter of 1925.

The manner of achieving the fur coat flare is quite different from the methods employed on dresses. The girdle—of paramount importance with cloth models—is conspicuously missing. The effect is frequently arrived at by merely cutting the coat slightly wider toward the bottom at the front. The coat may then be held by the wearer so as to create the impression of a straight line from shoulder to hem, or it may be permitted to hang in its natural position, in which case the flare becomes apparent. For the lady who still is skeptical over the future of the wider silhouette, the flaring flounce or peplum types are suggested, as from either of these models a change back to the straightline can be accomplished with comparatively little remodeling and without a great deal of expense.

Considering next the actual pelts, their most significant characteristic is suppleness and this has encouraged ensemble costumes which are based on fur as a keynote. In some instances there is a fur coat and a dress partly of fur and partly of silk or wool, while in others a fur-trimmed coat of fabric will have an accompanying dress in which an almost full-length tunic is developed entirely of fur while the underslip, which shows for only a few inches at the hemline, is of fabric. In this case the coat of the ensemble is full length. Another kind of fur ensemble consists of a knee-length coat of fur and an accompanying dress of cloth bordered with a deep band of fur to match the cape. This band is of a depth that reaches to where the cape ends. The effect is that of an entire fur garment. The cape is lined with cloth in the same color as that of the dress and narrow fur cuffs finish the long, tight sleeves.

Dress and Coat, Black Cloth.

With a costume consisting of a dress and coat developed from black cloth, the latter having a high-standing collar and deep cuffs of summer ermine, there is an accompanying tunic, developed from the ermine, which is detached from the remainder of the dress. On blistering days this tunic may be worn, while it may be discarded when the temperature is mild. This is a very practical idea and one which will no doubt meet with considerable favor on this side of the Atlantic—it has already attained popularity in Paris.

Another striking ensemble model combines two different furs. The coat is three-quarters length and developed from black broadtail while the dress is of black satin edged with lynx and embroidered in pearls.

New names and familiar names are met among the pelts of the present season. Sable, ermine and chinchilla remain the triumvirate of the evening mode while mink is a dominating factor for occasions du jour and du soir. Astrakhan, because of its pillable texture, is one of the most important daytime pelts. Other modish skins include barunduki, or chipmunk, leopard, pony-skin—its first appearance in several years—caracul, broadtail, seal, mole, squirrel and gazelle. Raccoon, of course, still retains its collegiate appeal.

A straightline model of barunduki is cut on perfectly straight lines as far as the silhouette is concerned, but a slightly flaring effect is achieved by the trimming consisting of bands of monkey fur which flare out when the wearer walks. Collar and cuffs are of monkey. Surplice closing and low waistline are important features.

Brown is the smartest color for the Paris furs and even those skins that are naturally of a different hue are being dyed all tints of brown, ranging from beige to the more decided shades. The finer pelts invariably retain their natural colors and the dyeing process is confined to the more inexpensive skins.

The length of the new models varies from three-quarters to full, and includes, of course, the seven-eighths coats. The short fur jacket has been comparatively neglected this year—only Premet makes a genuine feature of it and even with this designer the longer types easily predominate.

HERO KEEPS TO MOUNTAIN HOME

Willie Sandlin Modest, but Bravery in War Won Him Many Medals.

Lexington, Ky.—Kentucky has the most modest hero of the World war.

She also has the "heroest hero" of the same war in the selfsame individual and her claim to this distinction is attested by General Pershing and Marshal Foch.

The hero—he accumulated enough glory in one day to chalk off all the valorous deeds of most heroes and have enough left for ordinary citation purposes—hails from a section of Kentucky noted for fighters, and its very name is enough to throw a man's size scare into a timid chap.

Kentucky's star hero is Sergt. Willie Sandlin, from Devil's Jump Branch, Hell-fer-Sartin Creek, Leslie county, and he looks the part, with a wiry frame, determined jaw and keen eye, fearless as a fighter, but extremely shy at all attempts to exploit his deeds.

Willie—not a nickname but a full-fledged moniker found quite generally among the "Williams" of the Kentucky hills—was induced to come to Lexington for the Fourth of July celebration as the honored guest of Hugh McKee post, No. 677, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and was introduced by R. E. Lee Murphy, state commander.

Lost a Medal.

Mr. Murphy had considerable difficulty in introducing the modest hero, as Sergeant Sandlin had long since the war misplaced his citations and lost one of his medals bestowed by a foreign government. However, he still had the Congressional Medal of Honor—his own country's highest decoration—Medal Militaire from France and Croix de Guerre with palm, Italian War cross and decoration from Montenegro.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars elected him to membership in that organization for 20 years without payment of dues, with the promise that his membership would be renewed at the expiration of that time "if he lived longer than 20 years on the $10 a month allowed him by the veterans' bureau for the support of his wife, two children and himself."

In September Hugh McKee post will take him to Atlantic City to attend the national encampment if he can be induced to forsake his beloved Kentucky hills for a few days and face a barrage of admiring eyes at the national convention of foreign war veterans.

Sandlin's Citation.

Willie Sandlin's citation, though misplaced by a boy who has no taste for "heroing," is of record and, as issued by General Pershing, reads:

"Sergt. Willie Sandlin (2,078,108), Company A, One Hundred and Thirty-second Infantry. For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action with the enemy at Bois de Forges, France, September 26, 1918.

"Sergeant Sandlin showed conspicuous gallantry in action at Bois de Forges, France, on September 26, by advancing alone directly on a machine gun nest which was holding up the line with its fire.

"He killed the crew with a grenade and enabled the line to advance. Later in the day Sergeant Sandlin attacked alone and put out of action two other machine gun nests, setting a splendid example of bravery and coolness to his men."

The French citation from Marshal Foch, dated April 13, 1919, is the same in substance.

Military citations are terse. The two short paragraphs gave a condensed recital of one of the most thrilling chapters in history—the enactment and re-enactment of a single-handed charge upon six deadly machine gun nests that probably has no parallel in the annals of war.

Sandlin Advances.

Here is the story as it happened in one day:

The general advance was on. Six divisions were participating. Sandlin was in command of a platoon.

About 7 o'clock in the morning the advance was checked by a hot fire from a machine gun nest. An order to halt and lie down came along the line. Sandlin's men heard it and obeyed. Sandlin did not. He advanced directly on the machine gun nest, and at thirty yards threw a grenade. Three others followed and he then jumped into the pit. Three of the eight men were alive and gave battle. Sandlin killed all of them with his bayonet.

The line came up and Sandlin resumed command of his men. Half an hour later machine gun fire again caused the order to halt. Sandlin did not. He rushed this nest as he had the other, employing the same tactics. This time when his grenades were all spent there were four men still defending the nest. Another single-handed battle—and they were all dead, except Sandlin, when the line came up.

The third nest encountered was not reached until 2 o'clock. Just as before, Sandlin advanced upon it. His grenades in this instance wounded every man in the pit, but he had to dispatch two who still gave fight, as well as the others whose wounds had not proved immediately fatal.

Later that day Sergeant Sandlin participated in taking the strong point, which was German battalion headquarters. Many were in this affair and there was no individual credit given. To finish out the day Sandlin captured a hospital group and killed the lieutenant with the latter's own gun, which he wrested from him in a hand-to-hand fight. This pistol, a dagger, he has as a souvenir.

Among his trophies is a diploma taken from a German doctor whom he captured and "a few other tricks" that he brought home for the children to play with.

Enlisted From Breathitt.

He enlisted from Breathitt county, the only county in the United States where it was not necessary to draft men. He was gassed and wounded twice, once between the eyes with a grenade and once in the right leg with shrapnel.

In 1920 he was honored by the government with appointment to return to Europe on the graves registration service, and upon his return six months later was taken on a tour of eastern Kentucky by the state illiteracy commission. On the latter trip Sandlin urged his countrymen in the hills to raise the standard of education, pointing to his failure to secure a commission on account of lack of education.

Willie Sandlin loves the mountains of Kentucky. His Fourth of July speech in Lexington, quoted almost verbatim, proves it: "I am glad to be here. I thank you for your hospitality. When I was on the fields of France my heart was in the hills of Kentucky. I will now step aside and let you hear the real speakers."

Sandlin's speech was the shortest and the applause the longest on the day's program of Fourth of July orations.

He left the speakers' stand frequently during the exercises to dodge admiring eyes. When the speaking was over, he was urged to stay a week as the guest of the Foreign Wars Veterans, but he said: "Where's my grip? I must get back to the hills," and there he will remain until some influence causes him to leave his base temporarily. And it will not be the "hero business," as he is not built that way.

Mars Is Cool Spot, Scientists Declare

Cambridge, Mass.—The average temperature on the surface of Mars, except near the poles, is not unlike that of a bright, cool day on the surface of the earth, it was disclosed here at the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences.

In a paper read before the meeting, embodying observations made at Flagstaff, Ariz., last summer when Mars was nearest the earth, it was stated that the surface temperatures on Mars run from 5 to 15 degrees centigrade, or between 40 and 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

Measurements, the results of which were presented, were made on 24 nights by W. W. Coberly of the bureau of standards, Washington, and C. O. Lampland of the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, working with a new "thermocouple radiometer," an instrument capable of delicate measurements.

The brighter portions of Mars are cooler than the dark regions, the observations showed. Temperatures in the polar regions fall as low as approximately minus 70 degrees, centigrade—about 94 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

Temperatures of the dark phase of the sunrise side of the planet are also very low, probably reaching, it was said, about minus 60 degrees centigrade.

Parts of Petrified Giant Picked Up in Missouri

Carthage, Mo.—Residents of Bransville are much interested in the recent discovery of what seems to be parts of a petrified giant, and what is believed probably will give archeologists an interesting study of the prehistoric race which at one time inhabited the Ozarks. Many traces of the prehistoric race recently have been found in other sections of the Ozarks, and it is believed the petrified body of the giant found at Bransville probably was thrown up by volcanic eruption, which severed the body into the pieces which are now being gathered together.

The rocks were found on the farm of B. E. Kingen, late of Elsimore, Mo., in a timber patch one and one-half miles southeast of Bransville. West Plains physicians who examined the rocks state that the muscles and blood vessels are plainly outlined on the parts which are thought undoubtedly to be the petrified thighs and forearms of a man of giant stature. Ball and socket joints, thought to be the shoulders of the man, also have been found.

Near Species of Potato Found in Alaskan Island

Seattle, Wash.—A wild potato, which it is believed may develop into an Alaskan product of great commercial importance, was discovered last summer growing on the Diomedes Islands, Bering sea, by L. J. Palmer of the biological survey.

Specimens brought here are real tubers, more spherical than Irish potatoes, with indented eyes, and about the size of baseballs. These tubers are dug out of the ground after growing in the wild state and used extensively as food by the natives of the Diomedes.

The Department of Agriculture shortly will receive collections of the wild tubers for study and classification. During next summer experiments are planned at agricultural stations at Chena and Kodiak, Alaska, for its propagation. The islanders eat the tubers raw, baked and boiled and make the mashed pulp into a sort of bread.

GRAND JURY FOUND SIX TRUE BILLS

Body Was in Session Two Days and Examined 36 Witnesses in Eleven Cases.

The January grand jury after being in session two days reported their findings Tuesday evening to Judge Curtin.

Thirty-six witnesses were examined covering eleven cases. Six indictments were found and five cases ignored. Fred L. Fickardt was foreman of the jury.

The following persons were indicted:

Job E. Renick, operating motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Walter Baker, failure to provide Raymond Streets, failure to provide.

Cecil H. Kurth, rape with consent. Albert Johnson, operating motor vehicle while intoxicated.

KENTUCKIAN TYPICAL AMERICAN SOLDIER

His Record Speaks, but He Himself Is Silent.

Vegetable Gains Favor

The chayote, a popular vegetable in Mexico and Central America, is now finding favor in the Atlantic and Gulf states. It has been grown for more than a generation, under the names "vegetable pear," "mirliton," "mango squash," etc., in certain sections of the South. Being of vigorous growth and prolific yield, a single vine in a garden or yard will produce more than enough chayotes for an average family. It is an excellent fall and winter table vegetable.

The chayote is related to the cucumber and squash. It weighs from eight ounces to a pound, has a smooth surface, a fiber-free flesh and a delicate, agreeable flavor. It makes an attractive ornamental vine for training over porch or outbuilding, as it flowers profusely. The fleshy underground tubers are used in some places much the same as potatoes in temperate regions. Its foliage is devoured by cattle and poultry.—Pathfinder.

Africa Has Diamond Rush

When the government's commissioner recently uttered the last word in formally opening a new public domain and a line of flags fell to the ground there was a great rush of bronzed African runners for the banks of the Vaal river, the scene of Africa's latest diamond rush. A farmer had turned up sparkling stones with his shovel and soon was working on a claim that netted him $10,000 a week. The government proclaimed the area a diamond field and set a day for the rush. Along an 80-mile stretch more than 1,000 prospectors were at work within a few days.

"Every time we get the baby to sleep some 'bum buster' stops his car across the street to honk out his flapper queen," the o. f. m. laments.—Eldorado Times.

AMUSEMENTS

When the list of the best pictures of 1924 is made up, "The Enemy Sex," James Cruze's latest Paramount production, which was shown last night for the first time at the Met theater will have a prominent place at the top. The picture has all the elements of popularity and considered from every angle—plot, direction, acting, settings and photography is the embodiment of perfect screen entertainment.

It was adapted by Walter Woods and Harvey Thew from "The Salamander," Owen Johnson's wellknown and widely read novel and is a decidedly intimate "behind the scenes" story of society and theater life. Briefly it concerns the love adventures of Dodo Baxter, a chorus girl, who finds herself the storm center among five wealthy men who attempt various schemes to add her to their string of conquests. But she beats them all at their own game!

It is safe to say that the average film fan will agree that Betty Compson in her characterization of Dodo eclipses anything she has ever done before. It is a part to which she lends both beauty and dramatic skill and is the type of character that she can interpret just a bit better than any one else we can think of. Never before has she screened more beautifully, acted more convincingly or worn such striking clothes.

The production has been given a lavish scenic investiture, some of the interiors, especially those showing the party to which Dodo is invited and the theater shots, being the ast word in elaborate backgrounds. You may expect plenty of laughs as well as thrills. And there is action from start to finish.

The supporting cast is thoroly up to the fine work of Miss Compson. Percy Marmont as the drink-sodden youth; Huntly Gordon as the judge; Kathryn Williams as the judge's socially ambitious wife; Sheldon Lewis as the wealthy broker and DeWitt Jennings as the newspaper owner, one and all go to make up an apparently hand-picked cast.

"The Enemy Sex" is a MUST picture. You simply must see it!

Million Gift Provides

Theater for Yale 'U'

New Haven, Conn.—Prof. George P. Baker, who has been connected with the faculty of Harvard university for more than thirty years, will assume the headship of a department of dramatic art at Yale university, according to an announcement just made. It also was announced that Edward S. Harkness of New York city had given $1,000,000 to the university for the establishment of a department of dramatic art in the Yale school of fine arts. The fund will provide for the erection of a theater for performances of plays under the auspices of the department and of the university dramatic association.

According to the terms of the gift, Professor Baker will be aided by a distinguished staff for undergraduate and graduate instruction in the writing of plays, their effective staging and actual presentation.

The gift made by Mr. Harkness is but one of many educational benefactions of the Harkness family. Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness, his mother, donated the funds for the memorial quadrangle group of buildings at Yale, which were erected at a cost of approximately $6,000,000. On another occasion she made a donation of $2,000,000 to the university.

Early Fur Trade Had Plethora of Romance

The romance of the fur trade is not over. The wreck of the Hudson's Bay company's steamer Lady Kindersley, with a million dollars' worth of furs, in the Arctic ocean, was an adventure as thrilling as any on the sea.

Unlike the earlier vessels in the trade she was equipped with radio apparatus, which helped to acquaint the outside world with the plight of the crew. But when the voyager and trader of old struck out into the wilderness they left the world behind them and steered their course by the stars over river and plain. The most remarkable of these star gazers was probably David Thompson, the accuracy of whose boundary surveys remains undisputed.

The "Adventurers of England Trading Into Hudson's Bay" was the only corporate company which ruled over an area as large as Europe. With it will always be associated the name of Donald A. Smith, who, starting as a lad on the bleak coast of Labrador, where he spent 13 years, rose from the position of clerk to governor, and finally took his seat in the house of lords as Lord Strathcona, says the Toronto Globe.

But there was not much romance in his snowshoe tramp of a thousand miles to Lachine to consult a doctor about an affliction of the eyes which threatened blindness. One incident of his life in Labrador was revealed at a meeting of the railway committee of the house of commons when he was a member. An enthusiastic promoter wanted to build a railway from Quebec to Hamilton Inlet, which he declared, was an open port all the year round.

The old fur trader rose and remarked that was news to him, for he distinctly remembered walking across the inlet on snowshoes in the winters of the '40s. That, of course, killed the bill.

The romantic features of the company probably reached their zenith under Sir George Simpson, whose movements by canoe and saddle earned him the title of "fastest traveler in the north." Romance was continued for many years in the fiction of Reid and Oxley, and fortunately sufficient interest has been maintained in the real history of the fur trade to preserve the facts in many well known works.

Onion Only Eatable Lily

The chief value to man of the lily family, to which the onion belongs, is a purely ornamental one, says Dr. A. B. Stout, director of laboratories of the New York botanical garden, in the Detroit News. Doctor Stout is an expert on lilies.

A general survey of the true lilies and their near relatives reveals that the lily family contains relatively few plants of importance as food and fiber crops, says Doctor Stout. Of these the onions are perhaps most important. The young shoots of asparagus are among the delicacies of the spring season. Bulbs of certain of the true lilies are eaten by man, especially in China. The seeds of a Ruscus are used as a substitute for coffee. One member of the lily family, New Zealand flax, yields fiber. Several members yield medicinal products; of these sarsaparilla (from smilax) may be mentioned. The list of important economic plants in this family is, however, not a noteworthy one.

May Tell State Secrets

The European chancelleries are said to be anxiously awaiting disclosures which possibly may be made in the memoirs of Frau Katherine Schratz, the aged actress who for many years was the favorite and confidante of Emperor Franz Josef of Austria. She is popularly supposed to have had knowledge of the facts surrounding the murder of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and also secrets of international diplomacy preceding the World war. Frau Schratz has often been pointed to as the one woman who could keep a secret, but it is now reported that she is willing to consent to the publication of her memoirs.

To Katherine Schratz Francis Joseph is supposed to have divulged intimate secrets, which even his closest admirers did not know. The actress, who was a member of the Royal theater in Vienna when Francis Joseph met her, still lives in that city.

Insincere

John S. Sumner, superintendent of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, said in New York the other day: "The authors of erotic books and plays always claim that their work has a moral influence, that it makes for reform."

"These men remind me of a picture in an exhibition. It was a picture of a beautiful nude woman, kneeling, her head bowed."

"Fine, ain't it?" a man said. He consulted the catalogue and added: "It's called 'Repentance.'"

"Humph," said the man's wife. "You'd think if she'd repented, she'd put some clothes on."

To Preserve Wild Fowl

According to Dr. W. E. Nelson, chief of the bureau of biological survey of the United States government, the number of wild water fowl is gradually decreasing, but there are still more wild water fowl today than there are feeding grounds for them. Ducks get about 93 per cent of their food from vegetation and wild geese get 97 per cent. A move is on to establish feeding grounds in the sloughs and marshy grounds for them. Owners of such tracts are urged to sow wild rice, pondweed, red head grasses, wild celery, spatterdock and muskrass for the benefit of these fowls.

9. Neatness, spelling and grammar will count in the final decision.

In Memoriam.

Editor Union-Herald:—Jacob Myers Terfinger, son of Joseph P. and Sarah Weaver Terfinger, was born in Pickaway county, Ohio, November 17, 1848 and departed this life December 24, 1924, aged 76 years, one month and seven days.

He was united in marriage to Sarah Jane Phillips February 17, 1869, and to this union were born seven children five of whom are living: Mrs. Cora Dennis, of Columbus; Mrs. Florence Kirkham, of South Charleston; Karl, of Mt. Sterling; Clarence, of Five Points, and Mrs. Grace Long, who had been the companion of her father since the death of the wife and mother 22 years ago. One son, Charles Alfred, died in infancy and a daughter, Mrs. Alice Ater, at the age of 38 years. He also leaves 12 grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their great loss.

Uncle Jake, as every one knew him, always had a kind word of cheer for all whom he chanced to meet, always optimistic in his views, looking on the bright side of life, behind each cloud he saw the sun still shining. He united with Hebron M. E. church at an early age and was a regular attendant at church and Sunday school as long as health permitted making his light shine thru his daily walk of life.

The passing of Uncle Jake will long live in the memory of relatives, friends and neighbors. Funeral services were held at Hebron M. E. church on Friday afternoon, December 26, at 2 o'clock conducted by Rev. H. C. Gunnett, of Johnstown, Ohio, a former pastor, and close friend of the family. Burial was made in Hebron cemetery.

Card of Thanks.

The family wish to thank their neighbors and friends and all who so kindly sympathized and aided in the last illness and after the death of their father; especially the choir which sang the hymns he loved, and Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hosler, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Riggins, Knapp Bros., the Ladies' Auxiliary and class No. 8, of the Five Points M. E. Sunday school for beautiful flowers; Rev. Mr. Gunnett for kind, loving words and Mr. E. F. Snyder for kindly service.

Albatross Wonderful Flyer.

The albatross spends its life, with the exception of a few weeks given each year to nesting, entirely at sea, and is on the wing practically all the time. Furthermore, it does not progress by flapping its wings, as most birds do, but seems to soar at will, rarely, if ever, giving a stroke of the wing, seeming to need no impetus. At nesting time, which is early in the year, the albatross repairs to an isolated island, such as one of the Crozet islands, in the southern Indian ocean, or Tristan da Cunha, in the South Atlantic ocean.

The Musk Rat.

The musk rat, as its name would indicate, is a species of rat. It is found nowhere but in America. Its body is shaped like that of the ordinary rat, but instead of the short, close hair of the land species, it is covered by a thick reddish-brown fur, and because it lives much in the water it has webbed toes. Although very awkward on land, it is lively and playful in water, and is a great swimmer and diver.

Kindness Makes for Service.

It was once commented upon by Joseph F. Smith that, wherever men are kindest to their animals, there do those animals give the best service to men. As example, the writer cited Holland and Denmark, where the utmost affection and care are bestowed upon the cows, which there give freely of their milk, and the dairying industry flourishes.

HUMORIST MADE HIT
AT GRANT BANQUET

Mark Twain's Deft Compliment to Great Soldier.

The first meeting of Samuel L. Clemens and General Grant—men most unlike, yet destined to be closely associated—was in 1868 when Mark Twain was a newspaper correspondent in Washington. He had arranged for an interview with Grant, says the Mentor, and had looked forward to it with lively expectations, but when he gazed into the imperturbable, unsmiling face of the soldier he found himself for once in his life with nothing in particular to say. Grant nodded to him and waited in silence. At last Mark Twain's native resources came to his rescue.

"General," he said, "I seem to be a little embarrassed. Are you?"

That broke the ice, and all went well with them thereafter. In 1879 they met again. Meanwhile Mark Twain had become world famous, and General Grant had been President of the United States twice and had made a tour of the world, receiving an ovation in every land. On his return the Army of the Tennessee gave him a magnificent reception in Chicago, and the greatest men of the country were there to pay him tribute, Mark Twain among them.

Carter Harrison, then mayor of Chicago, was host and when Mark Twain came in introduced him to Grant. The general greeted him gravely and then looking Mark calmly in the eye, said, "Mr. Clemens, I am not embarrassed; are you?"

On that night, when Logan, Hurlbut, Vilas, Woodford, Pope, Robert G. Ingersoll and other brilliant men spoke, Mark Twain, although he was not called on until half past two in the morning at the end of a long list of speakers, was the bright particular star. Mark Twain had responded at many public dinners most happily to the toast "The Ladies," but for this occasion with whimsical fancy he chose "The Babies." His opening words were:

"We haven't all had the good fortune to be ladies; we haven't all been generals or poets or statesmen; but when the toast works down to the babies we stand on common ground."

At that the tired audience waked up, and with each sentence the enthusiasm of the assembly grew visibly and audibly. When he reached the beginning of his final paragraph, "Among the three or four million cradles now rocking in the land are some which this nation would preserve for ages as sacred things if we could know which ones they are," the vast audience waited breathless for his conclusion: "And now in his cradle, somewhere under the flag, the future illustrious commander-in-chief of the American armies is so little burdened with his approaching grandeurs and responsibilities as to be giving his whole strategic mind at this moment to trying to find out some way to get his own big toe into his mouth—an achievement which—meaning no disrespect—the illustrious guest of this evening also turned his attention to some 56 years ago."

He paused, and the vast crowd had a chill of fear. After all he seemed likely to overdo it.

No one knew better than Mark Twain the value of a pause. He waited long enough to let the silence become absolute; then, wheeling to Grant himself, he said with the dramatic power of which he was master: "And if the child is but the father of the man, there are mighty few who will doubt that he succeeded!"

The crowd responded with a roar of appreciation. Even Grant's iron serenity broke, and he shook with laughter.

Chorus Girls and Dogs

"One of the amazing things to me," remarked a reservation clerk in a hotel, "is the number of chorus girls who carry dogs. They come in here with dogs of all breeds in their arms or on leashes, and then assume a woeful, injured air when we mention the fact that dogs are not allowed in guest rooms. At first they are indignant, resenting in a way—or making a great bluff at least—our attitude regarding their pets. We are obdurate and explain that we have a place in the basement where dogs are cared for, but the majority leave rather than be separated from their canines. Why, if we let the chorus girls, and others with speaking parts take their dogs to their rooms we could in a short time boast of running the biggest kennel in the world."—Detroit News.

Civil War Tobacco

A plug of tobacco found in Libby prison when General Sewell and his forces entered Richmond, is now owned by Wilmer T. Nields, of West Chester, Pa. It is about two inches by three in size and formed of Virginia tobacco mixed with licorice and molasses. It is as fresh as the day it was pressed into form. No one has sampled it as yet, nor is any one going to, if Mr. Nields has his way.

Suited Sailor

She became engaged to a handsome foreigner. He was a nobleman in his own country.

One day he told him how she had to fight for her love.

"My father," she said, "is always saying that he would give $1,000 for me never to see you again."

The nobleman jumped to his feet and cried: "Is he—is he in heels office now—yes?"

MEETING IN THE ARMORY
JANUARY 22

More Farmers and Their Wives
Will Attend This Annual Gathering Than Ever Before.

The fourth annual meeting of the Pickaway Farm Bureau and affiliated community organizations will be held Thursday, January 22, in the new Armory building, West Franklin street. This will be a real farmers day in this city. More farmers and their wives will attend this meeting than any other agricultural meeting ever held in the county.

Early in the morning all officers and managers will be on hand, arranging final details for the big meeting and in conference with township directors and community leaders from all over the county. It will be necessary to be prompt and work according to a strict time schedule.

Promptly at 10 o'clock the stockholders of the Pickaway Grain company will meet in the auditorium of the Armory for their annual meeting. The manager of the Grain company will give his report on the year's business, the annual dividend will be declared and the board of directors for the coming year will be elected. This will be the only separate meeting during the day, but directors of the Livestock company, Cream association, Farm Loan and Service company will be in committee rooms at the Armory during this hour. At 11 o'clock everybody will be assembled in the auditorium and will be called to order by President Edward C. Rector and reports of Secretary R. E. May, Treasurer S. B. Chambers, Manager G. H. Armstrong, Service Manager Harry J. Briggs and County Agent John H. Bragg will be submitted.

After dinner there will be reports of the committees, election of officers, executive committee and election of delegate to annual state federation.

The address of the day will be made by Murray D. Lincoln and distribution of dividends of Farm bureau, Grain company, Cream association, Farm Loan, Livestock and Fertilizer associations will be made.

Destroyed Builders' Bills.

Nobody ever will know how much the great palace of Versailles cost France under the reign of its builder, Louis XIV. Louis became badly scared when he received the bills, because he had heard a good deal about some disturbers who were whispering that even a king had no right to spend so much money for a palace to house his friends when the nation over which he ruled was starving. So Louis did what many a purchaser of expensive hats has done since—tore up the bills and burned them before anybody could look them over.

How to Attain Old Age.

Sir George Reid's golden rule for the attainment of old age is worth a place in the Office Window as a corrective to all war valetudinarians: "I have aimed at health and happiness, and when confronted by a formidable obstacle I have first tried to knock it over; failing this, to get round it; if not, then under it; and if all these maneuvers failed I have been content to lie down in its grateful shade, lauding it as a beautiful blessing in disguise."—London Chronicle.

Probably of Some Age.

Clarence was always doing things that brought exclamations of surprise from his mother. This seemed to puzzle the little fellow. One day he asked: "How old will I have to be, mother, before I quit doing things that your are surprised at?"

Jeannie's Revenge

The train was just starting, and Jeannie was congratulating herself on the prospect of having a compartment to herself, when a smartly dressed man rushed on the platform and sprang into her carriage, not a minute too soon.

"Just did it, after all," he muttered, as he flung himself into a corner seat and prepared to enjoy the evening paper.

Jeannie leaned forward.
"I'm sorry, sir," she said, "but—" "I never listen to beggars," said the smartly dressed one, curtly.

"But, sir—" "If you attempt to address me again I shall report you to the guard!" He snapped.

Jeannie said no more.
In due course the train stopped at Killietochle and Jeannie prepared to alight.

"I dinna care if you report me or not," she said, slyly, "but I maun be having that pun o' butter ye've been sittin' on for the last sax miles!"—London Tit-Bits.

Valuable Switch Engine

A new locomotive, designed to meet special switching conditions in freight yards, consists of a complete electrical plant on wheels. It is smokeless and silent. An oil engine is directly connected with the generator and the current made by the latter is passed to four motors, each geared to one of the axles. The engine is of 300-horse power, burning oil, and each of the four motors on the four axles has a rating of something less than 100-horse power. As ordinarily used in the switching service, this engine consumes from 20 to 25 cents' worth of fuel oil per hour.

POSTOFFICE OFFICIALS ARE SENTENCED

To Federal Prison At Atlanta For Embezzlement—Get Thirteen Months Each.

(United Press.)

Toledo, Jan. 6.—Four Northwest Ohio postoffice officials, two postmasters, one assistant and one clerk, were sentenced to thirteen months each in the federal prison at Atlanta by Judge John M. Killits today after they had pleaded guilty to mis-appropriating government funds.

The officials are H. L. Dehn, Trobridge postmaster, accused of taking $527.33 in money orders; Peter Martin, Milbury postmaster, charged with stealing $755.10 in government funds; Dorr L. Gessner, assistant postmaster at Fremont, said to have mis-appropriated $199.96 in postal funds, and Graham P. Hill, clerk in the postoffice at Upper Sandusky, charged with taking a small amount in Liberty Bonds.

The officials will be removed to prison immediately.

Velocity of Light.

The velocity of light was obtained by the Danish astronomer Roemer in 1676, by observing the eclipses of Jupiter's moons. When the earth was nearest to Jupiter, the eclipse appeared about eight and one-half minutes too soon for the calculations, and when the earth was most remote from Jupiter, they were about eight and one-half minutes too late. Roemer concluded the reason to be that it required 17 minutes for light from the planet to traverse the diameter of the earth's orbit, which measured the difference of the distances of the earth from Jupiter. This calculation has since been verified, and proves that light travels about 186,000 miles a second.

His Life in His Work

Dr. Edouard Branly, the noted French inventor, who is called the "father of wireless," is eighty years old. He rises at six o'clock each morning, takes a street car at 6:55 for his laboratory, where he arrives at seven. Then he puts in 12 hours of hard work stopping only a few minutes at noon and in mid-afternoon for a bite to eat. Doctor Branly is a commander of the Legion of Honor, but never wears his decorations because, as he explains laughingly, he is afraid he would be arrested by the first policeman, who saw the ribbon on a man with such shabby clothes.

Caribou in Abundance

Caribou have been seen in very large numbers this season in the northern part of Yukon territory. Old-timers say that the main herd must have numbered tens of thousands, while in some of the smaller herds that had broken temporarily from the main herd there were hundreds and sometimes thousands. Trappers, prospectors and traders in isolated parts, as well as Indians, who are so dependent on native meat, are well supplied this season.

Can't Lose That Dollar

In 1882 M. C. Miller earned his first dollar and carved his initials on the coin before spending it at a circus. Thirteen years later the same dollar returned to him as carfare while a street-car conductor, says the New York World. A little later he lost it, but it turned up a third time, being paid to Miller, now running a filling station in Florida.

"Side Line" All Right.

Those women who can do something should not be ashamed to be up and doing it. There is a dignity attached to all honest labor, no matter how ordinary or commonplace it may be, and those of us who are qualified to help out at home will feel better and stronger—providing, of course, our family will in no way suffer as a result—to be up and at our honest little "side line."—New York Evening Telegram.

AMERICAN LEGION

OPENS NATION WIDE

Drive For Five Million Dollar Endowment Fund.

(United Press.)

Chicago, Jan. 6.—The American Legion has opened a nation wide drive for a $5,000,000 endowment fund. The interest on the fund, $225,000 annually is to be used to help wounded veterans of the world war, and the children of soldiers killed in the war. Charles G. Dawes, vice president-elect is on the honorary committee of the legion drive.

Noted Colored Woman.

Sojourner Truth was a colored woman born in New York state, probably about the middle of the eighteenth century, as she was middle aged at the time of Washington's death, in 1799. That was not her real name, but she assumed it for reasons of her own. She was a slave all her life until set free by an act of the New York legislature in 1827, abolishing slavery in that state, July 4, 1827. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote a life of her.

Initial Step to Victory.

There is a courage which is only another name for faith. Many a battle is lost before the soldier leaves his tent. The first step to victory is to believe that the battle need not be lost at all.—Rev. Hugh Black, M. A.

"The Man in the Moon"
The appearance of a face on the moon is due to the elevations and depressions on its surface, the so-called mountains of the moon, or craters. There being no atmosphere on the moon, the contrast between light and shadow is very great, and the arrangement of these shadows cast by the vast number of craters which cover the moon's surface gives the appearance of a face on the moon's surface.

Limburger Cheese
The unpleasant odor of Limburger cheese is due to specific fermentations induced during ripening. This cheese is made from sweet milk, the curd being formed into cakes about five inches square and two inches thick and not pressed. The main cause of the putrefactive fermentation is the extremely moist condition in which it is kept.

Dewberry Crop Can Be Made Profitable

Special Methods of Training and Culture Used.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Any fertile soil with good drainage and a good supply of humus to retain moisture is suitable for growing dewberries, a close relative to the blackberry, found in many markets, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Although suited to many types of soils, it is grown most extensively on coarse, sandy loams. Its deep-rooting system enables it to obtain moisture from such soils better than many other crops.
At present the dewberry is grown more widely in North Carolina and New Jersey than in any other states, but it is adapted to nearly all parts of the country. It is grown commercially also in Michigan and New York. In these four states the skill of the growers in using special methods of training and culture make the crop very profitable. In North Carolina and New Jersey special methods involve training to stakes, in New York and Michigan to wire trellises.
Dewberry plants are usually set during the winter and early spring in the South and in early spring in the North. As the tips of the canes that root in the fall continue to develop until very late more mature plants will be obtained in the spring. For this reason fall planting is not practiced.
The Lucretia is the leading variety except in the Gulf Coast states. Texas prefers the Mayes and California raises large quantities of Gardena.

Dr. Fletcher Sees Abuse by Roadside Markets

Dr. S. W. Fletcher, head of the horticulture department of the Pennsylvania state college, recently returned from Atlantic City, N. J., where he addressed the annual meeting of the American Pomological society in the national organization of horticultural interests and appealed for a reorganization which would increase the effectiveness of the national body. Doctor Fletcher also read a paper on "Pennsylvania Experience in Local Marketing of Fruit." He quoted several examples of Keystone orchardists who have been far more successful in marketing their product locally than by methods previously used.
"Roadside markets are increasing, and are useful on main traveled highways, especially near large cities," said Doctor Fletcher, "but unless something is done to prevent the abuses that are now creeping in—such as the purchase of fruit in the city wholesale market and selling it as home-grown fruit at the roadside market—they are likely to fall into disfavor."
Doctor Fletcher first attended an annual meeting of the American Pomological society in 1897 at Columbus, Ohio. Since that time he has continued to take an active interest in the proceedings of the fruit growers' organization.

Hens Need Comfortable Houses and Free Range

It never pays to overcrowd hens—they need a comfortable house, dry and roomy, with plenty of fresh air and sunshine. How to give them all this is told by the United States Department of Agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin 1413, "Poultry House Construction, just issued.
A plain shed-roof house is most economical and most satisfactory. It should be so arranged, says the bulletin, that it will be easy to clean and for general convenience.
It is easier to keep the birds healthy and to reproduce the stock under the colony system, if the birds are allowed free range. Breeding stock, especially growing chickens, should have plenty of range. Hens used solely for the production of market eggs may be kept on a very small area.
Copies of the bulletin may be had free, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Farm Hints

Lime farming pays.
Is your tractor "shedded"?
The soil on a good farm gets better every year.
It's never too late to start keeping records on your cows.
Plenty of oyster shell and grit helps keep the texture of egg shells good.
A setting of good, pure bred eggs is about the best investment a farmer can make.
A chicken doesn't drink very much at a time, but that's no sign that it doesn't need any water.
The experiment stations save farmers a lot of money by helping them to avoid costly mistakes.
You cannot get early layers unless the pullets are hatched early. March chicks also bring good prices as broilers.
It is not advisable to sow sweet clover at the time of sowing rye, as the clover is not likely to make growth enough to permit it to live over winter.

The News That Wasn't

By WARRINGTON DAWSON

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

IT WAS a quiet day in Gareth's newspaper office near the Bourse. He hadn't found a single news item worth cabling to the newspapers he represented in Paris. He had called at the foreign office that morning, to be shown some very interesting editorial comments from the previous day's press. He had gone to the consulate, only to be informed that the wife of a famous jockey was ill. He had telephoned to various connections of his, to find they were either out or else half asleep.

He knew that a correspondent was paid not only to occupy the public's time but to save it, and that nothing is so valuable to a properly conducted paper as its space.

Gareth passed over in his mind the remaining places where he might possibly go news-hunting. None was so likely a news-center, however, as his own telephone.

Only yesterday it had brought him a news tip of importance. One of his routine connections, a French reporter on a great conservative paper who seemed to know more about revolutionary matters than the law allowed, had rung him up. There was a little Communist scheme afoot which might yet come to something or perhaps quite a good deal. What made this information all the more interesting was that not a single line about it had yet been printed in France.

If there were developments, he could not hear of them save here, and from this same connection. The whole affair had been kept ultra-secret. It might indeed be compromising for anybody to know anything about it at all; though Gareth as an American didn't bother his head about that. But he naturally wanted to know more if there were more; and he was the less disposed to risk missing another chance at the story because his first version of it hadn't gone entirely right. A folded slip of paper lying on his desk told why.

He decided to take things easy, waiting in his office for the next hour or two, after which there would be more afternoon papers in. He set to work catching up with some belated correspondence.

The door behind him opened so gently that the clicking of his typewriter drowned out the noise. As an intrusive foot trod on the aged planks of the floor, however, they groaned out their misery. And as Gareth turned, he sprang up instinctively.

The intruder didn't look menacing. But there was an expression in the inner corners of his eyes behind his glasses which struck Gareth before he could observe anything else, and told him that not only news but possibly adventure had sought him out.

"I am a fellow-journalist come to greet you," he said. "I want to discuss the Communist situation. I am interested in it, on behalf of my paper, the Universal of Lisbon."

His language was well-enough chosen, if his French accent was atrocious. But in a wide experience with continental journalism, Gareth had never before come across a specimen of this kind.

The strange bird piped up again: "You have obtained some valuable information about the Communist organization in France. I shall be glad to confirm it in my paper, so I have come to ask your source."

For some moments Gareth's hopes loomed high. Here perhaps was a plotter or even better, a counter-plotter. He refused to divulge his source, and then waited for developments.

"How did you happen to hear about it at all?" Gareth asked quietly. People had to know Gareth long and intimately before they could begin to suspect what might lie behind one of his quiet questions.

"Why!" exclaimed the Portuguese. "The story was telegraphed back from the United States to my paper. It appeared with your name and made a sensation in your country before attracting widespread attention in mine. But its accuracy is challenged. My paper now calls upon me to substantiate it, or else we must discredit it throughout Portugal and Spain, too. My denial will be telegraphed back here. Will you risk being dishonored—when all you need is to mention your source?"

"I could understand your hearing that news," Gareth said. "What puzzles me is, how you know it's mine."

He picked up from his desk the bit of official paper which lay there and, slowly unfolding it, spread it out. It's hand-written text informed him that his telegram had been suppressed by order of the censorship at the discretion of the ministry of the interior.

Gareth allowed the man time to read, and even to speak. But nothing happened. Then he added quietly:

"You see my news wasn't printed yesterday, and wasn't telegraphed back to appear with my name in the morning's European press. It is being printed at this moment in America, though, never mind how or why. So there's one thing I'd like to know from you. When and where did you see my suppressed telegram?"

The police spy effected his retreat in outraged majesty. He had scowled to reply, of course. But he could not resist a Partisan shot as he banged the door.

"I am a Portuguese journalist," he said. Gareth willingly allowed him have that last word.

MERCHANDISING AND LEGISLATIVE

Problems Affecting Ohio Retail Industry Handled At Midwinter Meeting Here Today.

(United Press.)

Columbus, Jan. 6.—Merchandising and legislative problems affecting the Ohio retail industry, were handled at the midwinter meeting of the Ohio Retail Secretaries' Association here today.

William Nelson Taft, editor of the Philadelphia Retail Ledger, will be the principal speaker tonight.

The association includes among its members, secretaries of various local retail groups in the state as well as secretaries of state retail bodies and other organizations with retail divisions.

SAMUEL D. HUTCHINS DIED MONDAY MORNING

Columbus, Jan. 5.—Samuel D. Hutchins died this morning at Mt. Carmel hospital, following a surgical operation he underwent several weeks ago. Deceased was in his 69th year.

Surviving him are his wife; four sons, J. J., L. A. and A. F., of Columbus, and William of South America, also a daughter, Mrs. D. W. Gray, of Columbus, who are nephews and niece of Rev. Father M. M. Meara, of St. Joseph's cathedral. Three grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held in St. Joseph's cathedral Thursday morning. Interment will be made in Calvary cemetery.

When Rev. Father Meara was rector of St. Joseph's Church in this city, deceased was a frequent visitor here, his children making their home here for a time.

Memorial to Fallen Heroes.

In Japan is a tall stone monument erected as a memorial to the horses killed in the Russian-Japanese war. It stands in the public park of the town of Sano in the Tochigi prefecture. A photograph of the townsfolk gathered about it shows the headman of the district attired in a Prince Albert coat. General Viscount Oshima, one of the heroes of the war, wrote the principal inscription, from which it appears that 1,260 horses from the county and vicinity are so remembered.

PNEUMONIA

Caused Death of Samuel J. Morris. Funeral Services Friday.

Samuel J. Morris died in Washington township Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The deceased was born December 5, 1849. He was the son of Joseph and Mary Shull Morris. His death was due to pneumonia.

Mr. Morris was a widower and leaves no children.

Of his immediate family there are living two sisters and three brothers. They are Mrs. Charles Kibler, Argonia, Ohio; Mrs. George Morris, of Springfield; Isaiah Morris, of this city and Owen Morris, of Kingston.

The funeral services will be held at the Albright chapel Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. George Weir will officiate. Interment in Forest cemetery.

ARRESTED FOR NON-SUPPORT.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 7. (UP)—George Elwell, who in a clever moment hit upon the winning name for a national magazine and won $20,000 and national fame, was arrested here today on the charge of neglecting his children.

He was released on bond of $500 after his arrest in a local hotel.

The charges against Elwell were brought by Mrs. Elwell who said most of prize money melted away via the "high life" route. She said he gave $10 and $15 tips in restaurants.

ELECTRONS HEARD BY NEW RADIO DEVICE

One Hundred Thousandfold Amplification Used.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Experiments by which scientists have been able to listen to the movement of electrons, the smallest particles of matter, were described here by Dr. A. W. Hull of the research laboratory of the General Electric company, at the annual meeting of the American Physical society.

The vacuum tube amplifier in which the amplification is carried to a hundred thousandfold, and with which a millionfold can be reached, makes this possible, Doctor Hull stated. The sound produced by the electrons is caused by bombardment of the plate by electrons, released from the hot filament. It is these electrons which carry the current and which make the operation of the tube possible. The noise is therefore a fundamental property of electron emission, a characteristic of the electron, according to Doctor Hull. The experiments have been conducted jointly by Doctor Hull and Dr. H. H. Williams of the University of Michigan at the university.

Called Schrot Effect.

The noise, due to the electrical oscillation which is set up by the impacts of the individual electrons on the plate, is known as the Schrot effect. The energy of each blow is extremely minute, but, like rain drops, the energies of the many individual impacts add, and their sum becomes very large. With sufficient amplification, Doctor Hull stated, the blows may produce a roar like that of Niagara.

The electron is the unit charge of electricity and the determination of its value is of the utmost importance. The oil drop method, devised by Professor Milliken in the physics laboratory of the University of Chicago, gave science its first accurate measurements of the charge of the electron. Accurate as the experiments are, however, it is desirable that they be checked by some independent method.

Milliken's method of measuring the charge of an electron is based on the influence of gravity and of electric charges on minute oil "droplets." These droplets are so small that the effect of gravity causes them to fall only a quarter of an inch in ten seconds.

In the formation of these small drops with an atomizer, occasionally one becomes charged through friction; for example: it may carry an additional electron. If, then, the droplet is between two electrically charged plates, it will behave differently from the uncharged particles, Doctor Hull stated. Those which are not charged will fall. The charged particles will be attracted to the positive plate. By the use of the proper voltage between the plates, these charged particles can be made to fall more slowly, held stationary, or caused to move upward. If two electrons, instead of one, are held by the droplet, the effect is doubled. Measurements made by this method give the value of the electronic charge very exactly. In recognition of the importance of this work, the Nobel prize in science for last year was awarded to Professor Milliken.

Opens Up New Field.

Doctors Hull and Williams have measured the charge of the electron in a different way, by means of the Schrot effect, and have opened a field for research which promises to add to the knowledge regarding the electron and its properties.

It was not such a long time ago that the electron was unknown, the speaker declared. First scientists had the molecule, itself so small that man's ability ever to see even one of the largest may seriously be doubted. Then came the atom, the minute integral part of the molecule. For a long time the atom was considered as the ultimate particle of matter. But each element presents a different atom. Science was not content to rest. It sought to connect all phenomena, and the electron was the result.

It was discovered that all matter is composed of electrons, the different substances resulting from the different properties possessed by the atoms according to the number and arrangement of the electrons they contain.

Saskatchewan Town Debt Threatens It With Ruin

Regina, Saskatchewan.—The little town of Battleford, whose residents are threatened with a possible levy of 5 per cent of their total assessments to satisfy town debts, has appealed to the Saskatchewan government to save it from financial ruin. The town owes about $700,000 to bondholders, of which approximately $300,000 is overdue. A judgment has been secured against the community by some of the creditors and as a result residents are confronted with a possible levy of 640 mills, or about three-fourths of the total assessment.

Army Mule Humiliated by Dappled Percheron

Kansas City, Mo.—The twenty-sixth annual American Royal Live Stock show saw the redoubtable army mule suffer a setback. A team of dapple gray Percherons won the pulling contest for teams under 3,000 pounds, hauling a load of 27,000 pounds 27½ feet and developing a pulling strength of 25 horsepower. They weighed 2,720 pounds. The mules, entered by the Quarter-master corps, Fort Leavenworth, and weighing 2,880 pounds, were unable to pull the load the required 27 feet.

Under the Floor

Revival of the covering of the floor in the Westminster abbey chapter house, the meeting place of the first house of parliament, has uncovered in the old tiling found beneath a veritable treasure house of historic information concerning the England of 700 years ago. Mingled with the designs and patterns were portraits of Henry III and other notables.

With these new glimpses into the lives of almost forgotten heroes, the floor revealed interesting facts concerning the making of tile. Red clay was pressed into a mold that had the design carved on its surface. While the clay was still damp it was removed and the depressions formed by the pattern were filled with white clay. After glazing and firing the pieces were ready for the floor.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

GRAND CIRCUIT

RACING DATES

(United Press.)

Cleveland, Jan. 8.—Stewards of the Grand Circuit winding up their 53rd annual session here late yesterday, adopted some new racing regulations, re-elected officers and announced the Grand Circuit dates for 1925.

Measures adopted provide for more discipline on the track and give added power to starters and judges.

The dates for 1925 are: North Randall, June 22 to July 4. Columbus, July 6 to July 11. Toledo, July 13 to July 18. Kalamazoo, Mich., July 20 to July 25. Aurora, July 27 to August 8. North Randall, August 12 to August 26. Readville, August 31 to September 5. Hartford, September 7 to September 12. Syracuse, September 14 to September 19. Columbus, September 21 to October 5. Lexington, October 5 to October 12. Atlanta, October 13 to October 17.

Cause for Thankfulness.

The first reason for being thankful in the morning is that you have lived to see the dawn of another day, with opportunities to finish something begun the day before and to begin something that you may be able to do better than you have ever done anything before.

Tobacco Growers Hit by Disease

Most Common Ailment Is Known as Damping-Off or Bed-Rot in Seed Bed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Conservative estimates place the annual loss to tobacco growers from diseases at $25,000,000, and controlling them is one of the biggest problems the planters have to contend with. All tobacco areas do not have the same troubles in the same degree, as there are differences in their climates and the kinds of tobacco they grow. In co-operation with the University of Wisconsin, the United States Department of Agriculture has prepared a bulletin that has just been issued as Department Bulletin 1256, Tobacco Diseases and Their Control.

Origin in Plant Bed.

A great number of diseases that cause serious damage in the field, says the bulletin, have their origin in the plant bed. Preventive measures, therefore, should be used in the preparation of the seed beds. The most common of these diseases is known as damping-off or bed-rot.

In the case of black root-rot the most serious injury follows transplanting to infested soils, although frequently much injury results from the occurrence of this disease in plant beds and the subsequent transplanting of infected plants to disease-free soils.

The mosaic disease of tobacco, which is very rarely noted or regarded as of any importance in the plant beds, usually originates, however, in the seed beds. Its presence there is largely responsible for the general field infections frequently observed in many sections.

Several Bacterial Diseases.

Recently it has been shown that several bacterial diseases, such as wild-fire, black-fire, and Wisconsin leaf-spot, some of which are very important in the districts where they occur, are in practically all instances traceable to plant bed infection. Many other diseases of tobacco may also make their first appearance in the seed bed.

The production of plants for transplanting entirely free from such diseases as mosaic, wild-fire, and black-fire is, therefore, highly important, since at no other point can their prevention be accomplished more efficiently or economically.

In the field as well as in the seed bed the principles of control for all diseases caused by bacteria or fungi consist essentially in preventing infection either by eliminating the parasite or else by safeguarding the host plants from its attack by spraying or by the use of resistant varieties. For nonparasitic diseases the principles of control lie in seeking to correct or to avoid the unfavorable soil or climatic conditions to which these diseases are due.

Copies of the bulletin may be had free, as long as the supply lasts, by addressing the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C.

Rhymed Ration Good for Various Farm Animals

Mangel-wurzels, so they say, are just the thing to make hens lay. They're succulent and good to eat, and best of all they are so cheap for chicken feed, and that's a thing that interests us all, by jing! And just a little acre field will fill the shed with a bumper yield. They make a bully cow feed, too, if they are ground or chopped in two. Just drop them whole in the chicken pens, some place near the laying hens, for the turnips keep them in good health, which constitutes a chicken's wealth; for a roopy hen, or one with cold, or one that's sick or gettin' old, will eat as much feed every day as the better one that pays her way. Some litter and some protein feed are also things that poultry need. Add skim milk and some good meat scraps, and mash, and shell, and this and that and the hens will lay more eggs each day, and instead of board will pay their way.—A Whittier.

Feed Hogs Tankage

Tankage is not a substitute for corn but should be used to supplement it in hog feeding. It replaces a large part of the corn and insures satisfactory and economical gains which the farmer with a short crop of corn cannot afford to neglect. At the present price of grain, tankage is probably the cheapest feed considering results obtained.

Don'ts for Dairymen

Don't milk with wet or dirty hands.
Don't fail to bed the cows so they will keep clean.
Don't forget the cows appreciate kind treatment.
Don't feed ill-smelling feeds just before milking.
Don't fail to cool the cream before putting it with other cream.
Don't forget that the pure bred animal can be kept just as cheaply as the scrub.
Don't forget that a little care in combing and cleaning the animals will be appreciated.
Don't forget that dairymen is one of the most profitable branches of farming if you give it your best attention.—C. H. Chesley.

Confucius Grins

By JACK WOODFORD

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

AH CHU rolled his eyes to the left and turned his head slightly. In this position he could see directly behind him. Although he had not seemed to do so he had carefully scanned the entire banking floor.

When the payer shoved out the large package, containing one hundred dollars in one dollar bills Ah Chu tucked them into one spacious sleeve and smiled at the teller.

"You better watch your step," cautioned the clerk in a kindly manner. "Bad business for you to carry a big wad of paper money around like that."

"Ah Chu alla-time watch 'um careful, son," the oriental replied as he turned and shuffled away from the window. Going to the counter in the center of the floor he withdrew the package from his sleeve, laid it upon the desk, broke the strap and meticulously counted each bill.

Out into the busy swirl of West Madison street emerged the laundryman. A dozen rough-looking characters stood about on the outside of the bank, loafing up against convenient posts or talking in low tones to each other at the curb. A policeman walked slowly back and forth, idly swinging his club while eyeing the men who stood about austere. Seeing Ah Chu the officer promptly walked toward him.

"You're one d—n fool chink!" he growled. "How many times have I got to tell you not to do your banking on Saturday nights? This is the third time I've seen you here this evening. Are you trying to commit suicide?"

"Ah Chu velly sorry," mourned the Chinaman. "No come no more tonight." With a grimace not wholly pleasant nor thankful he shuffled along until he came to the third cross street.

Before he had gone two blocks his sixth sense informed him that some one was following. Glancing carefully backward, he saw a large, flashily dressed, bulky individual swinging along at an ever-increasing pace. Hurrying his steps, Ah Chu managed to reach a block devoted almost entirely to business and, consequently, more brilliant as to incandescent illumination than the surrounding streets. Deliberately he walked completely around the block. When he had arrived at the point from which he had started, Ah Chu approached a slanting section of plate glass window and appeared to gaze at the display of heathen men's furnishings within; in reality he was using the glass as a mirror in which to watch for the reflection of the individual whom he had seen following, knowing that if the man should appear now there would be no question as to whether he was, indeed, being followed.

Sure enough, in a moment the heavy-set figure appeared upon the glass, not ten feet behind where Ah Chu stood. Turning quickly, the Chinaman vanished into an alley, running with all speed the moment he had attained its embracing shadow.

Nick Haggerty ripped out a curse as he attempted to see in the sudden dense blackness of the alleyway. After about two minutes his eyes were attracted by a sudden light. A door had been opened and, standing silhouetted against the light which streamed forth from within was the figure of the man he had been following, his hand still buried in the sleeve of his tunic, clutching, no doubt—

Nick smiled to himself in the darkness as he pulled from the inside pocket of his coat a short length of pipe and crept stealthily toward the lighted doorway. Before he could reach a spot close enough to strike, the Chinaman disappeared within and Nick heard the door slam. He sprang toward the point, lest he again lose his bearings in the blackness. Outside the door he paused; the light flashed from the crack beneath it. As Nick applied one eye to the keyhole the light flashed out. The outlaw fished in his pockets for keys for just such emergencies.

Lead pipe in one hand and revolver in the other, Nick cautiously felt his way down the stairway just inside the door. Hardened as he was to such nocturnal excursions, Haggerty began to feel a strange new sense of dread creeping over him.

Suddenly the light flashed on and Nick, blinded for a second, threw up his arm protectively. With a sickly attempt at a nonchalant grin he dutifully dropped the weapons as the spokesman of the armed group of a dozen orientals commanded him to do so.

Ah Chu pushed open the door of Isadore Cohen's establishment with the air of one long accustomed to the place. Without a word of unnecessary explanation he approached the counter and began digging in the folds of his loosely fitting garments.

"Oy gevaldt!" exclaimed Cohen, "four times in vun night?" Ah Chu ignored him.

"Velly fine gun," he argued, laying down the almost new army Colt; pop-light, alle-same new; necktie pin, velly fine; many keys, unlock any door; clock, chain; pen, much ink in handle; knife, all gold; cigarette-box, cigarette-handle; you giv'm twenty dollar for whole bunch—yes? I giv'm you velly cheap this time. This man he hav'm two-hundred-fifty dollar money, too, so I giv'm you velly, velly cheap, yes! Hurry up, Mr. Cloen, bank he still not close; maybe can get there once more tonight—yes?"

Giving and Doing.

It is the giving up of life that saves it. When we stop calling it our own, seeking to hoard it and enrich it for ourselves, and begin bestowing it in loving interest and service upon others, we find that it has suddenly become richer and stronger than ever before.

Then and Now.

Said the facetious teller: "In the olden days when the automobile was designated as 'one lugger' I suppose the chap who owned one had a good deal of trouble with his lung, but now his chief complaint is either gas-tritis or that tired feeling."

For the Typist.

Instead of adjusting the operator's chair to the height of the table on which a typewriter is placed, a typist may now have an adjustable table. The top of the new stand may be raised or lowered like the top of a piano stool.

Oldtime Fire Alarms.

Fire alarms came into use in medieval times. It was the custom in many of the towns to have a watchman stationed on a high building whose duty it was to look for fires. As soon as he saw one he gave warning by blowing a horn, firing a gun or ringing a bell.

Cooling Air in Mines.

To cool the air far under ground, and thereby permit the miners to work longer shifts, the owners of a European coal mine compress air at the surface of the ground and pipe it through the workings.

SHIFT IN LEADING PORTS
SHOWS COUNTRY'S GROWTH

More Than Four-Fifths of Total Tonnage Passes in and Out of Sixteen Harbors.

Washington.—A surprising readjustment has occurred in the past few years in the order of the leading ports of the United States. Following the war several ports which had ranked far down in the list suddenly sprang into importance. There has been unprecedented shifting of trade routes. According to the latest reports more than four-fifths of the entire tonnage of the United States passes today in and out of some sixteen harbors scattered along the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard, the Great Lakes and the Gulf of Mexico.

Few people, even among those well informed in such matters, could name the first sixteen ports of the United States in the order of their importance or even tell which were the first five.

New York, of course, easily dominates all other ports, although the proportion of the commerce of the country which passes in and out of the Narrows is not generally realized. Today some 52 per cent of the foreign trade of the country is handled in New York harbor. The second port of the United States, both as regards its tonnage and the value of its shipping is New Orleans. The city at the entrance to the Mississippi river naturally takes toll on the immense volume of shipping which passes down this valley to the Gulf of Mexico.

It will come as a surprise to learn that the third port in the United States in point of tonnage is Port Arthur, Texas. The great tonnage is largely due to the shipments of oil from this region. The fourth port as regards tonnage is Philadelphia. Less than a century ago Philadelphia led all other American harbors.

The fifth port is Galveston, Texas. It is surprising to find that among the first five ports no less than three should be found on the Gulf of Mexico.

The list of ports contains several other surprises. The next port is Baltimore, which is significant of the growth of the Chesapeake as an outlet for the country's wealth. Next in turn comes Buffalo, which profits by the great tonnage of the Great Lakes. The eighth port is Boston. Next comes Norfolk, which has enjoyed great recent prosperity. The tenth port is Baton Rouge.

The first port on the Pacific on this list is San Francisco, which ranks eleventh, with Portland, Ore., next; Chicago is thirteenth. It is interesting to find Los Angeles is next on the list. Although Los Angeles is California's largest city it is 20 miles inland, and has no natural harbor. Newport News ranks fifteenth and Seattle sixteenth. It is clear that at the present rate of development the next few years will witness many surprises in the rise of several widely scattered seaports.

Discovers Norse Record
of 1010 A. D. in Northwest

Spokane, Wash.—Two discoveries, which he believes will confirm deductions from inscriptions on rocks in the Pacific Northwest that a Norse expedition visited this part of the country in 1010 A. D., were announced here by Oluf L. Opsjon, Norwegian scientist of this city, upon his return from a trip into northern Idaho and eastern Washington.

Opsjon said he had found a runic inscription telling of the burial of a Viking in armor and had located the supposed grave and had learned of the location of a carved stone tablet giving the history of the early Norse expedition. As early next spring as official government supervision can be obtained the grave will be opened and the tablet excavated, he said. Snow in the hills where the finds were discovered will prevent earlier investigation.

Trace Fish Development
by Means of Its Scales

Palo Alto, Cal.—Fish can be trailed in their wanderings around the oceans in a manner not unlike police methods of tracing automobiles by their license numbers, according to Charles H. Gilbert, professor of zoology at Stanford university.

Professor Gilbert explains that "scales render a report on the bringing-up of the fish, as well as furnish birth certificates and automatic age recorders, and show the approximate age, weight and size at any time during its past growth."

A few scales are scraped from the back of a salmon and stuck in a book opposite a number. A small aluminum tag bearing this number is clamped on the fish's tail and it is thrown back into the water.

Under Doctor Gilbert's direction, more than 10,000 salmon were tagged in this way last year.

Forbid Smoking in Mecca;
Say Tobacco Is Unholy

Cairo.—There will be no further smoking in Mecca, the Moslem Holy City, now that Mecca is under the reign of the Moslem puritans, the Wahabites.

The Wahabites have seized 100,000 cigarettes and burned them on an auto-laf in the bazaar of Mecca, according to a report received here. They have also prohibited the further importation of tobacco, and the rolling or manufacture of cigarettes or cigars within the limits of the Holy City.

According to the doctrines of the Wahabites, the puritan sect of the Moslem faith, smoking is as great a sin as drinking.

St. Louis Joins Cities Which "Say It With Architecture"New Masonic Edifice Expresses City's Higher Aims

By EARL PANCOAST

ANOTHER evidence of America's determination to "say it with architecture," and one of the most impressive, is in the erection of the new Scottish Rite Cathedral for the Valley of Missouri at St. Louis.

In design, plan and choice of materials the cathedral is in harmony with huge edifices planned in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh and elsewhere to express the spirit of American cities and institutions.

Mammoth Interior

An auditorium that will seat three thousand persons, a kitchen and dining room that recall the spacious days of mediaeval Europe in their capacity for feeding thirty-five hundred persons at once, gigantic offices, corridors, reception chambers are phases of astounding. They are decreed by the Masons to be merely incidental to the real purpose of the building, which is to point to the growing interest in the higher life.

The Cathedral, faced with Bedford stone, looms 104 feet high and 235 feet wide on Linden boulevard. It is five stories high, but there is no way of telling this from the exterior. The stories are each unusually high. Above the third story whose windows are recessed in a sculptured frieze 110 feet along the front, ten ionic columns rise for thirty-six feet. The surrounding lines of the building, as can be seen in the illustration, are classic Greek.

Tapestry Glass Vestibules

Sublimity speaks from the inside of the building as from the outside. Mounting the spreading granite steps, the visitor enters vestibule floors of tapestry glass, to emerge upon a corridor 166 feet long and 23 feet wide. To the left and right are offices of the functionaries of the order, whose names appear blasted onto the luxurious surface of the same sort of glass as that used in the vestibules. Immediately ahead is the auditorium.

The auditorium contains a stage that will hold 480 men in military formation and whose proscenium width of 98 feet is greater than that of any stage in America. The auditorium itself is 165 feet wide, 130 feet long and 58 feet high. No pillar or support of any sort is visible.

Cost $2,000,000

The auditorium strikes the keynote of the entire interior. Massiveness, dignity and sublimity are preserved throughout.

The cost of the building will be $2,000,000 by the time its last detail is finished.

BISHOP MADE CHIEF
OF AFRICAN TRIBEHigh Honor Conferred on Missionary-Explorer.

Bishop Overs of Liberia, who, as a young missionary explorer entered African forests where the face of a white man had never before been seen, and for 30 years braved the perils and hardships of life among the savages, while a guest at Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, recently related the story of how he was once made a chieftain by a tribe of Africans, says the New York Times.

"Few white men in all time have experienced the ceremony and received the honor of African chieftainship," said Bishop Overs. "Henry M. Stanley, the great explorer, was made an African chief, and a member of the British parliament was made a chief, because of what he had done for the African in England. But certainly I never anticipated that the honor would come to me."

"One morning I received a call from the king to appear before the council of chiefs. When I went to answer the call I found the king seated on his throne dressed in his gaudiest costume, and the chiefs around also in gala attire."

"I was taken to a box in front of the throne. The king then told me how much the chiefs and the people appreciated what we had done for them, and the only thing in the way of reward that they could give me was the honor of chieftainship. They told me that if I would express my willingness to be made a chief they would confer this honor upon me."

"I had not the slightest idea of what it means to be an African chief or of the ceremonies through which I would have to pass, but I determined that as I had taken so many chances in Africa, and had come through all right, I would accept the offer."

"One of the ceremonies through which I passed was the ceremony of blood brotherhood. Blood was taken from my arm and also from the arm of the king. In a most impressive manner and with much ritualistic ceremony the blood was mixed, and thus the white man was made a blood brother to the African."

"In another ceremony the green liquid from an herb was sprinkled on the head and face of the king and each chief, and was then sprinkled over my head and face. The king explained that this green liquid was known for its healing qualities and said that its use was to impress the white man that as a chief he must always be a healer of wounds and a settler of disputes."

"After various other symbolic ceremonies a scarf, stamped with the mixed blood of the king and the white man and sprinkled with the liquids they had used in the various ceremonies, was placed upon my head and finally taken off and placed on my left shoulder, where it is always worn by the chiefs."

"So I was made chief of the tribe and, as such, a man of power among them. I was listened to with a great deal more deference when I preached a sermon, or addressed a meeting or sat as a chief in council. I took advantage of every opportunity in bringing all the tribe in touch with the higher things of life."

Origin of Paved Roads

Our modern dustless concrete roads may be said to have originated in a dusty limestone highway of England, says Popular Science Monthly. Just 100 years ago Joseph Aspdin, a mason of Leeds, England, discovered that if the dust of limestone roads was mixed with clay and burned at a high temperature the resulting mass when ground would produce a material that hardened when mixed with mortar. This substance looked like building stone quarried at Portland, so he called it Portland cement.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From the Wires by Correspondents of United States Press Association.

Granville, Jan. 10.—One thousand students of Denison University will be idle for a month as a result of orders from the state boiler inspector ordering the university closed for thirty days for repairs. The inspector found the boilers in the heating plant were leaking and declared them a hazard to human life.

Cincinnati, Jan. 10.—Fred Diekmeyer, 45, and his dog were found dead in Diekmeyer's home today, victims of carbon-monoxide poisoning. The windows were closed tightly and a gas fire was burning.

Columbus, Jan. 10.—Ohio's part of the electoral college met here today preparatory to casting Ohio's presidential vote for Coolidge and Dawes.

Columbus, Jan. 10.—The civil service commission will go to Xenia Feb. 15, to hear the appeal of Davis E. Crow from the action of the Greene county commissioners who dismissed him as superintendent of the county home.

Fremont, Jan. 10.—After going nine days without food Ed. Conners, 22, Columbus, was picked up by police who are communicating with his relatives.

Cincinnati, Jan. 10.—An endless procession filed past the bier of Archbishop Frank Moeller which lay in state at his home here today. In accordance with the Archbishop's wishes no pictures are being made of his body.

Cincinnati, Jan. 10.—While taking a walk with a month's salary in his pocket, Samuel Whalen, 61, crossing watchman, was set upon, robbed and beaten to death with a lead pipe.

Columbus, Jan. 10.—Jerome Watson, mine division chief of the industrial relations department, reported to Herman R. Witter, director, today, that he and his men were unable to retard the spread of fire in the abandoned Brooks mine near Nelsonville. The mine has been burning more than three months. It was discovered seven weeks ago and it is believed a forest fire was the origin.

Columbus, Jan. 10.—Investigation of the finding of several bones and what appears to be a torso in the ashes of a burned haystack on the Mark Bogart farm continued today as medical authorities wrangled over whether the remains are those of a human.

Cincinnati, Jan. 10.—A ten per cent increase in bread prices will be effective here Feb. 1, H. B. Whitefoot, head of the Merchant Bakers' Club announced today. The rising cost of materials was given by Whitefoot as the cause of the increase.

Hamilton, Jan. 10.—His arrest presaging a general liquor court investigation in southwestern Ohio, Morris Y. Shuler, Mayor of Seven Mile, is held on a charge of possessing intoxicants.

TWELVE DINNERS

A Year Is the Entertainment Tendered the President.

For all the complexities of his position, the President of the United States finds life simple in one particular. He knows exactly how many dinner parties he must attend in a year!

The President's social program, including his appearances as a dinner guest, is explained by Winifred Mallon in this week's issue of Liberty.

"Once every winter," she says, "each of the ten members of the Cabinet, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Vice President (who is President of the Senate, or the President pro tempore, when, as at present, there is no Vice President) have the honor of entertaining the President at dinner. The dates for these dinners are fixed by the President, and his hosts must submit the list of guests for his approval before issuing the invitations."

"It is in pursuance of a rule based on experience that the President and his wife, except on these occasions, dine at home. It would be neither possible nor expedient for them to accept all or a fraction of the invitations which would be showered upon them should any departure be made from the now established custom."

"The White House social program and the dates for the twelve dinners to be given in honor of the President and the First Lady, are announced early in the season for the convenience of society in general so that other dinners and entertainments may be arranged without conflicting with prior engagements of prospective guests."

W. C. T. U.

Organize a Local Young Peoples' Branch Friday Evening.

Miss Evelyn Imler delightedly entertained a band of young people at her home Friday evening, at which time they organized a local Young Peoples' Branch of the W. C. T. U. The service was in charge of the secretary, Mrs. Bessie Long. After singing "In the Garden," Miss Goldie Noggle read the 12th chapter of Romans and Mrs. Abbie Gussman led in prayer. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Miss Evelyn Imler; vice president, Miss Myrtle Hudnell; corresponding secretary, Miss Mabel Heise; recording secretary, Miss Gladys Noggle; treasurer, Miss Florence Gussman.

Mrs. Lucy B. Price, County President, installed the newly elected officers with a very impressive installation service, and gave some helpful suggestions for the work.

The following superintendents were appointed:

Medal contest, Miss Myrtle Hudnell; Flower mission, Miss Frances Kibler; Press, Miss Gladys Noggle; Purity and Evangelistic, Miss Goldie Noggle; Social, Miss Mary Kibler.

Mrs. Abbie Gussman and Mrs. Bessie Long served dainty refreshments and a very enjoyable social hour was spent together. The meeting adjourned to meet at the home of Misses Frances and Mary Kibler, East Mound street on the second Friday evening of February.

EAGLE TEAM

LOST GAME

THURSDAY.

The fast Eagle team journeyed to Washington C. H. last Thursday night and lost a hard fought game to the fast team of that place. The final score being 30 to 26. Eagles were leading 17 to 14 at the end of the first half but inability to get the ball in the bucket in the final period proved disastrous. The Washingtonites were prepared for our boys and were fortified with Wilmington college players. The entire Eagle team played well. Griffith made several beautiful baskets from middle of floor while Messick confined his evening to short shots. Garlowe, Ward, Klingensmith and Vanscoy also played well. The same Washington team will play a return game here on January 27, while Chillicothe will appear here on January 20. Watch this paper for further arrangements.

Uses for Tape.

One of the most convenient agents of the handy box is a roll of adhesive tape. A small piece of it on the bottom of a thin sole will add considerably to the endurance of a pair of shoes. A linen window shade that has started to tear will be prevented from doing so further by a narrow strip of the tape pressed over the tear. A torn bathing cap may be made seaworthy by it.

Rest the Eyes.

Look up every once in a while from your work and lay it down for a minute or two now and then, and let your interest focus on more distant things. Thus you will give the eyes a little rest by focussing in another position.

WHITE RACE MENACED

Eight causes of racial hatred are discussed by Professor William McDougall of Harvard University. Here they are:

ONE—Expansion of population.

TWO—Sex jealousy.

THREE—The assertion or expression of claim of superiority, associated with race pride.

FOURTH—The claim of political ascendancy.

FIVE—Differences of religious belief.

SIX—Economic rivalry, or exploitation of situations leading to slavery.

SEVEN—Nationalism (patriotism).

EIGHT—Desire to defend a national culture against disintegration.

It stands to reason that there wouldn't be any racial antagonism to speak of, if every race had for each of its individual members, as much wealth, freedom, intelligence and geographical desirability (including land acreage and fertility) as the individual of other races.

So-called racial antagonism is a highbrow name for jealousy. The supremacy of the white race is menaced because the white race has cornered more than its natural share of humanity's natural resources, intelligence and desirable climate.

Higher scientists of the white race are worried about the world's constantly increasing population. The more population, the more people to envy white possessions. Asiatic yellow and brown races and the black race in Africa are multiplying much faster than whites. The white man, incidentally, is increasing the numerical strength of his rivals by sending millions of dollars and medical brains to curb disease which for centuries has destroyed a large part of the colored races' over-population.

Whether the white race, in this humanitarian way, is sowing the seed of destruction, time will show.

Even more important than the life-saving is that we—in our desire for foreign markets—are raising rival races to a standard of living beyond what can be supplied by their own acreage and natural resources.

However, nature's law of the survival of the fittest is not going to be repealed.

Traffic into and out of Manhattan, the heart of New York city, has increased 25 per cent since 1920. Nearly 200,000 vehicles were counted recently entering or leaving that island in a single day.

Cross-Word PuzzleMay Be World's First

Baltimore, Md.—In the archeological museum of Johns Hopkins university is a copy of what looks like the world's oldest cross-word puzzle. For years it has been a puzzle, whether cross-word or other variety, to archeologists and the solution now is thought to be as remote as ever. According to many students this ancient brain teaser dates from 2000 B. C.

It is called the Phaestus Disk and was found in the Island of Crete. It is made of terra cotta and contains on both sides a continuous spiral line of picture writing. Since the writing never has been deciphered no one can say whether it begins at the center and runs outward or follows the reverse course.

The disk seems to have been intended originally as a die, and it is this interpretation which makes the ancient "puzzle" appear comparable to the cross-word matrices.

According to students of Cretan antiquity, the disk contains a religious hymn and was not really a product of the island but was imported from Lycia, in Asia Minor.

In the history of Greece the "cross-word puzzle" disappears after Cretan times. Specimens of ancient Greek poems have survived to the present day which show a knowledge of the acrostic. Euripides has a passage in one of his plays which is construed so as to have the first letters of the lines spell the name "Theseus." In some of the old manuscripts containing collections of ancient Greek poems have been found compositions so made as to be in the form of various objects, such as the pipes of Pan.

SAYS NOTHING CAN SUPPLANT THE FARM

Synthetic Foods Not Practicable, Chemist Declares.

Predictions often are made that some day we shall have all our food made in chemical factories, out of air and water and carbonic-acid gas; that even farming soon is to be a thing of the past, and that chemically prepared food will come to us in tablets that we shall nibble.

These notions are mere guesses, unsound economically. The farm is not to be supplanted by the chemical factory, writes Dr. Ellwood Hendrick, noted chemist, in the Popular Science Monthly, although the farm already is beginning to draft the chemical and biological laboratories for its own purposes.

Even if we chemists could make tasty and nutritious foods of inanimate matter, instead of things that have been through the process of life, of things that have grown on the farm—and it's a fact that we don't know how to do it—there isn't power enough available to make the food for the world in factories. We should require coal or water power or fuel oil, while the plants and trees use the power of light direct from the sun for their growth. We cannot use light for power. Every green leaf has us beaten in this respect.

Again, our internal organs are so constructed that if we undertook to live on tablets without the necessary roughage or coarseness of food they would collapse and the whole world soon would come down with an international bowel complaint. Let's keep our feet on the ground. Men of science have to do so. But don't be disappointed. Science, working along practical lines, already is accomplishing amazing things in solving our food problems. It has learned to extract elements necessary to plant growth from the air, from the sewage of cities, from the smoke of factory chimneys. It is conserving our crops through the development of the canning industry. It has taught the bakers to produce better and cheaper bread. It has helped crops by destroying insect pests. It has studied foods in the laboratory and taught us how to balance our diet according to the requirements of our bodies.

Science does not move ahead with a brass band, with trumpets and drums; its progress, results from hard, slow work, with here and there a happy reward.

Famous Rifleman Gave Name to Pipe Spring

Pipe Spring national monument is famous in Utah and Arizona history. In 1853 Jacob Hamblin was sent by President Brigham Young of the Mormon church to visit the Hopi Indians in northern Arizona. His party consisted of ten, including a Platte Indian guide, and, so the story goes, they camped by a marvelous spring in the midst of the desert.

Hamblin, observes the New York Times, was a noted rifle shot, and the conversation turned to the question of marksmanship. A wager was made that he could not shoot a hole through a handkerchief at 20 yards. Hamblin fired several shots at the square silk hung by the two upper corners, but the force of the bullet only swept the handkerchief back without penetrating it. Stung by his failure and his friend's laughing remark that he could not shoot straight, Hamblin declared that if he could not shoot straight he could stick his pipe up as a target and shoot the bottom out without reaking the bowl. Up went the pipe, and "crack" went the rifle. Hamblin made good his word and from that time on the spring has been called Pipe spring, according to the Department of the Interior.

In 1861 James M. Whitmore was sent by the church to the southern part of the state to raise cotton in Utah's Dixie and to develop the resources of that part of the territory. He and his followers settled at St. George, and in 1863, in order to provide grazing facilities for his herds of cattle and flocks of sheep, he located and improved the Pipe Spring ranch, which lies about 55 miles east of St. George and 20 miles west of Kanab.

Indian City of Jeypore Has Unique Features

One of the most remarkable cities in the whole world is Jeypore, in India. It is especially beautiful and regular because it was built all at one time and according to a single consistent design instead of being built helter-skelter and at different periods. The founder of it was Jey Sing, a maharajah or native ruler who started it in

"Hall of the Winds"

1728. Most of the buildings are covered with pink and white stucco—this being the case with the "Hall of the Winds," which is here illustrated. In Jeypore the sacred cattle go about the streets at will, eating anything eatable they see, and the people dare not molest them. The monkeys, elephants, camels and other animals are also considered sacred and they have things pretty much their own way.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Clocks' Two Years' Test

The twenty electric clocks in the palace of industry and other buildings at the British Empire exhibition at Wembley were two years under test at the royal observatory, Edinburgh. The special apparatus used included a cinematograph which takes account of thousandths of a second. The variations of the clocks during the test never exceeded one-hundredth of a second in twenty-four hours.

Buoy's Long Voyage

A light buoy which broke away from its moorings in South America five years ago has traveled nearly 5,000 miles to Australia. The director general of navigation in New South Wales reported that the buoy broke adrift in 1919, and, assuming that it followed the shortest route, it must have drifted between four and five miles a day.

Retriever Adopts Kitten

A Chicago man owns a retriever and a cat, and both recently became mothers. The retriever's two pups were born dead, so she abducted the cat's single kitten. The distressed cat has endeavored to secure possession of her offspring, but the retriever holds her at bay and jealously guards the kitten, which she nurses and tends devotedly.

To Feast on Ancient Ham

A farmer near Excelsior Springs, Mo., has kept a ham 47 years. It is his father put away in ashes in 1877. He says it is his intention to invite a few of his old friends to take dinner with him in 1927, on which occasion the ham will be served and its fortieth anniversary appropriately celebrated.

Dry and Rather Hot

Parkins never was tired of prophesying calamities, and his friends were getting a bit fed up. Parkins had already predicted famine, and one day he remarked dolefully to a friend: "What would you say, my boy, if I were to tell you that in a short space of time the rivers of our country would all dry up?" "H'm. I should say," replied the friend, "go thou and do likewise."—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

Language of Golfers

"Well, how did you get on?" inquired a novice of a friend who had just finished an important golf match. "Oh," said the old hand, "we got off all right. I was a bit short at the long, and then long at the short, but my opponent was never up all the way because he couldn't get down. He played better coming in than he did going out, so we were square on the round."

They Married Young in Days of Chivalry

Modern opinion, which is happily in favor of falling in love and of adult marriage, is often shocked by the air of business which pervaded match-making in the days of chivalry, and by the many cases of grown men married to little girls not yet out of their teens.

For reasons of property, or to settle family feuds, or simply to assure their own future, babies in cradles were sometimes betrothed and even married; all that the church required was that children should be free when they came of age (at fourteen and twelve years old) to repudiate the contract if they so desired.

Nothing seems to separate modern England from the good old days so plainly as the case of little Grace de Saleby, four years old, who for the sake of her broad acres was married to a great noble, and on his death two years later, to another, and yet again, when she was eleven, to a third, who paid 300 marks down for her. There is an odd mixture of humor and pathos in the story of some of these marriages. John Rignarden, three years old, was carried to church in the arms of a priest, who coaxed him to repeat the words of matrimony, but half way through the service the child declared that he would learn no more that day, and the priest answered, "You must speak a little more, and then go play you."

James Ballard, ten years old, was married to Jane his wife "at X of the clock in the night without the consent of any of his friends, bled one Sir Roger Blakey, then curate of Colne and the morrow after, the same James declared unto his Uncle that the said Jane (being a bigge damsell and marriageable at the same tyme) had intised him with two Apples, to go with her to Colne and to marry her."

Elizabeth Bridge, nee Rambotham, says that after her marriage to John Bridge, when he was eleven and she thirteen, he never used her "lovingly, insomuch that the first night they were married the said John would Eate no meate at supper, and when hit was bed tyme the said John did wepe to go home with his father, he beyng at that tyme at her brother's house."—From Medieval People, by Ellean Power.

Sincerity First Requisite.

And least of all is sincerity a quality that can be successfully imitated. It twines through the whole emotional fiber; it has its roots in the heart. "Sincerity gives wings to power," is the way an old proverb happily puts it. Go through any list of acknowledged leader of business and professional life. You will find there are few who have not been pre-eminently sincere.—H. Addington Bruce.

NORRIS OFFERS RESOLUTION

MUSCLE SHOALS PROBLEM UP

Repeal of Publicity Clause of Income Tax Act Not Likely at Short Session—Leaders Opposed to Giving the Subject a Place on the Legislative Program—House Votes Millions For Prohibition Enforcement.

Washington, Dec. 30.—Senator Norris (Rep., Neb.) introduced a resolution directing the federal trade commission to undertake an investigation of the electric power "trust."

Senator Edge (Rep., N. J.) blocked immediate consideration of the resolution.

The senate still faces the Muscle Shoals problem, which holds right of way there, with the house resuming work on appropriation bills. Three of the dozen supply measures already have been counted off and sent to the senate to leave the treasury next in line for house action. In the office of the senate program is the calling up of the president's veto of the postal salary increase bill by unanimous consent for a vote on Jan. 6. Meanwhile hearings on the administration postal rate increase bill, which leaders hope to have ready for the senate by that date, will continue before the joint committee.

Income taxpayers will be subjected to the same rule of publicity next year that provoked so much criticism this year. Even if congress were disposed to take up the matter for consideration, it is doubtful whether repealing legislation could be passed at the short session of congress, which will end on March 4.

With the leaders opposed to giving this subject a place on the legislative program, repealing legislation does not have a chance. It is feared by the managers of both houses that to undertake to repeal the publicity clause would open up the whole problem of tax legislation, cause interminable delay and probably force an extra session of congress, which it is their purpose to avoid at all hazards.

With the marked increase in inquiries that are being made among investment bankers relative to tax-free security issues, much speculation is arising as to whether this indicates a renewed interest in tax-free issues, due to income tax publicity. The opinion was expressed by one man connected with the financial operations of the government that many business houses, resenting the publicity given corporation income tax returns, would begin placing funds in tax-free investments, which would offer a certain amount of secrecy, even though the investments in such securities provide a relatively small return. If this opinion proves to be well founded, there undoubtedly will be a boom in municipal, county and public works projects.

Millions For Dry Enforcement.

The house approved a provision in the treasury-postoffice appropriation bill for expenditure of $11,000,000 for prohibition enforcement during the coming fiscal year. No effort was made to alter the amount, which is $341,770 less than the amount available this year, but $783,120 more than budget estimates.

The house also approved without amendment an allotment of $20,597,835 for coast guard activities, part of which would be available for curbing rum running. This amount is $11,753,706 more than the total appropriated for this year.

Representatives Hill of Maryland and Laguardia of New York assailed prohibition enforcement. The latter, advocating vigorous enforcement of the Volstead law so long as it is on the statute books, contended, there was imperative need for a radical shakeup in the prohibition enforcement force and a change in policy.

FOUR MEMBERS OF FAMILY SLAIN

Woman, a Relative, Is Placed Under Arrest.

Logansport, Ind., Dec. 30.—Four members of the family of Henry Bassler, 69, farmer, were slain with a shotgun. Their bodies were found on the farm, eight miles north of here. The dead: Henry Bassler 69; Katherine Bassler, 60, his wife; Viola Hobough, 3, his granddaughter; and Henry Bassler, Jr., 22, his son.

The tops of the heads of three of the victims were shot away. The bodies of Bassler and the little girl were found in the house. Those of his son and wife were found in the yard near the house.

Mrs. Mary Hobough, daughter of Bassler and mother of the murdered girl, was placed under arrest. She was found by Sheriff Walter Bowyer at the home of Thomas Sheets, about four miles from the Bassler home. Sheets said when Mrs. Hobough arrived at his home she said she had had some trouble with her brother, but, according to Sheets' story to the sheriff, she gave no indication of the tragedy that had been enacted. Since the death of her husband, Mrs. Hobough had made her home with her parents and brother, near the village of Metea, eight and a half miles from here. She visited the home of Lyman Yantis and called on the telephone Rev. Henry Mullins, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist church of this city. Yantis asserted Mrs. Hobough told the minister her brother had knocked her down, and that if she had a shotgun she would kill the brother. Yantis said he paid little heed to the woman's threats, as the family quarreled frequently.

DARROW'S WORDS

Pardon For Loeb and Leopold May Be Justified in a Few Years.

Denver, Dec. 30.—A pardon for Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold might be justified in a few years, Clarence Darrow, defense attorney for the confessed killers of Bobby Franks, said here. "If our diagnosis of their mental disorders should be wrong, and if, through some readjustment, they should be restored to normality, it is possible that after a period of years a pardon might be justified," he declared. "Loeb and Leopold are insane. They should be confined in an asylum," he continued.

Darrow said he would make public the amount of money he received for defending the youths when he returns to Chicago. "Statements that I received $1,000,000 are false," he said.

Protests Against Ban.

Washington, Dec. 30.—A note of protest is being prepared by the state department against the British embargo on American potatoes. This government's stand is based on technical information, showing that an embargo is not justified by the presence of Colorado beetles, or common potato bugs, in shipments to England.

Fatal Fall.

Springfield, O., Dec. 30.—William McFarland, 20, of North Hampton, sustained possibly fatal injuries when he fell 25 feet from the second floor of the new Masonic temple, where he had been employed in construction work.

LEGISLATION TO BE SOUGHT

Officials Would Halt Pollution of Ohio Streams.

CAN NOT BE LEFT TO FUTURE

State Health Director Says Low Death Rate From Typhoid Can Not Be Maintained If Stream Pollution Is Continued—Co-operation Necessary Between Republican Legislature and Democratic Governor.

Columbus, Dec. 30.—The special committee on conservation of water supplies, appointed by Dr. John E. Monger, state health director, has approved legislation to stop the pollution of Ohio streams and to apply remedial measures for pollution now existing.

Dr. Monger said no single problem is so fraught with grave consequence to future generations as that of stream pollution. In many communities, he says, it is not a problem that can be left to the future, but is one that must be solved now. He quoted a federal engineer as saying "the pollution of the Ohio river by sewage and wastes has increased to such an extent that we have reached the last line of defense in our efforts to combat the germs and purify the water at modern water plants along the river."

The same conditions exist in other waterways, Dr. Monger asserts, especially in Cuyahoga, Maumee and Maumee rivers.

Reduction in the death rate from typhoid fever has come through health measures taken in the last few years, but if the rate of increase in pollution is maintained, the low death rate can not be kept, he declares.

"While approximately 50 per cent of our population is drinking water from surface sources, a much greater per cent will be using surface water 25 years from today," he explains. "The question staring us in the face is whether we will be able to control water-borne diseases then, and the frank, truthful answer is, we will not."

Co-operation Necessary. Some measures of co-operation between a Republican legislature and a Democratic governor will be necessary to solve many matters which will confront the Eighty-sixth general assembly when it convenes, Jan. 5.

Problems of vital importance to the people of the state which will surely come before the assembly include plans for furnishing financial relief for cities, villages and school districts, a gasoline tax, the federal child-labor amendment, pre-primary political conventions, road legislation and a minimum wage law.

Two years ago there was a Republican legislature and a Democratic governor, who were unable to agree on several important questions. As a result, the governor used his veto power freely, but the Republican majority made it possible to override this veto in several instances. Almost the same situation faces the coming session.

There is certain to be some measure for the financial relief of cities introduced. Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, who is chairman of the house taxation committee and majority floor leader, was author of the Taft bill, which was passed over the governor's veto, but lost at a referendum. Governor Donahey opposed the measure on the grounds that there was not sufficient provision for home rule in taxation. He had indicated that this is still his stand.

Success of the proposed gasoline tax idea now rests on the ability of the legislature to propose a measure which will satisfy certain automobile clubs in regard to reducing the license tax and property tax. As the license tax generally will have been paid before a gasoline tax could be passed and made operative, provision probably would have to be made to make the gas tax operative a year hence, in order to avoid a double taxation on automobiles.

Sentenced to Prison.

Akron, O., Dec. 30.—William Schuck, 48, found guilty of manslaughter by a jury last week in connection with the shooting to death of Alex Harkins, Greensburg farmer, June 20, was sentenced to from 10 to 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary by Judge E. H. Boylan.

Real Estate Dealer Dies.

Mt. Vernon, O., Dec. 30.—William Herzog, 45, Cleveland real estate man, sustained a stroke of apoplexy as he alighted from his auto in front of a hotel here and died shortly after at a hospital.

OHIO HAPPENINGS

Couple Escapes Flames.

Newark, O., Dec. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Keck made a thrilling escape when their home near this city caught fire. When they were awakened by fire and smoke in the house, Keck called to his wife to follow him. He opened the window and hung suspended from the porch eaves while his wife slid down his body to the snow and ice-covered ground below. Keck then dropped to safety. Both were clad only in their night clothes. The home was destroyed.

Girl Asphyxiated in Closed Car.

Norwalk, O., Dec. 30.—Miss Lucy Landoll, 17-year-old daughter of Peter Landoll, was found dead in a closed automobile in the yard of her home, three miles east of Norwalk. Joseph Gaag, 30, was found in a serious condition by her side. He may die. Coroner C. L. Bell reported after an investigation that death was due to carbon monoxide gas brought into the car by the heater.

Couple Shot by Woman.

Cleveland, Dec. 30.—Cora Morris, 26, and her sweetheart, Olin Hightower, 26, were shot by a former sweetheart of the woman, who escaped after the shooting, according to police. A bullet entered Hightower's right cheek and another shot entered Cora's neck. Both were taken to a hospital. They are expected to recover.

Turned Over to Federal Court.

Marion, O., Dec. 30.—Ralph Gilson, Howard Holloway and Arthur Wells, all of this city, were turned over to federal authorities for alleged complicity in a postoffice robbery at Carrollton, Dec. 19. John Fosnough and Alvin Ayres, former Marion residents, are under arrest at Canton for the Carrollton job, local police say.

Electrocuted at Home.

Gallion, O., Dec. 30.—Leonard P. Long, 30, was accidentally electrocuted at his home here. The insulation on an electric wire near the furnace had been worn off and was resting against the chain on the furnace. When Long took hold of the chain he received a shock which killed him.

Nurses' Home Burned.

Columbus, Dec. 30.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the frame office building and nurses' home of the sanitarium of Dr. George Harding at Worthington, a suburb. Five nurses were forced to flee hurriedly from their beds. Property loss $10,000.

Perished in Fire.

Chillicothe, O., Dec. 30.—Clifford Kerns, 23, traveling salesman, of this city, was burned to death in a rooming house fire at Dallas, Tex. Eight others were injured, none seriously. Apparently the fire started in Kerns' room.

Frozen Body Found.

Canton, O., Dec. 30.—The frozen body of Ulysses Violet, 72, was found in a chicken coop on his farm near Justus, Stark county, by neighbors.

Fire Attacks Plant.

Senate Democrats Organize.

Millersburg, O., Dec. 30.—The Democratic minority in the Ohio state senate perfected an organization at a caucus here attended by Judge R. L. Adair of Wayne county and William Garver of Holmes county. They are the only Democrats elected to the new senate. Garver was selected as minority leader. Judge Adair was made a party whip. Then the caucus adjourned. Garver has been named on 20 senate committees and Judge Adair on 18.

KID M'COY WILL FILE APPEAL

CALLS IT UNFAIR VERDICT

Twenty-four Ballots Taken by the Jury Before the Fate of the Former Boxer Was Announced in Court. Placed on Trial in Connection With the Shooting of Mrs. Theresa Mors. Review of the Case.

Los Angeles, Dec. 30.—After many hours' deliberation, the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter against Kid McCoy, former pugilist.

The verdict was returned in connection with the shooting here Aug. 2 last of Mrs. Theresa Mors.

Twenty-four ballots were taken before the fate of the former prize fighter was read in open court. The jury was comprised of nine women and three men. Foreman F. W. Coulter of the jury, said that the verdict was a compromise one. Superior Judge C. S. Crall had no comment to make other than: "I guess it was the best that they could do."

When the verdict was read, McCoy's eyes became tear-dimmed as he sat at the end of the counsel table. "I don't believe it was a just verdict," he said. "If I am not guilty as charged, I am not guilty at all. It was not a just verdict."

Sentence will be passed Friday. Defense attorneys announced that notice of appeal would be filed at that time. The penalty is from one to 10 years.

Mrs. Mors, divorced wife of Albert A. Mors, and joint owner with him of the Mors antique shop in a fashionable shopping district here, was found dead of a bullet wound in an apartment leased to "Mr. and Mrs. N. Shields." Her body was discovered about 9 a. m. Aug. 13. At about the same hour McCoy is alleged to have entered the antique shop and held up several employees of the place while he waited for the appearance of Mors, whom he announced he was going to "get."

The men, after handing over their money and valuables, were forced to remove shoes and trousers to prevent their escape; the women were allowed to wait unmolested. As customers entered the place, they were similarly disposed of until one of them, William G. Ross, made a break for liberty. He was shot in the thigh, and then, it was testified, McCoy went next door to the shop of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Schapp and wounded them.

About this time police investigating the death of "Mrs. Shields" learned the dead woman was Mrs. Mors and that "Mr. Shields" was Kid McCoy.

SOLONS ROUSED

French Official Says France Is Not Expecting to Pay Debt.

Washington, Dec. 30.—Among administration officials who are directly concerned with debt funding operations the admission made by the French minister of finance in his report to parliament that France regards her $4,000,000,000 indebtedness to the United States as "a political debt," was received with a sort of pained surprise; and in congressional circles it aroused a storm of indignation and will have a full airing on the senate floor. Franco-American relations, apparently are due for a series of jars, for on all sides the opinion was expressed that the American government can not allow to go unchallenged this virtual repudiation of France's war debt.

M. Clementel's statement that France does not expect to pay strips the mask from the negotiations that have been in progress here between Ambassador Jusserand and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. Behind the curtain of "informal conversations" these negotiations have been in progress for some weeks, but in view of the French government's position it is now considered doubtful whether M. Jusserand will continue talk of "payment in full."

Falls From Scaffold.

Portsmouth, O., Dec. 30.—John Lilly, 27, steel plant employee, died in a hospital three hours after sustaining a fractured skull in a 30-foot fall from a scaffold. A wife and three weeks-old daughter survive.

Girl Killed Coasting.

AUTO TAGS GOING OUT

Secretary Brown Orders Resumption of Distribution.

Columbus, Dec. 30.—Secretary of State Thad Brown announced that the distribution of 1925 auto tags will be resumed at once. Distribution was stopped several days ago, pending investigation of alleged faulty paint on the new license numbers.

Resumption of distribution was ordered upon the advice of Professor James R. Withrow, head of the department of chemical engineering, Ohio State university, who is conducting an investigation of the tag situation. Professor Withrow said he was satisfied that paint on the new tags would not come off through ordinary washing, and intimated that most of the tags reported "defective" were defaced deliberately.

The great danger now, Professor Withrow explained, is not that the tags may be defective, but that purchasers throughout the state will deliberately deface them intentionally, or in a too earnest attempt to see whether they are defective.

Because of the delay through halting of the distribution, Secretary Brown said he would ask police chiefs to extend until Jan. 20 the time when all motorists must have the new tags. Until then, 1924 tags may be used.

SOLDIERS EXECUTED

Eight Hundred Shot For Looting Chinese Town.

London, Dec. 30.—According to a dispatch from Tientsin, China, 800 soldiers, who had taken part in the wholesale looting in Kalgan as reprisal for nonreceipt of many months' overdue pay, were lined up along the railroad track and shot in cold blood. The soldiers had been told that if they returned peacefully to their barracks they would be paid. The 800 trustingly returned and were immediately marched into a waiting train, the doors of which were locked. Whereupon the train steamed out into the country. The men were ordered to deploy along the track and were quickly and mercilessly executed in batches.

Former Cop Shot.

Youngstown, O., Dec. 30.—Raymond Rogers, former city policeman, was shot above the heart by his brother-in-law, Joseph Margo, who says Rogers attacked him after being refused a loan, so that he could go to see Mrs. Rogers in California.

Pleads Guilty; Sentenced.

New Lexington, O., Dec. 30.—John Marshall of Santury, colored, pleaded guilty to manslaughter just as his trial started here. He was sentenced to from five to 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary by Judge T. D. Price. Marshall was being tried for the killing of Henry Coleman, with whom he fought a battle in the streets here three months ago.

Driver Found Dead.

Dayton, O., Dec. 30.—William Knauer, truck driver, was found dead several miles north of Dayton. He is believed to have suffered a heart attack while making a delivery.

Progress

"When I was learning my trade I served for a time in the German army," a Detroit barber remarked as he tapped his closed scissors. "They let me practice on the other soldiers. All were young men. I did my biggest day's shaving once when I cleaned 150 faces of stubble beards. I hired a boy to do the lathering, and I seated my customers in the chairs. Then the latherer prepared the faces, and I started. Every man had to wash his own face, and none got any bay rum, or any pampering. You see I was paid only a few pfennigs for the shave. With one good customer today I make many times what I got from the whole 150."

At New York Magistrate Oberwager ordered Mrs. Mary Flynn to let her hair grow out again after her husband objected to her shorn locks.

Beautiful and Historic

A project is afoot to make Blacksod bay on the west coast of Ireland a big trans-Atlantic port; with a view to shortening the time between British and Canadian and American ports. If this scheme materializes travelers arriving there will be repaid by some of the finest scenery in the British Isles, since they will pass close to Achill island, with its wild mountains and magnificent sea precipices. A little farther north in Killala bay General Humbert landed in 1798 with 1,000 French troops, and proclaimed the French republic, marching afterward to Castlebar and taking possession of the town.

A wireless ticker, which can successfully send wireless messages secretly through use of varying currents, is said to have been invented by a German in Berlin.

KEEPING WELL

DON'T BE SNEEZED AT

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

IF ANYONE spits in your face, you want to fight, don't you? And no wonder. This offensive act has been regarded in all times and among all people as the deadliest form of personal insult.

Yet during the winter you are lucky if a dozen times a day someone doesn't sneeze in your face. You make no objection; in fact, you'd be regarded as a crank and a very unreasonable person if you objected.

State and municipal health boards have passed laws and ordinances forbidding spitting in public places, and rightly, too. Spitting is a dirty and dangerous habit, of which no decent person would be guilty.

But public sneezing goes on everywhere. In theaters, churches, street cars and offices, especially during the winter months, coughing and sneezing are constant and general.

Yet there is really no difference between having anyone sneeze on you and having the same person spit on you, except that sneezing is much more dangerous. The secretion, in both cases, comes from the throat and nose. Spitting may soil your clothing and hurt your self-respect, but it does no harm to your body. But in sneezing, the air is filled with a fine spray, often germ laden. This air you breathe into your lungs with any germs which it may carry.

A San Francisco lawyer recently wrote the California state board of health: "Why do you forbid spitting in public and permit coughing and sneezing? On my way to my office the other morning, I was sneezed on in the crowded car by eight different people. Of course, I came down with a filthy cold, and the worst of it was that my wife and baby daughter took it, in spite of my precautions."

Public opinion has greatly reduced spitting. As a result, we now have cleaner cars, cleaner streets, cleaner workrooms—let us hope, cleaner homes. Now let's stop public sneezing and have cleaner air.

Don't let anyone sneeze or cough in your face and don't sneeze or cough on other people. Hold your handkerchief over your mouth and nose when you cough or sneeze and so avoid infecting others.

Average Annual Loss on Wheat

Various Forms of Damage Occur Before Crop Finally Reaches Market.

The average annual loss in the winter wheat belt on account of various forms of damage occurring to wheat between the time it matures and the time it reaches the market, amounts to approximately $5,000,000, or two cents on every bushel grown. In Kansas alone the loss amounts to over $2,000,000, or 27 cents on every acre harvested. Colorado's loss is in proportion.

Figures Are Given.
These figures come from a bulletin by H. M. Balner, a former Colorado Agricultural college agronomist, who is now with the Southwestern Wheat Improvement association, engaged in educational propaganda for cutting down waste in wheat production and marketing. The bulletin quotes figures furnished by the Kansas City office of federal grain supervision, showing that out of a total of 41,924 carloads of wheat marketed at Kansas City, from July 1, 1923, to April 30, 1924, 40 per cent fell below Grade No. 3.

Other data indicate that in inspecting on appeals or for checking purposes, 7,669 cars, almost 68 per cent, of hard red winter wheat was graded down one grade or more on account of low test weight per bushel. One grade difference in test weight equals at least two cents a bushel difference in price. Over 11 per cent was graded down one grade or more on account of excessive moisture—damp wheat, heat-damaged, sprouted, musty, sour and hot wheat. Over 2½ per cent was graded down one grade or more on account of rye. Almost 3 per cent was graded down to sample grade or more on account of live weevil or other insects injurious to stored grain.

Bulletin Is Free.

The bulletin, which may be had on application to the Southwestern Wheat Improvement association, New York Life building, Kansas City, Mo., makes suggestions for proper handling of wheat to avoid those losses to the grower.

Should Buy Fertilizer for Delivery in March

"Buy your fertilizers in January and February for March delivery," says E. Truog of the soils department of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

"Dairymen will want acid phosphate and lime. General farmers may use the complete fertilizer and in most cases one containing considerable nitrogen."

"January and February orders should be made because of the seasonal supply which is insured by manufacturers through the first three months of the year. The 'aging process' puts the fertilizer in mechanical condition and reduces its acidity. By ordering early the farmer is assured of properly 'aged' fertilizer. When 'all sold out' manufacturers are tempted to sell insufficiently 'aged' material."

"The kind of fertilizer to buy should depend on the type of farming—dairy, general, or truck farming. The amount should depend on the condition and the abundance of the soil materials, and the kind of crops grown on the particular fields," he declares.

Take Time to Get Into Sheep Raising Business

High prices for both wool and mutton have kept the sheep industry in the limelight the last two years and have caused a strong demand for breeding stock of all ages.

Some farmers who have had no experience as shepherds are rushing into sheep. Austin A. Dowell, live stock specialist with the agricultural extension service at University farm, St. Paul, Minn., believes the best plan is to grow gradually into the business of sheep raising.

"Not every farmer can handle sheep successfully, and those without previous experience should go slowly in investing their funds in this class of stock," says Mr. Dowell. "It always pays to be conservative in a period of high prices, consequently we advise starting with a small flock of grade ewes and gradually getting into the business. By using pure bred rams and keeping the best ewe lambs, it is possible to develop a high-class flock at comparatively little expense."

Make an Early Start to Have Year-Round Garden

The garden is an essential part of the home, and one should not be discouraged because of an unfavorable season. If it did not pay last season, it was probably because of unusual weather conditions or improper handling. So make an early start and lay the foundation for a year-round garden, advises A. E. Schilleter, extension horticulturist, Clemson college, who gives below five fundamental factors for a successful garden.

1. Good seed.
2. Thorough preparation of soil.
3. Liberal fertilization.
4. Frequent cultivation.
5. Protection from insects and diseases.

Do not depend on cheap seed or those that are easy to get. Order from a reliable seedman, because if you start out with poor seed, all of your later efforts will be wasted.

Josephus.
Flavius Josephus, the most celebrated of Jewish historians, was born at Jerusalem in 37. As a mark of gratitude for favors, he assumed the family name, Flavius, of the Roman emperor Vespasian. The date of his death is unknown. His most important works are "History of the Jewish War," "The Antiquities of the Jews," two treatises, "Against Apion of Alexandria" and "A Discourse on the Martyrdom of the Maccabees," and an account of his own life.

World's Famous Streets.
A certain difference of opinion appears to exist as to which is the most beautiful street in the world. Among those "in the running" may be mentioned: Princes street, Edinburgh, from which the city received her nickname of the "Athens of the North"; the Via X X Septembre, Genoa; Sackville street, Dublin; the Avenida Callao and the Plaza Mayo, both in Buenos Aires; the High street, Belfast; and the Unter den Linden, Berlin.

Romance of Mode in Winter Models

Collection of Garments Recalls Dress From Beginning of Time.

It is difficult to make a report of the winter collections of the grandes maisons read like a romance, says Harper's Bazar, and yet all the romance in the world enters into the making of the new models, just as it has formed a part of dress from the misty beginning of time, since when fair ladies in adorning themselves for their lovers have endeavored by taking thought—by fair means or foul—to render themselves still more fair.

Treasures of dress have come down to us from the Orient—metal-embroidered, jewel-encrusted stuffs of imperishable color, veils bordered with still untarnished gold, still redolent of languorous perfumes and weighted with all the mystery and tragedy of the East. Some of these fabrics whisper of twilight in a Persian garden, others formed part of the cargo of the ships of Tyre or might have figured in the tales of a Thousand and One Nights, and all are heavy with romance.

The beauties of the Decameron moved through those fevered tales clad in sumptuous velvets and rarest laces, and the old stuffs still breathe the sensuousness of those times, telling the tale to those with ears to hear. The loveliest costumes of the late centuries were created to enhance the charms of the favorites of kings, for Mme. De Pompadour, La Du Barry and the fair Louise la Valliere, as well as for the pleasure-loving Marie Antoinette, whose beauty and grace and haunting charm will shine forever through the ages, inseparably connected with the costumes of that epoch. And what of the gowns once worn by Ninon de l'Enclos, who even at eighty retained her charm, or by Marlon de Lorme, pleading on her knees in vain for the life of Cino-Mars?

The dressmakers of today are still inspired by the vanities and passions of a century ago—the laces, the jeweled embroideries, the rich velvets and fine linens, the metal stuffs, the dainty sandals, the little silken shoes. And the little ouvriere, her head in the clouds, dreaming dreams, puts into the curve of a seam or the tying of a bowknot all her little romance, and the frock is so much the richer for her dreaming. It is this subtle quality, in short, the heritage of the romance of an old civilization enriched by a still older romance in the fingertips of the little French sewing girl, which makes a Paris frock different from any other.

We all recognize this difference without, perhaps, sensing the cause, which is racial, instinctive. Anyone may "sit on a cushion and sew a fine seam" with a needle, but the French girl sews it with her heart. And the great designers of Paris—Doucet, with his fine appreciation of the artistic and his exquisite costumes in pure style; Worth, with his superb fabrics and wealth of decoration; Paquin, with studied, intricate designs and strange colors; Premet, for whom Mme. Charlotte is establishing a daring modern style; Polret, with his extravagance of design and wonderful color—where else may one find the designers such as these?

Or such as Jenny, whose creations may only be described as tout a fait Parisienne, or Doeillet with his beautiful evening gowns, or Lanvin, who still dreams beautiful clothes, or Louiseboulanger, whose models are so marvelously interesting, or Drecol and all the rest who attract buyers from all over the world, season after season, in search of the beauty which cannot be found in their own countries?

Trimnings Perch High

The high front and high back trimmings on hats have stimulated the use of another high effect, a trimming placed on top of the crown. Ostrich often perches here, and ribbon ends are clustered on top. Another high crown trimming extends from side to side over the crown in a ridge that ends at the ears of thereabouts. This may be accomplished by ostrich in a fringe, fabric in a roll, and various other means.

The Trying Fascists

Mortimer Schiff, the noted New York capitalist, was talking about the Fascists in Italy.

"The Fascists think," he said, "that whatever they do is right. This attitude on their part is certainly very trying."

"The Fascists remind me of the lady who wished to open an account with a department store. They asked her for a reference, and she gave the name of Charles M. Schwab."

"But Mr. Schwab, it turned out, didn't know the lady, and so, when she called at the store again, the credit man said to her:

"I'm sorry to tell you, madam, that your reference is unsatisfactory."

"Well, now, that's a surprise to me," said the lady. "I always thought Charles M. Schwab's financial standing was above reproach."

As the Gang Saw Them.

Three little boys were calling each other by the names of "Red," "Squinch" and "Bones." When asked why they did so, Squinch spoke for them. "It's our names what matches our looks best to the gang."

DOZEN DATES

Scheduled For Ohio State's Track Team Soon After Reopening of School Jan. 5th.

Columbus, O., Dec. 29.—(United Press.)—A dozen dates are scheduled for Ohio State's track team during the annual campaign to get under way soon after re-opening of school on Jan. 5. Only five dual meets appear on the card. The rest of the list consists of the Illinois, Ohio and Penn relays, the indoor and outdoor Big Ten championships, the National Collegiate meet at Chicago in June and the usual quadrangular competition with Chicago, Wisconsin and Northwestern.

Reforestation Goes On

A traveler through New England, if observant, may have noted in recent years the springing up of little patches of new forest here and there. He may notice also that old forests, perfectly ready to cut under temptation, are left standing. He may notice also that the ground under the trees is in many cases cleaned up so that inflammable material for quick fires has been removed. Small as these evidences are in the country as a whole, they are numerous enough in some places to show that the forestry propaganda is beginning to accomplish results. It is sure to grow in strength and the work of protection and reforestation is sure to progress faster as it acquires momentum, says the Waterbury (Conn.) American.

The dedication of a people's forest on the banks of the Farmington river, where several hundred acres of forest land were placed in the hands of the state as a memorial and an addition to the system of parks which the state has provided, is one small but significant item in such work.

As the habit grows much Connecticut land now running to waste, but suitable for forest growth, will be covered with trees, and the next generation will see quite a different face on the state of Connecticut.

WEATHER FORECASTING IS AIDED BY TREES

Notable Discovery Made by Arizona Astronomer After Twenty Years of Study.

Tucson, Ariz.—The tree as an accurate and reliable assistant in the task of long-range weather forecasting may be the outcome of more than twenty years of study by Dr. A. E. Douglass, director of Steward observatory and professor of astronomy at the University of Arizona here.

A definite connection between the annual rings on trees and rainfall has been established, Doctor Douglass said. The first inkling of such a possibility occurred to the scientist 20 years ago while he was working near Prescott, Ariz. He discovered that the annual rings on pine trees there corresponded, by showing rapid or slow seasonal growth, to the average rainfall over the last forty years.

From the tree rings Doctor Douglass worked out the probable variations of the sun during the last four or five centuries. He received striking corroboration of his theories and work more than two years ago in a letter from Dr. E. W. Maunder, an English astronomer, who has been studying the sun's spots historically and found a dearth of them from 1650 to 1715.

Doctor Douglass' further studies have indicated that such a condition can be traced through the annual rings of the pine trees.

Doctor Douglass' pamphlet on the subject, "Some Aspects of the Use of the Annual Rings of Trees in Climate Study," recently was selected by the Smithsonian institution as one of the scientific classics of the year. The Arizona scientist has been invited to speak on the subject before the Carnegie Institute at Washington.

He hopes to aid materially in increasing the accuracy of long-range weather forecasting through his discoveries. At present he is investigating the giant Sequoias, some of which have been pronounced the oldest living things. He hopes to obtain data for a period extending probably 3,000 years back.

$60,000 to Legless Boy Is Only 'Coupla Dollars'

New York.—"What do I care for a couple dollars? They won't give me back my legs."

This was the reply of Benjamin Warshofsky, twenty years old, when asked what he would do with $60,000 the American Railway Express company was ordered by Justice Faber in Queens Supreme court to give him in compensation for injuries received in a collision between a trolley car and one of its trucks. Warshofsky, a delivery boy, lost his left leg as a result of the accident, and had the other so badly smashed it is useless.

"I ain't worrying about what I'm going to do," he said, "or about the money. The only thing I'm worrying about is getting well."

He said he passed seven weeks in Flushing hospital after being hurt nine more weeks at home. Every day he sits at the window and stares through the ugly lattice of the fire escape—at folk who can walk.

"Work at anything with my hands?" He laughed bitterly. "Do you suppose I'd have been out there delivering packages if I'd ever learned any sort of trade? The only thing my hands are good for are to drag me from one chair to another."

"What good is money if I've got to sit in one place all the rest of my life?"

Chinese Mule Is Rival of Missouri Breed in Army

Washington.—Is the Missouri mule of the United States army variety slipping? This question is to be determined, so far as the American expeditionary force in China is concerned.

The quartermaster of the American force at Tientsin recently purchased a dozen Chinese mules to conduct experiments to determine their comparative value as against the American animal imported for transport.

It seems the Chinese mule, which hails from Manchuria and Mongolia, and stands on an average between 13 and 14 hands, has excellent points. He is exceptionally sturdy and hardy. A not unusual load for one of them on a fairly smooth road is a ton or more, and an average day's march of twenty-five miles under a 350-pound pack is common.

The Chinese mule subsists on a ration costing less than 25 cents a day, upon which an American animal would starve.

German Children Hold Unique Garden Festival

Berlin.—A unique harvest festival recently took place in the industrial suburb of Berlin, Neu-Koeln. A subsidiary of a Dayton manufacturing concern, Dayton, Ohio, has copied the American plan of turning over vacant land to children of employees for gardening purposes. The festival marked the end of this year's experiment.

Thirty-five boys and 20 girls have cultivated strips of land each 50 by 10 feet. The average yield per child was: 100 heads of lettuce, 80 pounds tomatoes, 60 pounds cucumbers, 50 pounds cabbage, 30 pounds red beet, 25 pounds string beans, 25 pounds spinach, 25 bunches celery, 25 pounds carrots, 12 pounds peas, 10 pounds of onions, radishes and kohlrabi.

1924 CORN KINGS YET TO BE FOUND

One Hundred Bushel Club Gains No Members For First Time in Its History.

Not a man in the State of Ohio was able to grow an average of 100 bushels of corn to the acre on a 10-acre plot during the past season, according to the final report by the farm crops department at the Ohio State University.

"While the 10-acre corn contest does not include all the best corn growers of the State, it is reasonable to assume that those entered were of the best, and none was able to reach the goal of 100 bushels an acre," says Wallace E. Hanger, extension specialist who has been in charge of the work for the eight years the contest has been going.

"In spite of the backward season," continued Mr. Hanger, "some excellent results were obtained. William Gilmore, of Licking county, grew an average of 98.24 bushels an acre on a ten acre plot. Jacob Puterbaugh, of Montgomery county, who won the state championship cup for the highest corn yield, had the second highest yield this year, 96.32 bushels. Howard Eby, of Montgomery County, wins third place with a yield of 94.67 bushels an acre.

"Entries in the club this year totaled 34 men, distributed in 15 different counties. Montgomery was the leading county with nine entries of which Mr. Puterbaugh is the leader. Fifteen county championship medals will be awarded at Farmers' Week in February.

"The average yield in the contest this year is 70.82, which is from 10 to 15 bushels lower than usual."

N. B. SPENCER

Died in Cincinnati—Was Originator of Time Lock Idea.

Napoleon B. Spencer died at his home in Hyde Park, Cincinnati, Monday morning.

The deceased was born in Adelphi and was 74 years old. He was the son of Thomas W. and Caroline Karshner Spencer, former residents of this city. His father conducted a photograph studio here for nearly a half century.

He originated the idea of time locks on bank vaults and for years had a working model. The idea was copied and used extensively and has been improved upon and is now used all over the Union.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Susie Spencer and two sons, Burton and Raymond. Of his immediate family one brother, Oscar H. Spencer of East High street, survives.

Mr. Spencer moved from this city to Cincinnati twenty years ago. He was formerly connected with the Scioto Machine works when it was managed by the late J. Q. A. Oliver. Mr. Spencer was a machinist and his special work was on steam and gasoline engines, in which he was considered an expert.

Marriage in France Regarded as a Duty

A few months ago, girl students at the University of Minnesota replied to a questionnaire asking their notion of an ideal husband. According to the replies, he must be "moderately good-looking, athletically inclined, morally clean, respectful toward religion, healthy, appreciative of the good and beautiful in life, well trained socially, chivalrous, optimistic and good-natured"; but such qualities as patience, courage, industry, sound judgment, love of children and an infinite capacity for self-sacrifice—these they failed to emphasize. In other words, each young woman was seeking an agreeable mate. He must be "charming." Then the young woman in her turn would be "happy." Whereas, no one is ever "happy," and those who marry in order to win "happiness" meet with disillusionment. They ought to.

In France, where marriages are arranged by the old folks, no one thinks of marriage as bringing "happiness." No one thinks of marriage as a personal indulgence. In France, marriage is a duty. Such prerequisites as patience, courage, industry, sound judgment, love of children and an infinite capacity for self-sacrifice are not underrated. Except in rare cases, interesting to the novelist because of their rarity, French marriage succeeds. Very few French couples seek divorce—so few, indeed, that France was shocked when Americans began to seek divorce in Paris, and applauded the ministry of justice for somewhat abating the scandal.

Inasmuch as we are not Latins and have neither the background nor the shrewd, calculating, businesslike and socially dutiful inclinations of the French, who arrange marriages for their children as deliberately as they finance those marriages, we shall never adopt the French system. Instead of arranging marriages for our children, we are much more likely to find our children arranging divorces for us.—Rollin Lynde Hart in World's Work.

TRAFFIC CASUALTIES DOUBLE WAR'S TOLL

Combined Deaths and Injuries 700,600 in 1923.

Washington.—"There is almost total lack of systematic effort to secure accurate and complete data regarding traffic accidents, their types and causes, and methods of prevention," declares the Committee on Statistics of the Conference on Street and Highway Safety, in a report to Secretary of Commerce Hoover based on a thorough survey which revealed an annual loss in the United States due to street and highway accidents in 1923 of 22,600 persons killed, 678,000 serious injuries and an economic loss of $800,000,000.

The committee's report shows that there were more than twice as many casualties in street and highway accidents in the United States during 1923 than there were for the United States army at home and abroad in the World war. The highway and street casualties include "killed and seriously injured." This takes no account of minor accidents.

The report also shows that there were only 14,216 more of our men killed in action in the World war than in street and highway accidents in 1923.

In states where centralized agencies have been created to investigate such accidents, it has been possible to attempt a systematic remedy of the conditions. But 34 states have no adequate system for securing such information and in few states is any record kept except where death or serious personal injury result from traffic accidents.

Committee's Recommendations. Such facts, the committee says, "are fundamental to the adoption of adequate methods of traffic control, if the present situation is to be improved." And the committee's recommendations provide that:

"Statistics regarding street and highway accidents are so vital to any comprehensive understanding and treatment of the safety problem that their collection and analysis in every state and community is essential.

"Where such do not exist, statutes should be passed in every state which should make it the specific business of some state agency, preferably that clothed with authority to issue and revoke licenses, to receive traffic accident reports and investigate all such accidents, whether occurring within or without the corporate limits of municipalities.

"It should be made, by law, obligatory for those concerned to report all traffic accidents, and an adequate penalty for failure to report should be provided.

"Reasonable uniformity in reporting and tabulating data is essential, and some competent body should undertake the compilation of standard definitions of terms.

"Sufficiently detailed information should be gathered to indicate clearly whether the accidents occurred because of: Recklessness, carelessness or incapacity of persons; fault of mechanism of vehicle; physical conditions of the locality where the accident occurred.

Urges Spot Maps.

The committee includes 18 items of information which should be obtained to constitute an adequate report.

Spot maps, to detect danger points and to serve as a basis for remedial action, should be maintained.

The experience of the committee led its members to express the hope that its report "will lead to improvement in the field of traffic accident reporting; that it will stimulate the governmental agencies and the various private organizations interested to a more intensive study . . . and greater efforts."

In its study of fatal accidents the committee found from the records of the census bureau that highway fatalities are growing at a more rapid rate than accidental deaths from all causes and that automobile fatalities are growing more rapidly than highway fatalities as a whole. For example, the total number of accidental deaths increased 10.7 per cent between 1922 and 1923, whereas the total number of highway fatalities increased 17.8 per cent, and automobile fatalities increased 20.3 per cent.

Westminster Cathedral to Have Open-Air Altar

London.—An open-air altar and pulpit equipped with loud speakers is being erected just outside Westminster cathedral, so that thousands of persons participating in processions and overflow meetings will be able to hear the preacher's voice.

Cardinal Bourne, making this announcement at the annual meeting of the Catholic Evidence guild, said the cathedral was not sufficient on certain occasions of the year, and that the whole of the land around the cathedral would be leveled and cleared to provide for overflow meetings.

Horse Finds Mate

Atchison, Kans.—There apparently is such a thing as horse sense after all. A horse belonging to James Wagner, Atchison county farmer, became imprisoned in a deserted barn. For three days the horse was missing, until Wagner became attracted by the fact that the horse's mate continued to peer through the cracks in the old barn, and found the horse imprisoned inside.

DIED OF CANCER

Mrs. Jacob Levy Passed Away at Her Home in Columbus.

Mrs. Sarah Schein Levy, wife of Jacob Levy, died at her home, 741 South Seventeenth street, Columbus, Sunday evening.

The deceased is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Fannie Fish and Mrs. Ethel Wasserstrom and two sons, Myer and Moses Levy. Of her immediate family one brother and one sister survive.

The family formerly lived in this city on Clinton street. Her husband was formerly connected with the Circleville Iron and Metal company. The deceased was sixty years of age and the cause of her death was cancer.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment was made in the Jewish cemetery in Columbus.

Dream Has Physical Basis.

The "falling from a height" dream has a physical basis, for scientists have shown that this form of nightmare invariably occurs during the first few minutes after falling asleep. It is suggested by the general muscular relaxation that takes place when we settle down. A change of position of even a fraction of an inch, or the least little slip of the muscles, is sufficient to convey the idea of a fall to the brain.

STATE BUREAU

Identification of Criminals Accomplished by Most Complete System.

(United Press.)

Columbus, Ohio, December 30.—The Ohio Bureau of Identification with offices in the Ohio penitentiary, is a clockwork of index cards black with identification marks and finger prints.

A correspondent dived into the detective system with William N. Smith, superintendent of the bureau, looking over the many different index card systems and finger print files, to learn why would-be law invaders many times aren't really good law dodgers after all.

Smith explained that the bureau was created to bring about a cooperation with the state, of city and town police authorities in apprehending criminals and to make it possible for the prosecuting attorneys and trial judges to look up a charged man's record, so that he can be treated in trial accordingly.

Smith has all convict clerks and stenographers in his office. The system starts with the record building department where all criminal records are assembled and made ready to file and become a part of the three hundred thousand records on file.

Then, there are the Bertillon filing cabinets where thousands of criminal photographs are filed according to the lengths of the bones of the body. This helps defeat the alias invention.

The finger print department is in a fireproof vault where all print cards are filed, nearly two hundred thousand in all. Smith has lots of faith in the finger print system as a defeat for aliases.

The Modus Operandi gallery is where all professional criminals' photographs are filed by a visible system according to the method of working. Smith said some men have had as high as thirty aliases.

Within the last year, the bureau has identified and caused to be apprehended 284 fugitives from justice, identified 3630 as having previous criminal records and answered 16,153 inquiries.

"While the state bureau is helping to decrease the enormous annual crime cost in Ohio now, it will be able to decrease it still further if it is adequately financed by the next Ohio legislature," said Smith.

Smith has been catching culprits for thirteen years and claims he never forgets a face.—Harold E. Righter.

NEW OFFICIAL

Burr H. Rader and George Curry Incoming County Commissioners.

Monday was the last day that A. E. Schleich and Samuel D. Stout, county commissioners met, as their terms of office expire with the year. They will make room for the two incoming commissioners, Burr Rader and George Curry, who were elected at the November election.

The retiring commissioners have served five years and three and half months in office. The new commissioners will serve a term of four years each beginning January 5, 1925.

Prosecuting Attorney Meeker Terwilliger and Sheriff Robert J. Young succeed themselves in office on the same date, January 5.

Name Like Fire Alarm

An Indian chief visited Muskogee, Okla., recently and stayed over night at the hotel. Going to his room that night he decided to call his wife, who lived at Dewar, a few miles away. He took down the phone receiver and started in: "This is Big Fire Chief Fire—" but the telephone operator let him get no further. She sounded the general fire alarm, and when the department arrived the Indian was still trying to get in his call and verbally losing his temper through the phone.

GRANGE AND CHILD LABOR

Amendment in Its Present Form Will Be Opposed Very Strongly.

Following the strong declaration of the National Grange, at its Atlantic City session, against the pending child labor amendment, State Granges all over the country are taking up the issue and adding their protest to the proposed constitutional change. Of all the state organizations of the Grange meeting since December 1, not a single one but has endorsed the stand of the National Grange, and has denounced the child labor project in vigorous terms. Furthermore, local Granges in all sections of the country are entering the fight; and with noteworthy unanimity is the Grange organization as a whole massing its energies to defeat the amendment.

Few organizations in America have done more to assist young people, or have proven themselves more staunch defenders of the boys and girls, than has the Grange; but the basis of its present opposition is expressed in the clear-cut language adopted at Atlantic City:

"This amendment as now drawn is so unrestricted and sweeping that its application could become absolutely dangerous to the best interests of the communities of the nation and to the welfare of the children themselves; therefore, on account of its sweeping nature, and its tendency towards centralized, costly, bureaucratic control, we are opposed to the ratification of the amendment as now proposed."

Boys Chief Stutterers

For every girl who stutters there are five or six stuttering boys.

Dr. James Sonnett Greene of New York, medical director of the National hospital for speech disorders, explains this curious fact in writing for Hygeia, health magazine, published by the American Medical association.

Girls, as a rule, talk more than boys and, therefore, get more practice in speech production, Doctor Greene states. Although it is generally conceded that girls are more nervous than boys, yet the girl is more capable of maintaining her co-ordination under emotional strain because she is naturally more graceful and her co-ordination more complete.

For that reason it requires an exceptionally severe shock to cause her to lose her standard, hesitate and stutter.

Birds Constantly at

Work for Humanity

In a new country where the natural conditions of plant and animal life are changed, the balance of nature is likely to be upset. The value of bird life is perhaps greater in checking a plague in its incipient stage.

In parts of the Middle West there were serious outbreaks of the Rocky mountain locust or grasshopper many years ago, says Nature Magazine of Washington, D. C. Prof. Aughey of the University of Nebraska carried on a series of observations showing that the birds of these localities were helping a great deal to check the insect numbers.

Thrushes, kinglets, chickadees, nuthatches, warblers, vireos, swallows, crows, bluejays, blackbirds, kingfishers, cuckoos, woodpeckers, hawks, owls, pigeons, grouse, quail, gulls, and even humming birds and water birds had all taken to eating locusts.

Fifty-one locusts were taken from the stomach of a single yellow-headed blackbird. A tiny ruby-throated hummingbird had four small locusts in its stomach. Six robins had eaten 265 locusts. Sixty-seven locusts were found in the stomachs of three bluebirds, and one little ruby-crowned kinglet had eaten 29. Many of these and other birds were feeding their young on locusts.

One barn owl had eaten 39 locusts. Five screech-owls had eaten 219 locusts. Six of the blue burrowing owls had eaten an average of more than fifty locusts each, the magazine article concludes. Hawks, as a class, were scarcely less active, for of the eleven species listed as having been examined by him, five were found to have eaten locusts.

A grasshopper pest in southern Oregon was something like the plague of grasshoppers that came upon the early Mormon settlers in Utah during the summer of 1848. The crops of the Mormons were partly saved by the great flocks of gulls that came in and settled over the fields, gorging themselves on the insects.

Making "Lead" Pencils

To make the wooden tube in which the lead for a pencil is incased the manufacturer cuts out a board about seven inches long, the width of six pencils and as thick as half a pencil in diameter. With a machine he then shapes it into six semi-rounded or semi-hexagonal sections and grooves one side to hold the lead. When the lead is inserted the halves are glued together. The "lead" in a pencil is composed of graphite.

KEEPING WELL

FRESH AIR WITHOUT DRAFTS

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

WE'VE had state commissions appointed and surveys made on everything under the sun. Many of them are of small value. Occasionally a state commission shows some intelligence and does something of importance.

Such a state commission is the one appointed in New York on ventilation. An old subject, which man has been struggling with ever since he began to live in caves and tried to keep in the heat from his fire and keep out the cold from outside. How are we going to keep our houses warm and yet have air fit to breathe?

The New York state commission examined and tested all the machines and ventilating systems on the market and practically turned them all down. It decided that the best way to get fresh air into a room was to open a window. But that isn't all. If it was, it would be a simple problem.

In most houses, where our windows are built so that we can look out rather than so that fresh air can get in and foul air get out, opening the window alone is not enough.

Deflecting boards should be placed at the bottom of the window, so as to deflect the current of cold air upward. Cold air is heavier than warm air. Every schoolboy knows that. No matter what kind of heating is used, the warm air rises to the ceiling and forces down the cold air to the floor. If we open the windows at the top the warm air rushes out at the window, the cold air comes in under the doors. The room may be well ventilated, but there is a constant current of cold air on the floor and the room is uncomfortable.

A glass deflector one foot high and fixed at an angle is fairly good, but a curved deflector of glass or wood is better. Placed with the convex curve down, this will throw the cold air up to the ceiling, forcing down the warm air and so establishing a current of warm air instead of a cold draft.

Radiators, if possible, should be located under or near the windows. A thermometer should be kept in every room and the temperature maintained at 68 degrees F. This point should be plainly marked so that it can be told at a glance whether the room is too hot or too cold.

Each Thought Other Dead

"Dead" brothers met at Cardiff, Wales, neither having seen the other for twenty years, and each thinking the other dead. One enlisted at the age of nineteen in 1901, and was reported to have been killed during the siege of Kut. The other enlisted in the Cameron Highlanders in 1914, and was so badly wounded in 1916, he lost both arms. They met in the Union Jack club and looked at each other without speaking, and while friends were wondering what was the matter one of the brothers fainting. When he recovered, explanations were made, and the reunion was complete.

During the winter months 73 to 75 per cent are so followed.

The following incident testifies to the remarkable sagacity and efficiency of bees. A hive was being "spied upon" by a wasp. From Rugs to Rags

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

WHEN Juliette heard the clock strike three she fairly trembled with joy and impatience.

"Why doesn't he come?" she said. "It is three o'clock."

"One might think you were waiting for a lover instead of a man to mend the rugs," said her mother.

"But I'm crazy to see him. Annette tells me he is the most interesting creature she has ever spoken with. She is only sorry she hasn't more rugs that need sewing."

Juliette's mother smiled tolerantly. She had a faint suspicion that her whimsical but none the less lovely daughter had deliberately egged Sandy, the pup, to tear the big oriental rug. "Why, mother, Annette says he's the only person who has ever given her a really comprehensive idea of the Einstein theory—think of it, the man who mends your rugs!"

A step on the gravel pathway brought Juliette to her feet. She dashed to the French door that opened to the porch.

A strikingly handsome young man faced her. "You have some rugs to be sewn?" he asked.

Juliette opened the door wide. "Yes; come right in. We were expecting you."

Annette had not said he was remarkably handsome. She had raved on about his mind, but she had not mentioned his face.

"This is the rug. The puppy has demoralized it rather badly and we don't like to send it away," said Juliette's mother. "Could you, perhaps, do it right on the floor?"

The young man said that he could, and immediately opened the small satchel that he carried. In less than five minutes he was at work.

Juliette sat down on the broad hall couch and watched him. Every now and then she offered a word or two in conversation in the effort to draw out what Annette had said was an unusually interesting mind.

A monosyllabic reply was all either she or her mother could get from the man, who worked steadily on the bits of rug. The pup had made veritable rags of the splendid old rug, and the pattern had to be carefully matched.

As time went on Juliette whispered to her secret soul that she wished she had stopped the dog before he had made such a hopeless mess of the rug. But she had anticipated a number of thrilling hours listening to the man as he mended away at the rags. Now, she was disappointed. He would not talk. But—he was very good to look at.

At four o'clock he said that he would have to be leaving, but that they—meaning his firm—would finish the work on the following day when the light would, perhaps, be better.

"Well—did you ever see such a good looking dumbbell?" asked Juliette when he had gone.

"He is not voluble," admitted her mother. "Perhaps he is temperamental, and this was his quiet day."

The next morning she was surprised to find another man at the door. He was decidedly foreign looking, and much more nearly the type Annette had described.

"Are you going to finish the job?" she asked him as he went to work.

"But—yes. The other man? Oh, he is a young friend of mine who writes for magazines and newspapers, and he is doing an article on rugs and their intricacies. I thought you would not care—would not perhaps be about—and I let him come to study that pattern at first hand. I apologize. I thought—"

"Oh, it is quite all right. I was just a bit curious," said Juliette, sitting down to watch the obviously much more clever artist who was now at work on her mother's rug.

The rug mender was all that Annette said he was—a veritable book of knowledge. He related experiences that equalled anything Juliette had ever read, and she enjoyed the two hours she spent in watching him.

But Juliette was young, and the vicissitudes of fortune had rendered her heart whole, but willing to be otherwise. Therefore, it was natural that her thoughts should turn to the handsome young writer of the previous day's meeting. It was all very thrilling to cultivate the mind, but a little romance into the bargain would add to the charm of the situation.

"Your friend writes?" she asked, by way of an opening.

"Oh, yes—cleverly. He found this rug most interesting. Perhaps—would you let him see it when I have mended it?"

Juliette was delighted, but she spoke calmly. "Certainly. He may see it at any time."

It was nearly two weeks before he came to see the rug, and Juliette had a woman's intuition about his coming at all. He had found the same vague, intangible attraction toward her that she had found toward him, and—his story about rugs were merely a means to an end in this case.

Nearly a month after she had met him they were discussing an article he was doing. "You might find someone else you like while you are digging up the story?" Juliette suggested, teasingly.

"Never," he said firmly. "I have found the only girl in the world."

"And all because she let the pup make rags of her mother's best rug?" laughed Juliette. For she had confided to him the villainy that had led to their romance.

INGENIOUS TRAILER TO CARRY THE LUGGAGE

ROAD COURTESY IS OFTEN NEGLECTED

Many Little Things Make Motor Traveling Most Difficult on Highways.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

When you are driving along a road and someone approaching from behind sounds his horn to pass, let him do so.

Many times when driving along the highway you may have noticed drivers give the signal to the car ahead and try to pass only to have the car on the right hand side speed up.

Jangle's Driver's Nerves.

It certainly jangles a driver's nerves when he finds the car ahead speeding up when he attempts to go by. There is no excuse for this sort of thing. If you want to pass, why should the man on the right step on the throttle and attempt to block you?

There is plenty of courtesy to be observed on the road besides mere theory. If we were more thoughtful of the other fellow, motoring would be a lot more pleasant.

Not Watching Road.

The other day a motorist reported that he was coming from Gary and was crossing the railroad tracks in South Chicago. There is a right angle turn there, and it is dangerous unless low speed is maintained. Coming around the turn a boy was observed driving a delivery wagon. He was taking about all the room to be had on the highway and when this motorist looked at him he found the chap was busily engaged in reading a letter and was not watching the road at all.

It is just such things as this instance that makes motor traveling hard and troublesome. If motorists would drive sanely there would be fewer disasters on the highways.

Remove Scratches From Car Body With Shellac

A car owner naturally takes pride in the finish of a new car and endeavors to retain its mirror-like luster as long as possible. But when work must be done on the car the finish often suffers. Often a button will scratch its way along a fender or the slipping of a screwdriver will leave an unsightly blemish. A method which has often given satisfaction, says the Automobile Digest, is to apply several coats of thin shellac until the scratch has been completely filled. When the last coat has dried it is rubbed with crocus cloth and a little olive oil, just enough to rub out the ridges where the new and old coats join.

Crocus cloth, used extensively by jewelers, is a polishing cloth of a much finer grade than the finest emery cloth and will rub down a surface without the semblance of a scratch. After no signs remain of where the two coats join, a rub-down with a good body polish will render the touch-up inconspicuous and restore the surface to its original appearance.

Plan to Keep Windshield Clear in Moist Weather

It is always annoying when at the last moment one is in a hurry to take up a meal or coming from out-of-doors into a warmer temperature, to find the lenses of one's glasses suddenly clouded with steam.

Prevent this by washing the glasses perfectly clean. Dry them on a soft cloth, and then rub with a cloth which has been moistened with a very small amount of paraffin oil. All that is needed is the thinnest film to coat the surface, yet not enough to attract dust. This coating prevents the moisture touching the glass. It is convenient to have a cloth ready prepared. The same plan is excellent to keep the windshield of the automobile clear in damp weather.

Carbon and Compression

European automobile race drivers are experimenting with pistons that are raised and rounded at the top. They call this doming the pistons and find that it increases compression and power by forcing the gas vapor to occupy a smaller space when compressed. This is exactly what happens in the average motor (only on a smaller scale) when carbon cakes on the piston tops. But the carbon pre-ignites the gas and thus wastes power. Knocking proves it.

Refilling Pressure Type of Grease Gun Is Easy

Refilling the pressure type of grease gun, such as is used in conjunction with modern lubrication systems on automobiles, is a slow and tedious procedure as well as disagreeable because of the amount of grease that is deposited on the hands during the process.

An improved method of filling, which was devised by a Washington (D. C.) motorist, is illustrated. It is simple enough to warrant adoption by any motorist who objects to having to fill the gun with his fingers or a stick, and is also a quicker method.

The filler is simple, a flat strip of sheet metal, fitted with a wooden handle on the upper end. The blade part passes through a slot in a cap that is of the right size to fit the grease-gun barrel. The handle, blade, and cap may be made of any available materials such as a file handle, a strip of galvanized iron, and a metal can top.

In operation the filler is inserted in the can of grease and turned continuously while it is being pulled out. The grease in the shape of a cylinder adheres to the sides of the strip. The filler then is placed in the grease gun, the cap is pushed down over the barrel, and the blade is slipped out, thus leaving the contents inside the gun.—Popular Science Monthly.

Cheaply Made Filler Saves Time in Charging a Pressure Gun With Grease.

Bad Plugs Cause Missing and Jerking of Motors

There are few things more annoying to the motorist than a missing, skipping motor. Besides the certainty that this condition is imposing a serious strain upon the engine, clutch, transmission and the rest of the propelling system of the car, due to the irregularity of the power impulses, it means increased gasoline and oil consumption and carbonized cylinders.

Too frequently motorists are prone to suspect the carburetor and start to tinker with the adjustments, when, as a matter of fact, there is nothing the matter with the mixture. The whole trouble may be due to uneven spark gaps, caused either by bending the electrodes unintentionally in removing or cleaning the plugs, and sometimes in replacing them, or by the points becoming pitted to such an extent that the gap is materially widened. By spacing the gap so that there is a space of one thirty-second of an inch between the actual firing surfaces of the two points this condition may be quickly and easily corrected.

Dangers of Carbon Monoxide

One of the dangers not commonly known to automobile owners is that from carbon monoxide, a deadly gas given off from the exhaust pipe. Because of the fact that many automobile campers build their tent as a part of their automobile, they should know the danger that exists from this odorless, colorless gas. Never run the engine of your automobile without making sure that you are receiving plenty of fresh air. The best rule to follow is never to run the engine in any inclosed place, for any length of time.

An Improved Pipe Vise

A pipe cannot be held securely in the ordinary type of bench vise, as the jaws permit only a single line contact on each side of the pipe. By using a monkey wrench, with the jaws placed along the axis of the pipe, the effect produced is almost the same as that of a pipe vise. The wrench should be set so that it bears on the pipe only on the edges of the jaws.

Make Ring Spreader

An efficient piston ring spreader can be made from one-quarter-inch round stock with one-half of each piece hammered flat and the ends bent, says the Automobile Digest. The two ends are bolted or riveted together and when inserted in the ring slot will permit spreading the ring so that it can be removed over the head of the piston.

TO THOSE WHO FAIL

All honor to him who shall win the prize.
The world has cried for a thousand years;
But to him who tries, and who fails and dies,
I give great honor and glory and tears.
Give glory and honor and pitiful tears
To all who fall in their deeds sublime;
Their ghosts are many in the van of years,
They were born with Time in advance of Time.
Oh, great is the hero who wins a name,
But greater many a many a time
Some pale-faced fellow who dies in shame,
And lets God finish the thoughts sublime.
And great is the man with a sword undrawn,
And good is the man who refrains from wine;
But the man who fails and yet still fights on,
Lo, he is the twin-born brother of mine.
—Joaquin Miller.

Canadian Towns Given Mother-Country Names

The giving of the name of "Wembley" to the latest railway station in Canada, 15 miles southwest of Grand Prairie, Alberta, is another illustration of the homely method the Dominion has often adopted of naming new towns after persons and places in this country, says London Tit-Bits. Ontario, for example, has a Windsor a Woodstock, and a Chatham, as well as a London-on-the-Thames in Middlesex county.

Prime ministers are commemorated in the same way: There is an Asquith postoffice in Saskatchewan, a Bonar Law station in Ontario, and a Beaconsfield and a Gladstone in Manitoba. Kitchener, in Waterloo county, Ontario, earlier known as Berlin, was renamed in 1916. Lethbridge, Alberta, bears the name of the first president of the Northwestern Coal company who was once a partner in the firm of W. H. Smith and Son; whilst Revelstoke, British Columbia, commemorates the first Lord Revelstoke, of Baring Brothers, whose taking over of the first bond issue of $15,000,000 of the Canadian Pacific railway was an event of importance in the history of the Dominion.

Canine Good Fireman

Did you ever hear of a dog whose whiskers never had a chance to grow because he had a mania for putting out fires? Brownie, the beautiful three-year-old collie owned by Albert H. Allen of Worcester, is such a dog, says the New York World.

Light a match within his hearing. Zip! Brownie has snapped it from your hand before the flame fairly caught. Light a bonfire in the yard. As soon as he sees the flame Brownie, with a bark and a yelp, is on it pawing like mad, scattering the burning pieces of paper and heedless of sparks in his fur, scraping the dirt until not even a wisp of smoke remains. And he loves a light lunch of live bees.

Outside of that he is the most natural, play-loving dog in the world.

Historical Ring

The ring which Queen Elizabeth gave to the earl of Essex, the one which the countess of Nottingham so cruelly withheld when the earl lay under sentence of death, is said to be the very ring which Elizabeth gave to her cousin, Mary Stuart, when the latter married Darnley. The ring was made for a lady's finger and was afterward enlarged. It was set with a sardonyx engraved with a portrait of the queen. Many people have claimed to possess that fatal ring, but the ring which is exhibited as having belonged to Lady Frances Devereaux, daughter of Essex, is thought to be authentic.

LITTLE TO SAY

Mary—So your husband is devoted to the rifle—a fine marksman, I suppose?
Mrs. Youngbridge—He's very modest; but I've heard he's at the Crap Shooting club a good deal.

Will Preserve Famous Oak

The famous oak at Mont-de-Marsan, France, said to be three centuries old and holding its own near the chapel of Saint Vincent DePaul, shall be saved for future generations, it is decreed. The oak is now supported by planks. It is said the oak was standing in the days of the saint. Its diameter at the base is 15 feet. Only its lower branches remain.

AUCTION SALES

Articles of Good Merchandise Given

Away by Aer-O-Plane Merchants
Why not send the Weekly Union-Herald to that absent friend or relative as a gift?

The Weekly costs only $1.50 for twelve months and would prove a source of great pleasure to the absent one throughout the whole year. Nothing else could be bought for that amount of money which would be appreciated so much as this weekly letter from the old home town and country.

This would also be a good time to renew your own subscription, as for each dollar paid on subscription on either the Daily or Weekly Union-Herald we give sixteen dollars in Aer-O-Plane bonds—16 to 1—William Jennings Bryan's ratio for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. For example; if you pay $1, we give $16 in bonds; for $2, we give $32; for $3 we give $48; for $4 we give $64, and so on. We do not give bonds for any payment less than one dollar.

Pickaway County Lumber Co.
The Union-Herald—Daily & Weekly.
Henn Bros., Meat Market.
George H. Fickard & Co., Druggists
Wallace Bakery, Cream Crum Bread
Circleville Tire & Repair Co.

Now is the time to renew your subscription to either the Daily or Weekly and receive Aer-O-Plane bonds and get in line for the next sale. Remember that for each dollar you pay on subscription to the Daily or Weekly and for each dollar you pay on your back on your back account for the Daily, we give $16 in Aer-O-Plane bonds.

The merchants who give these bonds are:

These bonds are good at any of the auction sales given by the Aer-O-Plane merchants. The articles offered are all good merchandise, such as automobile tires, wool blankets, sugar meals, toilet articles, etc., etc., and you get them without the expenditure of any extra money.

Inflamed Eyes.

Nothing brings surer relief to inflamed eyes than a wash with boracic acid water. And one thing that its user must remember is to have the preparation free from any foreign particles, however minute, or they will cause irritation. The boracic acid should be thoroughly dissolved in water that has been boiled and cooled.

Something Else to Do.

You will see the pools and the standing water frozen through the winter, when the little running streams are bounding along between fringes of icy gems. Why is this? The streams have something else to do than stand still to be frozen up. Be you like them.—John Hall.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

A pretty appointed home wedding was celebrated Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Millar, of South Bloomfield, when their eldest daughter, Miss Louise, became the bride of Paul Cromley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Cromley, of Ashville. The marriage was the consummation of an acquaintance made in school days which ripened into love in maturer years and the ceremony joined two of Harrison township's most prominent families.

Promptly at the designated hour, the young couple to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin played by Miss Helen Plum, walked into the parlor and were made one by Rev. J. M. Chandler, minister of the Methodist Episcopal church. During the ceremony Miss Frances Ivins sang. The ceremony was witnessed by sixty relatives and friends of the happy young couple. The bride was attired in a tangerine colored crepe, embellished with a corsage bouquet of flowers. She is a graduate of the Miami College Normal school and has been in charge of a school at Lockbourne. The groom is a successful young farmer, a graduate of the Ohio State university and a member of Psi Chi fraternity.

A supper followed the marriage ceremony and the young couple went to Cincinnati and other southern points on a wedding trip.

A very pleasant, social meeting of the Circleville Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held Friday evening at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dunlap, Court and Union streets. The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Gussman and opened with the new W. C. T. U. song, "Everybody Sing." Mrs. Sarah Wiggins had charge of the devotions, reading the Christmas lesson in second chapter of Matthew, followed with prayer. "America, the Beautiful" was then sung, followed by short business session. Mrs. Lucy B. Price, county president, then gave a splendid report of the National W. C. T. U. convention which was held in Chicago in November. This, a wonderful report, given in Mrs. Price's most interesting manner, was listened to, attentively by the crowd of ladies present, among whom were visitors from Ashville and Westerville.

At the conclusion of her report Mrs. Price was given the White Ribbon salute and was presented a beautiful little silver W. C. T. U. pencil from the Circleville Union.

Delicious refreshments of little wafers, hot chocolate and home-made candy were then served by Mrs. Dunlap assisted by Miss Charlotte Phelps.

Miss Helen Dunton entertained Monday evening at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. O. H. Dunton, on South Court street, to celebrate her "sweet sixteen" birthday anniversary. Sixty-six boys and girls were present and the young folks had the time of their lives. Among those present were Misses Virginia Bolin, Roberta Bolin and Betty Bolin, of Columbus, and "Puck" Garvin, of the Columbus School for Girls; Miss Martha Hinkle, of Jackson, Tennessee; Elizabeth Dresbach, Merle Senef and William Woods, of Kingston; Isabel Petty, Elizabeth Hedges, Clarence Schlegel, Esther Riegel, Esther May Cloud, Julius Kaiserman and William Hedges, of Ashville and Whitney Olds, of Montclair, New Jersey.

On Christmas day the annual reunion of the William Frazier family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Compton, of Washington township. A bountiful dinner was served and the afternoon was spent in games and social conversation. Altho the day was very cold, all members of the family were present. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Frazier and family Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Frazier and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hussey, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leist and family Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Bell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hussey, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Frazier, Mr. and Mrs. Turney Frazier, Mr. Mertom Compton and the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hall, of Ashville entertained with a Christmas dinner. The following guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. LaRue, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Payne and Mr. and Mrs. John LaRue, all of Ashville; Mrs. Mary Stein, of Circleville; Mr. Clarence Hall of Columbus; Mr. Raymond LaRue and Mr. Luke LaRue of the O. S. university; Mr. Robert Hall, of Thomas, West Virginia, and Charley LaRue.

Miss Glendosa Cooper, of Basil, and Mr. Charles H. Tener, of Lancaster, were married Tuesday, December 23.

RECOMMENDATION FOR ADEQUATE FINANCIAL

Support For Schools, Will Be Prepared By Ohio State Teachers Association In Convention In Columbus Today and Tomorrow.

Columbus, O., Dec. 29.—(United Press.)—Recommendation for adequate financial support for schools, based on a study of the financial situation throughout Ohio, will be prepared by the Ohio State Teachers Association in annual convention here Monday and Tuesday.

Approximately 5,000 teachers are expected. The general accepted theory that rural and village school districts are as a class less able to support schools than city and exempted village districts, meets with contradiction in the report of a survey just completed by the association.

The report will be laid before the representative assembly of the association during the convention. Tenure and compulsory attendance laws, incorporation of the association and purchase of a permanent home, a change in the method of selecting delegates to National Education Association conventions and a code of policy will be considered.

Norman Angell, British publicist and 50 prominent American educators have places on the program. Musical programs will be furnished by an all-state high school band under the direction of Edith M. Keller, state supervisor of music; J. W. Wainwright, Fostoria, and G. V. Sutphen.

To Girls' Industrial School. Mary Christmas Darst and Marie Mumaw, two incorrigible girls, were taken by Probation Officer Mrs. C. A. Patton to Delaware where they will be placed in the Girls' Industrial school.

Inventory Filed. The inventory of the appraisers; Senet Cryder, S. C. Gamble and G. A. Schleyer of the estate of Lizzie Crouse Radcliffe, deceased, have filed their report. The estate is appraised at $15,332.42, of which $3,504.92 is personal.

Appointed Administrator. Miss Emma Martin was appointed administrator of the estate of the late John L. Martin. The estate is estimated to be worth $3,800 of which $1,800 is personal. The appraisers appointed by the court are E. W. Seeds, W. H. Lawless and J. H. Lawless.

Suit for Money. The Brodhag Motor Car company has filed a suit for money and damages against the W. Griffith company, a corporation, amount claimed $2,000. Abernethy & Simkins represent the plaintiff.

Suit for Accounting. Harvey T. Hill has filed a civil action against Charles Gerhardt, administrator of the estate of John W. Bolin for an accounting. The plaintiff is represented by George G. Adkins.

Charge of Burglary. A charge of burglary has been filed by Mayor George T. Peters, of Ashville, against John Grant. The act was committed on the N. & W. railroad station on the night of November 19 last. Grant was brought to this city and was placed in the county jail in default of $1,000 bail.

Failure to Provide. Raymond Street, charged with failure to provide for his child, and who was in default of $500 bond was placed in the county jail to await the action of the grand jury. The commitment was made by Mayor Fitzpatrick.

When Favored Cosmetics Were Found in Kitchen

Twenty-five years ago many of the beautifiers came out of the kitchen, notes a writer in the Pictorial Review. For the face and hands, honey, white of egg, lemon juice, bran, corn meal, oatmeal, and, very sparingly, face powder were used. The professional beauty treatment at that time consisted of cold cream applied with a circular movement followed by hot towels. From this it has developed into a scientific cleansing, nourishing, and stimulating treatment of the skin based on a knowledge of the anatomy of the face, its nerves, its muscles, and the general health has been given every consideration.

With anxious eyes the sky was watched for signs of rain. A supply of rain water must be caught and kept for shampooing the hair. It was rinsed with a tea made from camomile flowers and dried in the sun. This simple operation is now considered but a small beginning. The condition of the scalp, the requirements of the hair, the health generally, are studied, and nourishing preparations are massaged into the scalp. Electricity, too, is important as a stimulant. By the use of colored lights the circulation in the tissues of the scalp that are worn and tired is increased. Oily hair, dry hair, dandruff, hair that is losing its life and color can be restored to a normal state of health and beauty.

Simplicity is fashionable now. It is youthful, too, in its effects. Bobbed hair is more popular than ever, and the boyish bob is the simplest, most hygienic of all. It has shown us how beautiful the contour of the head really can be. If the hair is not bobbed it is dressed very simply.

How much cleaner, prettier, less troublesome—everything—is the permanent wave than the curious rats and wire frames that once were a necessary part of every woman's coiffure!

From time to time we hear people who are pessimistic about everything mutter darkly that women are slaves to fashion and that if they do not wear the same atrocities they once wore they will wear something else equally bad; perhaps worse, they say hopefully. But while women have been slow in finding out that comfort is a precious thing, they have learned that and something more; that it also can be beautiful.

Tunic Has Brought in Other Snappy Features

There is no escaping the tunic. It is omnipresent, but so varied in style are its many interpretations that one has not the feeling that it is a monotonous fashion. And its vogue has brought about the introduction of other new features. There is, for instance, the tunic-slip designed to have just the right amount of fullness at the hem, but not so much as an extra wrinkle around the hips and waistline.

Tunics of metal lace are posed over slips of cloth of silver or gold and make the most attractive evening frocks. One lovely model shows a Russian tunic of a new kind of crinkled cloth of gold banded with bright-colored head embroidery and worn with a plaited skirt of the same interesting material.

With a slip of black satin and several tunics of different colors and fabrics one may give quite a varied appearance to one's wardrobe.

Utilize Old Colored Prints

Old French or Spanish prints may be used to make a fascinating screen. The background is of heavy natural colored linen and the prints, three on each side, are pasted on. To hold them together and give the effect of a design there are decorative motifs stenciled in colors. Godey prints are used in the same way.
